DR. BLAZER VERDICT
What will be jury's verdict in Dr. Harold Elmer Blazer's trial, at Littleton, Colo., for chloroform-slaying of his imbecile daughter? A senatorial jury would acquit or send him to an asylum. See Page 1.

Coolidge and Farmers
From Eve to Automobile
Church, Bootleggers, 50-50.
Treat Cuba Decently.

The president does not believe that the only relief for a farmer is to sit around and "let nature take its course," which means letting railroads, jobbers, wholesalers and foodstuff gamblers get the profit while the farmer plows, milks the cow and carries the mortgage.

A nation which finds it easy to help railroads out of troubles by increasing rates and compelling the public to pay ought to help farmers, without whom all railroads would go bankrupt and cities into starvation.

The president has lived on a farm. His suggestion will be interesting, for he knows where the farmer's life is.

Miss Jacqueline Rogers, aged 23, confesses that she stole "about one automobile a week" to support her friend, Mr. Kenyon, also 23. She stole the cars, he sold them and the lady, very modern, says "it's about all that boob was good for. He was of use in getting them."

Nevertheless th[illegible] him and needles[illegible] her. So Adam bl[illegible] when Eve stole the apples before the days of automobiles. He ate it and Eve probably would have said "that's about all that boob was good for," using, of course, the word "schlemiel," Yiddish equivalent for "boob."

The federal council of churches flatly denies that prohibition is a failure.

A million industrious bootleggers concur and also deny most flatly that prohibition is a failure. The thing seems to be unanimous.

During the war did you tear your hair with one hand signing checks for Liberty bonds with the other, praying that before death you might be allowed to kill a German?

Were you all wrought up over terrible German atrocities, children with hands cut off, allied officers crucified, nails driven through their hands and feet? If so, peep behind the scenes and find how the strings were pulled.

He received pictures of a train. One car was loaded with bodies of dead soldiers being drawn away from the battlefield. Another was filled with the bodies of dead cavalry horses. On the carload of dead horses was a sign saying that the carcasses were to be boiled down for soap fat.

General Charteris says he changed the sign from the carload of dead horses to the carload of dead soldiers, circulated the photographs all over the world to arouse hatred against Germany.

The photograph was sent to China where the "worship of ancestors" will make the propaganda story effective. "boiling down soldiers' bodies

FREE BOOKLET ON BAKING

Some kind of bread is served on the average American table three times a day. The quality of that bread is an important matter. The food value depends on the materials which go into it, whether it is made at home or in the bakery. The Bakery Booklet has been planned primarily as a guide in home baking, but through its discussion of materials it offers help also in the choice of commercial baked products.

This invaluable offering is a free government publication, and our Washington Information Bureau will secure a copy for any reader who fills out and mails the coupon below, enclosing two cents in stamps for return postage. Write your name and address clearly.

FORMER SALINEVILLE PHYSICIAN READY FOR 'LOVE MURDER' ORDEAL

Salineville Club Lauds Prisoner's Devotion to Child

LITTLETON, Colo., Nov. 9.—The Salineville, O., Kiwanis club, among others, today made a plea for mercy in behalf of Dr. Harold Elmer Blazer, former Ohioan, who is charged with the slaying of his imbecilic daughter, Hazel.

The Salineville club, in a letter, told of the "irreproachable character" of Dr. Blazer in that community and graphically described the "loving care and solicitude" that marked his devotion to his invalid child.

Attorney Lewis D. Mory and his associate, H. W. Spangler, were swamped with letters and telegrams from all parts of the country offering advice on every ism and ology known to science that might be applied to the insanity defense of the old fashioned doctor.

New Heart Throbs Will Be Woven Into Emotional Drama in Drab Colorado District Court.

HE WILL REVEAL IMBECILE'S LIFE

By MICHAEL F. DACEY

LITTLETON, Colo., Nov. 9.—New heart throbs will be woven into the emotional drama that is being enacted in the drab Arapahoe district court here when Dr. Harold Elmer Blazer, on trial for the alleged chloroform-slaying of his 33-year-old idiot daughter, Hazel, takes the witness stand today in his own defense.

Claims Loss of Memory.

Lewis D. Mowry, chief of defense counsel, announced this morning that the old country doctor, who killed his imbecile daughter because he feared he might die suddenly and leave the helpless clod to the mercy of strangers, will be called as the first witness.

The keen-eyed, florid faced defendant appeared bright and cheerful shortly before court opened and declared he was prepared for the ordeal of relating to the jury how 33 long years of constant care, worry and unflagging devotion to his stricken "woman child" who is declared by Attorney Mowry to have been without a soul, had so undermined his mentality that he became the victim of disease that resulted in spells of complete loss of memory.

"If I killed my child, I do not re-

SENATE JURY WOULD ACQUIT 'MERCY SLAYER'

POLL IS TAKEN

(Copyright, 1925, by I. N. S.)

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9.—If Dr. Harold E. Blazer, Colorado's "mercy slayer," and former resident of Salineville, O., were being tried before a jury of United States senators instead of a jury of Arapahoe farmers, he would be acquitted or put away in an asylum for taking the life of his legless, armless, mindless, husk of a daughter.

The Blazer case has aroused intense interest in the capital because of the many intricate questions of law and science raised in the case.

Twelve members of the senate were picked at random today around the capital and asked to state what their attitude in the Blazer case would be if they were on the jury—in other words constitute a senatorial jury.

Of these 12, three stood for unconditional acquittal, five voted to sustain the defense's plea that the aged doctor was out of his mind when he chloroformed his idiot child, and four voted merely a verdict of guilty.

Drafted for service on this unique jury were several former governors of states, several famous prosecutors, several great trial lawyers, business men and farmers. Most of them were fathers.

Only two declined to permit publication of their names. The verdict was:

For acquittal—Senators Lynn J.

OPEN TWO-WEEK REVIVAL TONIGHT

Rev. John and Bona Fleming, Kentucky evangelists, will open a two weeks' series of evangelistic meetings in the First Church of the Nazarene, corner St. Clair and Lincoln avenues, at 7:30 o'clock this evening.

The evangelists were to have started their local campaign yesterday but were detained at their home in Ashland, Ky., because of the illness of another brother, who is suffering from blood poisoning.

The revival meetings will be featured by music by a large chorus choir and a 15-piece orchestra. Services will be held every evening this week.

Mrs. Paul Joliet Dies Suddenly in Home at Canton

Mrs. Alice McConnell, Kent and Ina Mae McConnell, Clark Bradfield, Margaret Milliron and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Gething were called to Canton yesterday by the death of Mrs. Paul Joliet, mother of Mrs. Rex McConnell.

Mrs. Joliet, who died suddenly, was a resident of Canton for more than 40 years. She was a member of St. Peter's church and Altar society. She leaves her husband, one son and three daughters.

JOHN W. WYMAN, FORMER POLICE CHIEF, DIES IN LOS ANGELES

Served as Sheriff for Two Terms and Town Marshal.

81 YEARS OLD

Funeral Services are Held in California City.

John W. Wyman, 81, sheriff of Columbiana county for two terms and town marshal and chief of police of East Liverpool for approximately 24 years, died in his home in Los Angeles, Cal., early Saturday morning, after a short illness. Burial was made in Inglewood cemetery, Los Angeles, today.

Mr. Wyman resided here for more than 50 years. Two years ago last June he and his wife went to the Pacific coast.

He was born in Huntingdon county, Pa., August 21, 1844, a son of George and Catherine Wyman, and was educated in the schools of Pennsylvania. When a young man he moved to Lawrence county, Pa., where he resided for about six months and then came to East Liverpool.

For three years, Mr. Wyman was employed in the flour mill operated here by James Wilson and for four years in the mill conducted by Christian Metsch. He served as town marshal for six terms of two years each.

Appointed by Mayor Weaver.

In 1887, he was elected sheriff of Columbiana county and two years later was re-elected. In 1903, when the legislature placed police departments under civil service, Mr. Wyman was named chief of police by Mayor W. A. Weaver. He held that office until 1917 when he resigned from the force, to be succeeded by Captain Hugh McDermott. He was once a candidate for the Republican nomination of mayor.

For a short time after leaving the police force, Mr. Wyman served as school attendance officer, but ill health prompted his resignation.

While sheriff and chief of police, Mr. Wyman was known as one of the most fearless men in the county. During his second term as sheriff Ira Marlatt, East Fairfield farmer, shot and killed Barak Ashton and wounded

E. Palestine's First Woman Mayor Warns Law Breakers

Miss Clara Morrow, Democrat, Will Take Into Office Many Years' Experience in Public Affairs.

Miss Clara Morrow, Democrat, who will become mayor of East Palestine on Jan. 1, next, thus earning the distinction of being the first Columbiana county woman to be honored with the city executive's post, declared today that she expects to enforce the law without fear or favor.

She will succeed Mayor Albert Ferren, former East Liverpool man, who long has been known as the nemesis of Columbiana county bootleggers.

"I intend to give the people of East Palestine my best service," the mayor-elect said. "I shall make my administration a business one to the extent of my ability. I am not a fanatic, but I expect to enforce all laws on the statute books against the law breakers.

Miss Morrow, who is the first woman elected to any office in East Palestine and the fourth Democrat chosen mayor of that city, will take into office a long experience in public affairs.

Since 1893, when she graduated from high school, she has worked in

MRS. SARAH A. OWEN, AGED 67, DIES IN HER HOME HERE SUNDAY

Funeral Services for Widow of Real Estate Company President Will be Held at 3 p. m. Tomorrow.

Mrs. Sarah Agnes Owen, 67, widow of George H. Owen, died Sunday morning in her home, 415 Jefferson street, after a two weeks' illness of complications.

Mrs. Owen was born in East Liverpool and spent her entire life here. She was a lifelong member of the First Presbyterian church and took an active part in the work of the various church organizations.

She is survived by one son, Frank E. Owen, Parkersburg, W. Va.; three sisters, Mrs. Flora Pomeroy, Mrs. George E. Buxton and Mrs. C. O. Weaver, and one brother, William Allison, all of East Liverpool.

Funeral services will be held at 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon in the home. Rev. Dr. D. W. MacLeod, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, will be in charge. Burial will be made in Riverview cemetery.

Friends may view the body tonight.

FUNERAL SERVICES FOR J. F. MURRAY, CHESTER, WILL BE HELD TOMORROW

Oil Operator, Who Died Saturday, Was Born Near Hamilton, Ontario Canada.

Funeral services for James Fraser Murray, 81 years old, widely known oil operator, will be held at 2:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon in the home, Fifth street, Chester. Rev. W. T. McKee, pastor of the First Presbyterian church of Chester, assisted by Rev. F. C. Roberts, rector of St. Matthew's Episcopal church, Chester, will have charge. Burial will be made in Riverview cemetery, East Liverpool.

Mr. Murray was born in Oxford county, near Hamilton, Ontario, and was the eldest of eight children. He worked on a farm until he was 18 years old when he started into the oil business as a driller. He finally drifted into the Pennsylvania fields and accepted employment at Petroleum Center. Later he engaged in business for himself taking up some leases at Shamburg, Pa., where he went "dead broke" and to use his own words he was "$3,000 worse off than nothing."

He next went to Butler, Pa., where he obtained an interest in a well. This venture also proved a failure. Nothing daunted he bobbed up at St. Joe, Butler county, where he operated, get-

Caldwell Farmer Rockefeller in Oil Game for One Hour

CALDWELL, O., Nov. 9.—For an hour today a Caldwell farmer was a Rockefeller competitor in the oil game—then competition ceased.

Neise Leisure was awakened by a gurgling hissing noise which seemed to come from the basement of his home. He investigated and found pure Pennsylvania crude oil. —worth $2.80 per barrel—oozing into the concrete cellar. He gave one mighty whoop and started bringing barrels to hold the precious fluid.

By the time the barrels arrived the oil had ceased to flow.

An investigation revealed that the Leisure house had been built over on abandoned oil well and that because of poor plugging, some of the oil had found its way into the cellar. Leisure placed some pipes in the hole, so gas could escape and set about making plans to "revive" the well.

AUTO SALESMAN FACES TRIAL FOR DEATH OF TAXI DRIVER

"Accidental Shooting" Defense of Former Football Star.

WIDOW IN COURT

Jurors Will Visit Scene of Tragedy Later in Day.

LISBON, Nov. 9.—The jury in the trial of George Anderson, 43, East Liverpool automobile salesman and former Kenyon college football star, charged with second degree murder in the shooting of Frank R. McLain, 25, East Liverpool taxicab fleet manager, was chosen in common pleas court here at 10:40 o'clock this morning.

Three Women on Jury.

Clarence Fisher, Lisbon.
W. D. Driscoll, Lisbon.
George Ashley, Wellsville.
John Patterson, Elkrun township.
W. T. Speidel, Salem.
E. M. Farmer, Columbiana.
John C. Gaston, Clarkson.
A. P. Boyd, Wellsville.
James Windel, Columbiana.
Etta Mellinger, Leetonia.
Alice Morgan, Wellsville.
Claudia Campbell, Salem.

The jury was accepted by the defense and state after eight prospective veniremen had been challenged and excused.

State's Case Outlined.

After the jurors had been sworn by Judge J. B. Worley, of Cadiz, who is presiding, Prosecutor R. M. Brookes, who, with Attorney Blaine H. Cochran, of East Liverpool, is representing the state, outlined the prosecution's case. He said that the state would prove that the statement, "Oh, my God, I'm shot!" or "My God, I've shot you!" made either by McLain or Anderson at the time of the shooting, would be brought out in the testimony.

Brookes, using his own body as an illustration, pointed out where McLain was shot, with a 45 calibre army automatic revolver after the taxi driver had driven Anderson to the home of the latter's aunt, Miss Elizabeth Anderson, Second and Jackson streets, East Liverpool, and assisted his passenger from the cab to a second floor bedroom in the Anderson house.

The shooting occurred on Saturday night, Oct. 3, McLain dying early Sunday morning in the City hospital.

Claim of Defense.

HONOR HEROES ON TRUCE DAY

Business Will Suspend For Short Period at 11 a. m.

No public ceremonies in observance of Armistice Day will be held in East Liverpool, Wednesday, but fraternal and patriotic organizations plan programs, celebrating the seventh anniversary of the ending of the World war.

Through action of the Retail Mercants' division of the Chamber of Commerce, stores will not close, but at 11 a. m. clerks will stand at attention for two minues in memory of those who made the supreme sacrifice during the war. The same tribute will be paid by children in the public and parochial schools.

Church bells will ring and factory whistles will be sounded for five minutes or longer at the truce hour. Arrangements have also been made to sound the fire sirens in the Diamond and at the corner of Fifth street and Broadway.

The traction companies have agreed to halt all street cars operating within the city limits for two minutes. Business houses have been asked to display flags in the sidewalk sockets or from their store windows.

The Sons of Italy will fire three large bombs from Deidrick's hill at 11 o'clock. They will stage a parade at 2 o'clock and Prof. Alexander's band will give a street concert after the parade. Local veterans' organi-

LAUNCH CAMPAIGN AGAINST RECKLESS AND DRUNKEN DRIVERS AS AUTOMOBILES KILL 12 OHIOANS

With three men lying at the point of death in a Cleveland hospital today, 12 deaths had been recorded over the week-end in traffic accidents in Ohio. As a result of seven fatal accidents in Cleveland a new campaign against reckless and drunken drivers was launched by authorities. The death list included: Seven in Cleveland, one in Warren, one in Toledo, one in Zanesville, one in Dayton and one in Columbus.

A fine snow, freezing upon wind shields as driven by a 50-mile gale, accentuated traffic hazards in Cleveland, officials declared.

CLEVELAND, Nov. 9.—With seven persons dead in greater Cleveland, the result of traffic accidents over the week-end — the heaviest death roll over recorded here—Traffic Commissioner Edward J. Donahue was to ask Safety Director Edwin D. Barry for an immediate addition of 25 more motorcycle policemen to the traffic squad.

Three men were injured this morning when the auto truck in which they were riding to work at the American Steel & Wire company's plant was hit by a freight train at the Independence road crossing.

Their names were not learned. Physicians at the hospital said all three might die.

Escape With Light Fines.

Snow and rain added to the dangers of traffic, accentuated, according to Donahue, by "drunken and reckless driving," on the part of many machine operators.

The death list included:
Miss Evelyn Chertoff, 23.
Mrs. Sophia Wolinski, 23.
Leo Zawicki, 38.
Charles Yesick, 38.
Mrs. Charlotte Edwards, 58.
Mrs. Emelie Van Gastel, 63.
Mrs. Beatrice Johnson, 66.

Greater severity upon the part of judges sitting in traffic court was seen by Fred H. Caley, secretary of the Cleveland Automobile club, as a cure for the mounting casualty list.

"Too many careless, reckless and drunken drivers are let off with light fines," Caley said. "The fear of God must be put into the hearts of these potential murderers."

Some Blame Upon Pedestrians.

Donahue pointed out that completion of the city's automatic traffic signal system would help, but placed some of the blame upon pedestrians, who, in many instances, walk into busy streets without looking for approaching automobiles.

Miss Chertoff, a children's worker at the Jewish center, was fatally injured when she walked into the side of a moving automobile. The driver took her home, where she died. Her skull was fractured.

Mrs. Wolinski was killed when her coupe collided with another machine. Leo Zawicki, her uncle, met death in the same accident. Two men in the other car jumped and fled when the crash came and have not yet been arrested.

Yesek was run down and killed in front of his home.

Mrs. Edwards and Mrs. Van Gesel were pedestrians struck by speeding cars.

A youth of 17 was held for the juvenile authorities today and Mrs. Anna Kernan was dying the result of another traffic accident yesterday. After hitting the woman the boy fled, but was caught by other motorists.

Children Are Victims.

DAYTON, Nov. 9.—Clara May Deis, three years old, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Deis, was killed yesterday afternoon when the automobile in which she was a passenger was struck by a southbound B. & O. passenger train at Woodfield crossing, west of West Carrollton, near here.

Two women, Mrs. Marcella Tate, 22, and Miss Dona Boone, 17, both of Day-

'Sign On Dotted Line,' Says 'Show-Off,' Coming to Ceramic

George Kelly's Comedy, One of Outstanding Successes in New York, Heads List of Ten Best Plays.

Stewart and French, who gave production to George Kelly's, "The Torch-Bearers," are sending George Kelly's transcript of American life, "The Show-Off" to the Ceramic theatre, Thursday evening, Nov. 12.

In Burns Mantle's book, "The Best Plays of 1923-24," a year book of the drama in America which is of interest and value to all thoughtful playgoers, he heads his list of the ten best plays with "The Show-Off," which was also nominated for the Pulitzer Prize.

"The Show-Off was one of the outstanding successes in New York and ran well into its second year at the Playhouse, where many visitors have enjoyed it and returned home with the catch line of the show-off on their lips, "Sign on the dotted line,' and with chuckles of amusement at the ludicrous situations of the play. George Kelly, the author, directed all rehearsals and staged his play with the same care as the New York production received, with the result that it has scored a big success.

There are 'show-offs'—male and female—all around us. George Kelly chose a freight clerk, in the Pennsylvania offices and "the kid from West Philly," with this "sign on the dotted line," his idiotic self sufficiency and vanity makes every man in the audience want to flatten him out and reduce him to his proper equation in the scheme of things as they are.

Their interest is centered in Pa and Ma Fisher and their daughter, and the Fisher home life. It is a transcript of American home life which appeals to all, has delighted hundreds of thousands of playgoers and is a welcome addition to the best theatrical offerings of native drama seen in years.

"Halitosis?" said the man who doesn't read advertisements. "I think he was on one of the debt commissions."—Youngstown Vindicator.

The Story of a Household

Evening always found Mrs. A. nervous and irritable, although there wasn't actually much housework to be done in her small apartment. But she complained that every time she bent over her kitchen table the same old pain in her back seized her, so that it was real agony for her to attend to the simplest household duties. It didn't seem right to be so completely worn when her work was done, and she knew something was wrong. A consultation with a physician solved the problem. Mrs. A. had been suffering from kidney trouble for a long time, just as are many people who suspect it no more than she did. Just a little disorder that could have been overcome long ago was being allowed to develop through ignorance and neglect and was ruining her health.

The treatment was simple and one that the nearest drug store provided. Dr. Pierce's An-uric tablets proved to be the remedy that put Mrs. A. on her feet again and brought her old energy. How sorry she was that she hadn't thought of it long ago! She recommends "An-uric" (kidney-backache) Tablets to all her friends now.

Pity the Weak Skinny Children

Nature's greatest health builder and strength giver is Cod Liver Oil—it's full of vitamines of the first class—everyone knows that.

But pity the poor children—how can they take this nasty, nauseating stuff that invariably upsets their small, delicate stomachs?

Most of them can't and now—thank goodness none of them have to.

For now Cod Liver Oil comes in tasteless sugar coated tablets, that are as easy for the kids to take as candy and they sure do build up the youngsters in double quick time.

So mothers, if any one of your loved ones is frail and peaked or isn't feeling right just ask Mathews Medicine store or any druggist for a box of McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets—60 tablets—60 cents.

One sickly, thin child aged 9 gained 12 pounds in seven months and now plays daily with other children.

Splendid for any run down, weak, skinny, nervous man or woman—thousands of boxes are sold daily—but be sure and ask for McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets—the original and genuine. Try them for 30 days and if you aren't delighted with the improvement your druggist is authorized to hand you back the money you paid for them.

Tells Why He Can Now Eat Hearty

"A letter which I read in the paper about Carter's Little Liver Pills fitted my own case so closely that I could not help trying them and am very happy I did." So writes Mr. Frank J Trumbull of Jersey City, N J., whose letter goes on to say: "I had heard about Carter's Little Liver Pills for years but never knew they helped overcome poor appetite and sour stomach until I read about another man in the same plight who took Carter's with good results. I tried them and can honestly say that they freed me of nasty gas on stomach, so that I can now eat without getting bilious, and they improved my appetite fully 100%. You can rest assured that from now on I will boost Carter's Little Liver Pills whenever I can."

Gulbransen Registering Piano Community Model

Let this Christmas Bring You Happy Hours of Music that You Play Yourself on the

Gulbransen Registering Piano

UNTIL the introduction of the Gulbransen Registering Piano, only those who had studied and practiced for years could play the kind of music they or their friends could enjoy.

Now anyone without previous musical training can play with all the expression of a trained pianist who plays by hand.

You can play a piano solo by roll on the Gulbransen Registering Piano equal to hand-playing—not mechanically as on ordinary player pianos—but with your own interpretation—your personal touch.

You can accompany singers on this piano easily and inspiringly with perfect control of the keys, even though you may not know one note from another.

You may have a talent for music that has never been developed. When you play this responsive instrument for the first time you will discover a talent that will bring you many happy hours of music if you have a Gulbransen Piano in your home.

Come in and play a few rolls of the kind of music you like. You'll be surprised at the musical talent you possess even though you have never had any musical training, for you can play this instrument by roll with expression—just like hand playing.

DRY OFFICERS ARREST FOUR

Cases Will be Tried in Salem Mayor's Court.

Charged with violation of prohibition laws, three men and one woman, all Italians, were arrested here Saturday afternoon by a squad of enforcement agents on warrants issued from the court of Mayor George Russell, of Salem.

Mrs. Modesta Lozzo, 29 Third street; Rocco Corbisella, 307, Main street; and Tony Venziale, 1531 Main street were taken before the Salem court on charges of possessing intoxicating liquor.

Charles Prezzia, 1230 Commerce street, was charged with manufacturing intoxicating liquor.

Mrs. Lozzo, Corbisella and Venziale were released on bonds, respectively, of $500. Prezzia was released under bond of $2,000.

The enforcement officers, known as "inspectors from the office of State Prohibition Director B. F. McDonald, of Columbus,' entered the city shortly after noon, it is said, and visited a number of places. Only four arrests were made, however.

At Mrs. Modesta Lozzo's place, the officers are alleged to have found two quarts of whiskey and 300 bottles of beer. The beer, it is said, was secreted beneath the flooring.

At Carbisella's, the raiders found a quart of whisky, and it is claimed, a pint bottle of liquor and a whisky glass in Carbisella's coat pocket.

A 15-gallon still, in operation, it is alleged, was found at Charles Prezzia's. In addition, the officers confiscated four barrels of mash and eight gallons liquor.

Two bottles of whisky were said to have been found at Tony Venziale's.

The quartet was taken to Salem where they posted bond. No definite date was set by Mayor Russell for hearings.

The enforcement officers who conducted the raid have been working in and around the northern part of Columbiana county during the past several weeks.

A Sensible Talk to Girls, Women

DR. CALDWELL AT AGE 83

To Dr. W. B. Caldwell, of Monticello, Ill., a practicing physician for 47 years, it seemed cruel that so many constipated infants and children had to be kept constantly "stirred up" and half sick by taking cathartic pills, tablets, salts, calomel and nasty oils.

While he knew that constipation was the cause of nearly all children's little ills, he did not believe that a sickening "purge" or "physic" every little while was necessary.

In Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin he discovered a laxative which regulates the bowels. A single dose will establish natural, healthy bowel movement for weeks at a time, even if the child was chronically constipated. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin not only causes a gentle, easy bowel movement but, best of all, it is often months before another dose is necessary. Besides, it is absolutely harmless, and so pleasant that even a cross, feverish, bilious, sick child gladly takes it.

HIGHS LOSE AT SALEM, 19 TO 0

Playing through an incessant downpour of rain at Reilly Field, Salem, Saturday afternoon, Wellsville high school gridders bowed to the Red and Black, 19 to 0, on a slimy, mud covered gridiron.

The light Wellsville eleven was unable to withstand the attack of the north county combine and three touchdowns were registered, two by Coffee and one by Tackle Older, who, in the final quarter, was brought back from the line to carry the ball.

Despite various handicaps with which they were beset, the Orange and Black battled every minute of the contest in a courageous attempt to score, but their efforts were unavailing.

PLAN ARMISTICE DAY PROGRAM

In observance of the anniversary of Armistice day, Wellsville post No. 70, American Legion, will carry out a program on Wednesday evening at the Liberty theatre here.

A special Armistice day address will be delivered by Rev. Robert W. Ustick, pastor of the First United Presbyterian church.

Rev. Ustick's address will be given during the intermission between exhibitions of a special moving picture obtained by the legion for the occasion. The picture is entitled "The Whipping Block" and depicts the experience of an ex-service man in a Louisiana lumber camp where prison labor is used.

Ross Hearing Today.

Charged with keeping a place where gambling is permitted, Jim Ross was arrested Saturday night by local police, near Twelfth and Commerce streets. He is scheduled for a hearing before Mayor James Barnes this afternoon.

Guard Against "Flu" With Musterole

Musterole relives the congestion and stimulates circulation. It has all the good qualities of the old-fashioned mustard plaster without the blister.

Rub it on with your finger-tips. First you feel a warm tingle as the healing ointment penetrates the pores, then a soothing, cooling sensation and quick relief. Have Musterole handy for emergency use. It may prevent serious illness.

To Mothers: Musterole is also made in milder form for babies and small children. Ask for Children's Musterole.

Russia In The League?

A new foreign policy has been launched by the Russian Soviet government, says an American correspondent at Berlin. According to his information, supported by the attitude of a leading Russian newspaper, Russia is making a complete about-face and, after having scorned and fought the league of nations, is now willing to join it.

Locarno, he says, opened the eyes of the Soviet leaders—as it did, for that matter, of the rest of the world. The results of that conference are regarded as evidence of a sincere desire for peace, "especially in England, where the workers will no longer tolerate war." Europe wants peace, say the Russian Communists, if only for economic reasons, and they feel that "they cannot stay out of a club of peaceful nations without hurting themselves." So if the Locarno pact is ratified, and Germany becomes a member of the league, Russia may follow soon.

Would Bolshevist-Soviet-Communist Russia be welcomed as Germany is? That is hard to say. There will doubtless be opposition to her by nations that fear Communist propaganda in the guise of league activity. Others will argue that application for membership in the league means that Russia herself is eager for peace.

Certainly there can be no assured peace in Europe, even after Locarno, as long as Russia remains an outcast, at swords' points with the other powers. If she is not within the league, an understanding and a workable arrangement will have to be made with Russia som...ow.

Compulsory Voting

Now Australia is going to have an election, and with an unusual condition. For once, perhaps, the voting itself will be more interesting than the people and the things voted for. Australia has a new law which voting is compulsory. Stay-aways will go to jail, unless they can furnish a mighty good reason for their absence from the polls.

A half-hearted effort of this sort was made some time ago, with indifferent results. But now there is a new law with teeth in it.

We shall see what we shall see, and the result may help in working out our own voting problem. There are plenty of good citizens in this country ready to demand a similar law. Others will be inclined in the future, as in the past, to question whether it pays to drive citizens to the polls—whether an unwilling and uninterested voter is any better than no voter—whether it isn't well to keep voting a privilege rather than a forced duty—whether it isn't all right, everything considered, that those who won't take the trouble to help govern should be governed by those who will.

Facts Or Prejudice

During the days preceding the recent election Miss Belle Sherwin, president of the National League of Women Voters, urged citizens to cast their ballots "guided by facts, not hearsay or propaganda." It was such excellent advice and so well applicable to other matters than voting that it is worth repeating even though the election is over.

Miss Sherwin believes that sound self-education is necessary to make democracy successful. For that end, too, the habit of accepting hearsay evidence must be overcome. The trustworthiness of sources of information should be proved. People need to develop an appetite for facts and for an understanding of them.

Certainly such guidance would work wonders in the practice of citizenship. It would also work wonders in other branches of living. The search for an understanding of facts would go far toward developing fine tolerance. It would help to eliminate prejudices and mistakes and cruelty. Facts alone are not all-powerful, but the honest search for them is very enlightening and broadening.

Local Teacher Exchange

The exchange of teachers and professors between countries is becoming more common and is proving of definite value in promoting international understanding and educational progress. The president of the Educational Institute of Scotland, finding such exchange very useful, suggests that the same plan be applied at home. That is, she would have an exchange of city and rural teachers. She believes this would create sympathy for each other's point of view and would develop a more broad-minded outlook on the part of both types of teachers.

It is an interesting suggestion. To make it work at all successfully, however, in this country, at least, the teaching standards of the two sections would have to be harmonized. At present, in many of our rural communities, the requirements and qualifications of teachers are placed too low. Young men and women of little education and no special preparation are frequently allowed to teach, while in some of the cities college or normal training, or both, are required.

It would be an excellent thing if teaching standards throughout the country could all be brought up to the highest level now established, one which includes requirements of personality as well as pedagogical training. This would mean making salary scales more nearly uniform, too, but that should mean progress.

The circus man with double joints and rubber bones should be kept off the streets. A pedestrian like that isn't fair to drivers.

NEW YORK DAYBYDAY

By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Nov. 9. — Diary of a modern Samuel Pepys: Up to walk my dog and Jay Brennan, the comic, told of meeting an old character actress who said she was tired of New York. He told her she might like it better after living here a while. Then he asked her how long she had been in town. She said 43 years.

Hence to breakfast with R. Long and Marshall Neilan, but they had gone, and so home, but the people next door so noisy I could not labor, what with their screeching and talking machine, but I suffered no anger soever.

In the evening to sit with a friend brought to bed of a fever, and he told of a scurvy turn he did me once and had it not failed it would have wrought havoc not only to myself but innocent people. So to walk home in a great wonder and to bed.

Old ladies who play character parts in the theatre seem to be from another world. They recall the poke-bonneted, black satin ladies of the 90's. They appear attuned to martyrdom and a little defeated by sacrifices. They visit the sick and cheer the disconsolate and live alone in shabby boarding houses.

When they are not engaged they make the rounds of agencies and appear far happier than younger applicants. There are many past 60 who have devoted their lives to the stage and never had more than a few lines to speak.

Top salary for them is $50 a week. They receive a polite gallantry from their fellows, but they rarely become a part of the real camaraderie of the stage. At the season's height there are only about 12 playing on Broadway while at least 200 look for work.

There is a character actress whose three sons are chorus men. She keeps house for them and now and then plays short engagements. Her husband is said to be a middle west banker and wanted his sons to follow banking careers, but they preferred to follow their mother's profession and separation followed.

Wardrobe women are usually former small-part actresses. They become buxom, white-haired, motherly souls who look out for the gay young folk of the stage. Sometimes they preside over the domicile of a group of chorus girls and act as mothers when the Johns become too brash.

Two show girls have decided if their boy friends want to be seen in public with them they must pay for it. Gaby Deslys did the same thing years ago when she was the talk of Paris, but her rate was much higher. The New York girls are said—although I have not seen them—to have printed cards with the following tariff:

Luncheon $10.
Dinner $15.
Midnight supper club $15.

Men actually pay for this privilege. They have bright and fair companionship and probably the thrill of thinking themselves men about town.

A most discouraging job is that of the rubberneck wagon ballyhoo on Broadway. He must salvage patronage out of the hurrying throngs, and despite his constant pleadings they pass by for hours. He never loses hope, and somehow he fills the car. One never sees a rubberneck wagon starting with a half load. The investment in sightseeing wagons represent thousands of dollars and they make money, but it seems a precarious business. Nobody apparently goes on one of the trips of their own volition. They must be talked into it.

HASKIN'S LETTER

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN

New Columbus Memorial.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9.—The Pan American Union recently made two announcements, which coming on the heels of the unveiling of San Martin's statue, indicate that this organization and interests allied with it are making progress in their effort to link the Americans with friendship. These announcements were that there would be erected at Santo Domingo City, capital of the Dominician Republic, a memorial to Christopher Columbus, who, according to most present-day authorities is buried there, and that the Dominician Republic soon would present a statue of Juan Pablo Duarte, its George Washington, to the Hall of Heroes in the Pan American building here. The former announcement will, no doubt, be of great interest to Americans.

The memorial to Columbus will be a unique affair. It will be a lighthouse. This Faro de Colon—Light of Columbus—will be one of the highest lighthouses in the world. It will look out from Santo Domingo City at the ships passing to and from the Panama Canal, and its flashes, arranged in Morse code, will spell out Colon.

The type of light that will be used will be an innovation in lighthouse beacons. It is called the Neon Light, made possible by new colors discovered at the end of the spectrum. It is of reddish yellow color and is very penetrating, being plainly discernible in heavy fogs. It is cheap and is in use along the London-Paris airway. It can be operated on one-fourth the power needed for an ordinary electric light of the same size.

The lighthouse will be a combination. It is planned to make it a shrine to Columbus and there will be a museum of Columbus relics in it. Likewise there will be a temple dedicated to him and his mausoleum will be removed from its present resting place—the Cathedral at Santo Domingo City where Durate is also buried—and placed there.

The idea of a lighthouse memorial to the First Admiral originated in the mind of an American, William E. Pulliam, reeciver general of the Dominican republic. He broached the subject to the people of that nation and reecived an enthusiastic response.

A committee was formed, made up of Dominicans, which set out on a campaign to bring about the realization of the project. All the countries of the Americas were responsive, and even European nations welcomed the idea. There is now a working organization in Santo Domingo city which is making steady progress toward the completion of plans for the memorial. A recent message from Cuba states that cooperation from that country may be counted on, while the Pan American congress, sitting at Santiago de Chile, May 7, 1925, lent its indorsement. When the fundamental plans of organization and financing are completed an architects' competition will be held, and a design selected.

The burial place of Columbus was long a subject of controversy, but of late years it has been established almost beyond doubt that the cathedral of Santo Domingo city houses his bones.

Columbus died in Valladolid, Spain, in the year 1506. In 1513 his body was removed to Seville, where it remained for more than 20 years. In 1537, however, in accordance with his expressed wishes it was transferred to Santo Domingo city and laid in the cathedral, which had been erected in 1514 at the imperial order of Ferdinand and Isabella, and is one of the most important religious buildings in the Western Hemisphere today. Columbus was buried beside the bodies of his son and brother.

In 1795 Spain, by treaty, ceded the island of Santo Domingo—the modern Haiti and the Dominican republic—to France. The Spanish officer in charge of the island decided that it would be unworthy of his country and himself to leave the casket of one so illustrious in the service of Spain in foreign hands, so he ordered it removed to Havana. This was done with great solemnity and ceremony, or, rather, what was believed to be the casket of Columbus was removed.

In 1877 the cathedral, being in need of repair, was being worked over by a group of workmen. There had been vague rumors in Santo Domingo city that Columbus' body was still in the cathedral and that it was that of his son Diego which had been removed to Havana, but the people had paid no attention to them. When, however, these workmen, digging in the ancient walls, ran on to forgotten doors and half-buried compartments, and reported the discovery of a casket, these rumors gained credence. And later, when, in the presence of the archbishop and an august group of foreign dignitaries and representatives, this casket was unearthed and the words First Admiral found inscribed upon it, the rumors became fact and with salutes of cannon and many ceremonies the Dominican republic hailed the discovery of the tomb of the discoverer of America.

Then followed years of rest for the Genoan in the cathedral built by the monarchs he served. His mausoleum is in it now, but what is considered to be a more distinguishing memorial to him will house it soon.

Pan American Heroes.

The Hall of Heroes in the Pan American Union building is situated in the west corridor on the second floor and it is planned to have a bust of each national hero in the Western Hemisphere deposited there. Eucador, Paraguay, and Nicaragua will, after the presentation of Durate's image, be the only ones unrepresented. Eucador's bust is selected, but has not arrived yet.

Durate is immortal in Dominican history. It was he who named the republic. It was he who founded the famous Trinity which resulted in the Endless Chain, an organization which started the Spanish inhabitants of Santo Domingo island toward independence. Like so many men who give themselves to a public cause, he became a martyr to his people and was exiled in 1844. He died in Venezuela in 1884 and his body subsequently was brought back to the Dominican republic and placed in the cathedral at Santo Domingo city, where is has reposed ever since.

The Hall of Heroes is a shrine of Pan American Friendship. The Columbus memorial, sponsored and supported so enthusiastically by the Pan American Union is another evidence of the solidarity of this friendship. The two together are further evidence that this friendship, already puissant, is growing stronger.

Kansas City Doctor Invents New Truss

New Discovery Heals Rupture Without an Operation.

A new discovery which, experts agree, has no equal for curative effects in all rupture cases, is the latest accomplishment of the well-known Hernia Specialist. Dr. Andrew Kaiser, 4848 Koch Bldg., Kansas City, Mo. The extraordinary success of this new method proves that it holds and heals a rupture. It weighs only a few ounces. Has no hard gouging pads, no elastic belt, no leg straps, no cruel steel bands, and is as comfortable as a light garment. It has enabled hundreds of persons to throw away trusses and declare their rupture absolutely healed. Many of these had serious double ruptures, from which they had suffered for years. It is Dr. Kaiser's ambition to have every ruptured person enjoy the quick relief, comfort and healing power of his discovery, and he will send it on free trial to any reader of The Review-Tribune who writes him. He wants one person in each neighborhood to whom he can refer. If you wish to be rid of rupture for good, without an operation, take advantage of the doctor's free offer. Write him today. BETTER THAN CALOMEL

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—the substitute for calomel—are a mild but sure laxative, and their effect on the liver is almost instantaneous. These little olive-colored tablets are the result of Dr. Edwards' determination not to treat liver and bowel complaints with calomel.

The pleasant little tablets do the good that calomel does, but have no bad after effects. They don't injure the teeth like strong liquids or calomel. They take hold of the trouble and quickly correct it. Why cure the liver at the expense of the teeth? Calomel sometimes plays havoc with the gums. So do strong liquids. It is best not to take calomel. Let Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets take its place.

COL. MITCHELL OUTLINES HIS DEFENSE PLANS

Faces Task of Proving Truth of Criticisms.

TRIAL RESUMED

Representative Reid Says he Will Produce Evidence.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9.—After thundering new accusations of incompetency against the war and navy departments for their conduct of the air services, Col. William Mitchell began at noon today the effort of trying to prove, through witnesses, that his charges of "almost treasonable administration and criminal negligence," against these departments, were justified.

One of the fresh accusations was that the war department had permitted an Austro-German owned flying organization to set up a commercial flying business "within striking distance of the Panama Canal Zone."

The first defense witness called by Mitchell was Brig. Gen. Amos A. Fries, head of the chemical warfare service.

Announcement of the defense plan of action was made by Representative Frank R. Reid, (R.) of Illinois chief of Mitchell's counsel as soon as court convened.

"I conceive it my duty,' said Reid, "in the interests of justice and in the proper presentation of the defense of the accused, to produce direct and positive evidence which will not only convince Col. Mitchell's accusers of their error but remove much ignorance by a revelation of the truth."

Reid declared the defense would prove the War and Navy departments were guilty of "An almost treasonable administration of aviation."

Then Reid announced he was considering a request for contempt citations against the acting heads of the war department for their issuing press reports on the Mitchell trial.

Coroner's Verdict Is Handed Down in J. W. Reed Death

Funeral services for John W. Reed, 68 years old, who was fatally injured when run down by a Y. & O. interurban car at the Claybourne avenue crossing Saturday, will be held at 1:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon at the home in Dresden avenue. Rev. W. H. Clark, pastor of the Emmanuel Presbyterian church, will have charge. Interment will be made in Riverview cemetery.

Coroner J. M. Van Fossan of East Palestine, who conducted an inquest, returned a verdict that "death was caused by being struck by an electric car on the Youngstown and Ohio River line."

An average of less than one in twenty girls of Germany bob their hair.

In that interesting way international hatred was built up.

The British are excited about General Charteris' story, not that it isn't true, but because he ought not to tell. However, when you fight you fight, and to fight well you must hate. Everything is fair in war from poison gas to lying. The thing is to win.

The American tariff on sugar is ruining Cuba, a friendly neighbor to which we owe at least friendship and decent treatment.

Cuba's commercial balance of trade with the United States has fallen in the last year from $167,000,000 to $85,000,000.

Cuba, with commercial generosity, continues buying in our markets while we with our cut-throat sugar tariff are doing all we can to strangle the prosperity of Cuba.

The tax we inflict on Cuban sugar amounts to more than 100 per cent.

One hundred and seven pounds of raw sugar make 100 pounds of granulated sugar. It costs about 1 cent a pound to make raw sugar into white sugar. The Cugan sugar grower after paying freight, lighterage, warehouse, railway tax on industrial process and other costs gets less than one-half a cent a pound for the raw sugar refined and retailed here at 6 cents.

Under such conditions the Cuban grower cannot live. Leaving out any question of decency it is against the interest of this country to destroy Cuba's sugar industry. A little while ago Americans were eagerly buying for $25 a bag of sugar that can be bought now for $5 to $6.

Unless housewives want to see the price of sugar go up again they will do well to lay in a supply and help get rid of the present surplus.

Gen. Felix Agnus, a brave, useful fighter in the army and in journalism, is dead in Baltimore at the age of 86. He fought for France, his native land, and in the army of Garibaldi. For half a century or more he lived in the United States, the best type of patriotic American citizen. And he retained the French qualities with which he was born and of which he was proud, retaining also as he should, his deep love for France.

Gen. Agnus worked and fought for the right as long as there was any life in him. He is gone now to the home of good workers and good fighters.

China's thickly populated Shantung province was flooded at the rate of 40,000 cubic feet a second because of two breaks in the dikes of the Yellow river.

That great river is called "China's sorrow," because of the calamities it inflicts, and has made 2,000,000 homeless this time.

One thousand villages are inundated.

What with Yellow river, pestilence, bandits, Christian and Confucian generals fighting, European nations interfering, taxing and bullying, you need not envy the poor Chinese.

Some scientist observes that the human race talks too much about pain and too little about "absence of pain."

We think too much of a pain or an ache, too little of the fact that of eighteen hundred million people on earth, about seventeen hundred million live free of pain and think nothing about it.

Forty-eight states of this nation do not half appreciate their freedom from the trouble of China and a hundred other countries.

In the Mexican state of Tobasco five Catholic priests are arrested because they refused to marry. The state of Tobasco has passed a law forbidding priests of any denomination to perform religious duties until they are married.

This is kind of stupid intolerance that carries its own punishment and its own failure within itself. It is as idiotic as it would be to pass a law forbidding any clergyman to officiate unless he were a bachelor. Such laws don't last long.

Attorney Hollis E. Grosshans, of Youngstown, and Attorney George T. Farrell, of Lisbon, has been retained by Anderson, made the opening statement for the defense.

He declared "accidental shooting" would be the defense. "Our claim in the whole matter, and all the circumstances we will show you, will convince you that the shooting was accidental," said Grosshans.

The defense counsel than declared that McLain, the victim of the shooting, and Anderson were close friends. He said Anderson had sold McLain a taxicab. He added there had been no trouble between them and no words had been exchanged on the night of the shooting.

Hear Testimony Tomorrow.

Jesse McLain, 70, father of the slain man, as well as the taxicab fleet manager's widow, Mildred, 23, and her son, Jesse R., three years old, were in the courtroom when the trial began. The elder McLain held his grandson on his knee.

Court adjourned at 11:30 a. m., to permit the jurors to go to lunch. At 12:30 p. m., the jurors, accompanied counsel for the state and defense and Sheriff George Wright, left Lisbon for East Liverpool, where they will visit the scene of the shooting.

After the East Liverpool trip, the jurors will be excused until 9:30 o'clock tomorrow morning, when the taking of testimony will begin.

ting a good production of oil and gas, but in the end he again lost money. He once more returned to working by the day and for several years he was employed at Bradford, Pa.; Allentown, N. Y.; Garfield, Billtown and Butler, Pa. Once more he purchased a string of tools and engaged in contracting. The future began to look rosy, but he invested his earnings in property and shortly lost everything.

Never Discouraged

Despite the failure which seemed to pursue him, Mr. Murray never lost heart, and in 1900, with an old string of tools, he went to Wellsville, O., where he did some contracting. He continued at this for one year, but the venture proved a losing proposition. He next went to New Cumberland, W. Va., where he drilled eight wells for the Mack Brick company. He then took up 275 acres of leases of oil and gas property in Hancock county, W. Va., and Beaver county, Pa. After obtaining the property he was unable to secure capital in the vicinity. He finally associated himself with Mark Miller, of Sistersville, W. Va., with whom he commenced operation and drilling and they were successful from the start. They sank 28 wells before getting a dry hole in the Carson fields. Many of these wells are still large producers.

Mr. Murray attributed his success to hard work and sticking to it and by making difficulties stepping stones to achievements. His advice often given to young men was: "Be truthful in all your dealings, have good associates, get all the education you can, save your money until you get an opportunity for investment, and do not allow failure to discourage you." He never failed to give much of the credit for his success to his wife who stood by him in the darkest hours of his adversity, buoying him up with cheery words, and thus inspired him to struggle on until prosperity supplanted blasted hopes. His home in Chester is one of the finest in the state.

Mrs. William Roby Is Charged With Beating Stepson

Mrs. William Roby, Dresden avenue, bound over to the grand jury by Justice of the Peace P. V. Mackall, upon a charge of cruelty to a child, is at liberty today under $500 bond.

Mrs. Roby is alleged to have severely beaten her 10-year-old step-son, Victory Roby, with a heavy stick, and was arrested upon information furnished by the child's mother, Mrs. Minnie McKinnon, of Pennsylvania avenue, East End.

Mrs. McKinnon caused the arrest of the step-mother last week, but she denied the charge and entered a plea of not guilty. She was represented by Attorney Ben L. Bennett.

Parents of the child were divorced several years ago, but both have been married since then. Custody of the two children was given the father when the decree was granted. The child is now in the care of his mother. An elder brother, aged about 12 years, was committed to the Fairmont Children's home at Alliance by his father and step-mother about two months ago.

MARINE SHOT TO DEATH WHEN HE REFUSES TO "GET UP IN MORNING"

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9.—There is an old army song about how "I Hate to Get Up in the Morning."

Private John Ban, 20, of the Marines, was thinking about it as he lay in bed in the barracks yesterday. It was Sunday morning.

"Everybody out," snapped Corp. John J. Kulick. He was corporal of the guard. The last note of reveille had floated away in the misty rain.

Ban didn't stir.

"You, too," barked the corporal.

He backed away. Out came his service revolver. A shot. Ban crumpled up on the floor.

He died later in the naval hospital. Corporal Kulick was under arrest today and a board of officers were convened to investigate.

Both marines were from New Jersey—Ban from New Brunswick, and Kulick from Passaic.

Alienists Will be Called

His story, told in his own simple language, is expected by defense counsel to rekindle the great wave of sympathy that swept the court room Saturday as the old doctor's second child, Mrs. Frances Blazer Bishop, revealed to a weeping jury the "mother-like devotion" that Dr. Blazer had lavished upon the misshapen helpless Hazel.

Blazer will be followed on the witness stand, according to Attorney Mowry, by Dr. Cyrus Pershing, a Denver alienist, and Dr. D. E. Phillips, professor of psychology at Denver university. To them will be propounded a 4,000-word hypothetical question covering all the evidence in the record to date and upon which their expert opinion of the "temporary insanity" of the defendant will be based.

The prosecution let it be known today that they were prepared to call in rebuttal Dr. Edward Delehanty and Dr. George A. Molden, both of Denver and widely known in the west, as alienists to combat the temporary insanity plea. Doctors Delehanty and Moleen have been regular attendants at the trial since it's opening.

Senate Jury

Raise New Issue.

In expressing their opinions about Colorado's sensational murder case, the senatorial jurors indicated the trial has raised an issue which some day may be carried to the floors of congress. This is the question whether a state or national agency should be created to destroy human derelicts at birth. One juror, Senator Frazier, said he believed some authority should be established to determine this weighty problem.

Those senators, voting for a conviction, contended the armless, legless, deaf and dumb idiot, Hazel Blazer, was still a human being, to kill such an unfortunate after deliberation premediation, they held, was as criminal as to kill anyone else.

The other jurors, either voting for acquittal or for the insanity plea, said circumstances of the Blazer case did not justify punishment of the father as a murderer. Rather, they said, such a victim of circumstances should be placed in an asylum for his few remaining days.

Opinions of Senatorial Jurors.

The opinion of the senatorial jurors were as follows:

Senator Warren, former governor of Wyoming, and dean of congess: "If Dr. Blazer killed his daughter deliberately and with premeditation, as indicated in press reports, he ought to be hung for murder."

Senator Walsh, noted Teapot Dome prosecutor, and a famous constitutional lawyer: "I cannot justify murder, whatever the circumstances may be. It took Dr. Blazer too long—32 years—to decide it was his duty to take his daughter's life. Once we tolerate that sort of thing, there is no telling where to draw the line or what degree of deformity there should be to make the act of murder justifiable or even excusable. One easily recalls many brilliant minds which would have been lost to the world had not the wisdom of men or the Creator himself set the seal of condemnation on murder generally."

Senator Goff, former assistant attorney general and once a prosecuting attorney in Wisconsin: "It is not so much the fact that a physical body was destroyed as that opportunity was denied to a human soul. I would vote for conviction."

Senator Bayard's Viewpoint.

Senator Bayard, one of Delaware's greatest lawyers and father of five children: "We all recall families who have had to bear the burden of caring for crippled children. If I found that Dr. Blazer killed his daughter deliberately, as indicated in newspaper reports, I would vote that he be punished according to law. Otherwise you would be giving a man the right to take human life at his own inclination."

Senator Frazier, former governor of North Dakota, farmer and father of five children: "While I don't approve of such an action generally, I think there ought to be a state of government authority to care for such unfortunates. In the Blazer case, I think he ought to be acquitted under the circumstances."

Believes Father Insane

Senator "A", mid-western Republican, famous as a liberal and father of three daughters: "I would vote to acquit the father. Its a really serious question because there are times when death comes as a blessing. I don't think though that I would vote for a law to put such unfortunates out of their misery, because there would be no way to prevent its abuse."

Senator Wheeler, noted as a prosecutor and father of six children: "From what I have read of the Blazer case in newspaper reports, I believe the father is insane and should be confined in an asylum."

Senator Harris, former banker and father of one daughter: "A father who could murder his daughter is either depraved or insane. He should either be hung or committed to an asylum. In the Blazer case, I think newspaper reports indicate the father is insane."

Blind Senator's Statement.

Senator McMaster, former Governor of South Dakota, once a farmer: "The frightful mental ordeal undergone by the father in caring for his daughter all these years. In my judgment, rendered his mind unbalanced, I should adjudge him insane."

Senator Schall, criminal lawyer and himself blinded by an electric shock: "The action of Dr. Blazer itself indicates what the verdict should be. He is insane and should be sent to an asylum."

Senator "B," a national leader in independent thought and formerly one of the greatest criminal prosecutors in the west: "If people's lives are to be taken because they are not believed to have a soul, it would be better to let the state supervise the destruction. From press reports of the Blazer case, I should say the father is insane and would so vote if I were on his jury."

REPORTS FROM STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, Nov. 9.—Speculative tendencies in the stock market were reversed in the early trading today and the motor and specialty stocks were thrown on the market in large volume, resulting in the most serious decline in prices in a month or more. Saturday's reactionary closing may have invited a more general desire to take profits, in the Wall Street view, but certainly there was little or no professional support for the speculative favorites which were boomed by the pools in recent weeks.

Dupont declined 11 points to 250 in the first period, but most sales were made 4 or 5 p3oints above the opening price. General Motors sold down from 147 to 142; Hudson from 129 to 123; and numerous industrial, copper and utility stocks which enjoyed the boom last week, contracted 2 to 4 points in market value. United States Steel at 135½ showed a loss of about 4 points from last Friday's high. General Electric at 324 was down 12 points and Dupont at 250 down 20 points from the high of last week, in Wall Street's view the reaction was somewhat overdue, particularly in high priced speculative stocks.

The oil stocks and a few of the rails and industrials supplied whatever stability the market exhibited to this period.

Get $73,000 in Stocks and Bonds at Rochester, N. Y.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Nov. 9.—Cracksmen robbed the office safe of the Puritan Soap company of $73,000 in stocks and bonds during the night, it was discovered today. The stock, valued at $70,000, comprised the entire capitalization of the firm.

Forcing a cellar window to gain entrance, the thieves had little difficulty in breaking open the safe. The securities had been transferred to the office from a safe deposit vault Friday.

The securities were non-negotiable.

STOLEN TOURING CAR RECOVERED

A Chevrolet touring car, owned by George McGraw, of Maplewood, stolen here Sept. 23, was recovered in Warren, Sunday, according to work received by the police today. McGraw will go to Warren to take charge of the car.

A Chevrolet roadster, belonging to Joseph Lawton of Montgomery avenue, was stolen while parked near the corner of Fifth and Jackson streets, Sunday evening, while Lewton was attending services in the First Methodist Episcopal church. This is the second time that this machine has been stolen in recent months.

Bandits Hold Up Kansas City Hotel; Flee With $5,000

MAN IS HURT IN AUTO CRASH

Brady Larcombe is Suffering From Fractured Skull.

Brady Larcombe, teamster for the D. E. McNicol pottery, is in the City hospital suffering from a fractured skull and injuries to his shoulder and side, as a result of an automobile accident near Silver's switch on the Wellsville-East Liverpool road at 2:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon. His condition is believed to be serious.

Larcombe, who resides in Boyce street, East End, was returning from Wellsville with a party of friends yesterday afternoon when his machine swerved from the road and struck a telephone pole. He was thrown from the car to the street. None of the other occupants of the car was injured.

He was taken to the hospital in another machine where Dr. R. J. Marshall attended him. The automobile, which was badly damaged, was brought here by the McElravy wrecker.

Larcombe was street commissioner for approximately four years during the administration of ex-Mayor J. S. Wilson. He is a brother of Councilman James Larcombe of Riverview street.

John W. Wyman Dead

Louis Bell, during a dispute with Bell over a real estate transaction. Ashton was acting the role of peacemaker when Marlatt is alleged to have opened fire, shooting him through the heart.

Shot By Marlatt.

The murderer barricaded himself in his home and refused to surrender to Sheriff Wyman. The sheriff went to Marlatt's bedroom and while he was forcing the door which had been locked, Marlatt pressed the barrel of his 32-caliber gun against Wyman's right breast and fired. The bullet passed through his overcoat, under coat, vest on a note book, which Wyman carried with him, and struck one of his ribs, inflicting only a flesh wound.

Marlatt was subdued and taken to Lisbon and later sentenced to life imprisonment in the Ohio state penitentiary. He died a few years ago while a prisoner in the institution.

Member of M. E. Church.

Mr. Wyman was one of five children. One brother, Decatur S., was killed during the Civil War. Another brother and a sister, have since died, leaving but one other brother, Samuel E. Wyman, who resides in Redlands, Cal.

The deceased first married Miss Harriet B. Armstrong, of Pennsylvania. To this union two children, Mrs. J. R. Shawke and George Edward Wyman, both of this city, were born. She died in 1903. About 14 years ago, Mr. Wyman married Mrs. Louise Fluno, sister of his first wife, who survives him, together with his two children.

He was a member of Riddle Lodge No. 315, A. F. and A. m., Junior Order of United American Mechanics, the subordinate, encampment and uniformed lodges of the Odd Fellows of this city and the Rechabites. He also was a member of the First Methodist Episcopal church of this city, having joined the church when he was 18 years of age.

DELINQUENT LISTS SENT TO SHERIFFS

State Auditor John C. Bond said today that delinquent lists for real estate taxes due in 1923 had been mailed to all the sheriffs. All property thus reported delinquent will be advertised for sale, the law requiring four weeks. The day sale must be a court day—that is, a day set for the opening of county court, circuit court or special court. The sales will take place at different times in different counties and will be at intervals from the middle of December until along in January.

WARNING ISSUED BY DRY OFFICER

Druggists of West Virginia and other merchants have been warned by U. S. prohibition enforcement officers, acting under instructions from J. H. Gadd, advisor to Administrator Fullweller of the Seventh district, that it is unlawful to display, offer to keep for sale malt and hops, preparations commonly used in the manufacture of what is known as "home brew."

In a letter written by Mr. Gadd he states:

"For your information I desire to quote you Section 18 of the National Prohibition Act which reads as follows:

" 'It shall be unlawful to advertise, manufacture, sell or possess for sale any utensil, contrivance, machine, preparation, compound, tablet, substance formula direction, or recipe advertised resigned or intended for use in the unlawful manufacture of intoxicating liquor.

"It is a matter of common knowledge that malt and hops are designed and intended for use in the unlawful manufacture of intoxicating liquor, and you will keep in mind the phrase, 'intoxicating liquor' embraces and includes any preparation containing one-half of 1 per cent, or more, of alcohol by volume, and which is fit for beverage purposes. Therefore, dealers, merchants or druggists who advertise the same for sale are violating the section just quoted."

A THREE DAYS' COUGH IS YOUR DANGER SIGNAL

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Company, Atlanta, Ga. (adv.)

CHESTER HIGH JOLTS WEIRTON

Defeat County Rivals, Coach Wild's Gridders Score 19-0.

Chester high school eleven blasted Weirton's hopes for the county gridiron championship here Saturday by soundly trouncing the Steel City squad here by a score of 19-0. Despite the inclement weather, a large crowd attended.

The victory of the locals, which was scored on a watersoaked field and in the face of a steady downpour of rain came as a surprise to the dopesters who had figured in a triumph for Weirton based on the showing made by the team in previous games this season. The dope went far astray as Chester outplayed their opponents the greater part of the game and the result left no doubt as to which was the best team.

Chester scored touchdowns in the first, third and final periods. The first two were made possible by the forward passing of Bartley and Campbell. The final one was made on a line plunge by Shaw. Chester registered 12 first downs, while eight were recorded by Weirton. Chester completed three of five forward passes while Weirton failed in seven attempts at aerial gains. Weirton played their best football in the first half, being completely outclassed in the second period by Coach Wild's charges.

Campbell's playing at quarterback stood out prominent, while the line plunging of Shaw was a distinct feature. Other players contributed their share in the victory, which local followers of the team predict will result in the county championship coming to Chester.

Weirton was penalized 25 yards for not being on the field on scheduled time, the ball being put into play on their 15 yard line. Weirton kicked on the third down and Campbell gained four yards around right end. Shaw hit the line for a gain. A five yard penalty imposed on the visitors made the first down for Chester. Campbell made a three yard gain through the line. On the next play Bartley and Campbell executed a forward pass and the latter went around right end for the first touchdown. Campbell tried for point after touchdown but his placement kick was wide of the mark. Weirton braced after the scoring and launched an offensive that carried the ball to Chester's five yard line where it was lost on a fumble. The ball was on Chester's five yard line when the whistle sounded the end of the first half.

Weirton kicked off at the opening of the second half. Shaw hit the line for a first down, Campbell, Bartley and Ewing advanced the ball within scoring distance where it was carried over on a forward pass Bartley to Campbell. Try for point after touchdown failed. The third touchdown came in the last quarter when Campbell trying for placement kick from the 25 yard line missed, the ball going over the goal line. A Weirton player brought the ball to the six yard line where it was fumbled and recovered by a Chester player. Shaw went over on a line plunge and made the point after scoring on a similar play. Weirton tried numerous forward passes in an effort to score. Play ended with the ball in the middle of the field. Lineup and summaries:

'SIN OF CHURCH' SERMON TOPIC

Evangelist Miller Occupies Christian Church Pulpit.

Evangelist William Mart Miller of Covington, Ky., who is conducting a series of revivals in the First Christian church, preached to a large audience last evening, taking as his text "The Sin of the Church." He made a plea for church unity in which he called upon the congregation to "disband, sell their house of worship and other property and go as a body to any other church which would receive them on Bible terms and turn the proceeds of their property into their treasury." The entire assemblage stood in approval which was also given by the pastor, Rev. A. E. Sims.

The evangelist said at the outset of his sermon that the division of Christians into hundreds of rival and often conflicting denominations was the greatest sin of modern times. He declared that the Christian people of the land were strong enough to accomplish absolutely anything in which they might stand united, but that too often they were rendered powerless to seriously cope with evil because of denominational rivalries.

He concluded his sermon as follows: "I therefore suggest that if there is in this community any church which receives all its members on the exact terms laid down in the Bible, without addition, subtraction or alteration, and which will receive you on those terms, requiring of you and of all others every step required in the Bible, and no other steps, giving to faith, repentance, confession, baptism, the operation of the holy spirit and the christian life exactly the place, form, importance and effect given the same on the sacred page, and none other; neither wearing nor requiring its members to wear any name not found in the Bible, and not recognizing any church officer nor dignitary, nor any conference, assembly, presbytery, nor other ecclesiastical organization not expressly provided on the sacred page—demanding nothing not expressly demanded in the Bible, forbidding nothing not expressly forbidden in the Bible, and imposing no condition of admission nor of continued fellowship not expressly imposed as such in the Bible, I propose that you at once sell your house of worship and other property, go as a body to the church so receiving you, and put your money into their treasury."

Pugh Funeral Held.

Funeral services for the three-month-old daughter of Mrs. Daniel Pugh, who died in Youngstown, were held this afternoon in the home at Lawrenceville. Rev. A. E. Sims, pastor of the First Christian church, was in charge. Burial was made in Locust Hill cemetery.

SCHOOLS MAKE GOOD RECORDS

Attendance Marks High at Salineville and Columbiana.

In his report of the attendance in the Salineville schools filed with County Supt. of Schools H. C. Leonard by J. C. Skaggs, principal of the Salineville schools, it is shown that during October there were 42 cases of tardiness. There are 453 children enrolled in the Salineville schools, and there were 411 days of absence recorded.

The attendance for October, however, reached a 95 per cent record. The report shows that 133 boys and girls were neither absent or tardy during October.

Out of an enrollment of 151 children, only 33 boys and 23 girls were neither absent or tardy during October, the report of the Salineville high school shows. The attendance record stands at 84 per cent for October. There were 117 cases of tardiness in the high school, 60 boys and 57 girls having been placed in this class.

It is disclosed to the reports from the Columbiana grade schools of Columbiana, filed by F. J. Sewall, out of an enrollment of 349 pupils, 242 were neither absent or tardy during October, 120 boys and 122 girls having a perfect attendance record. Only 33 cases of tardiness were reported in these schools, 21 boys and 12 girls being placed in this class. The percentage of attendance reached the high mark of 97.58 for the month.

In the Columbiana high school report, where 141 children are enrolled, the attendance record for the month stood at 96.4 with an average daily attendance of 133. There were 99 cases of tardiness listed in this high school, 65 boys and 34 girls being placed in this class.

NAME DIRECTORS OF FAIR BOARD

On account of the weather, a light vote was polled Saturday afternoon for election of three directors of the Columbiana County Agricultural society, which interest has charge of the county fair.

Four candidates only were nominated between the hours of 10 o'clock and noon Saturday, these being Van J. Morris, John Patterson and Frank Borman of Elkrun township and J. M. LeVan of Fairfield township. All save Mr. Morris were candidates for re-election of directors.

The officiate vote showed: Mr. Morris, 66; Mr. Patterson, 72; Mr. Levan, 107; Mr. Bowman, 91.

A meeting of the new board of directors is expected to be held within the next few weeks when all business matters having to do with the 1925 county fair will be closed, and plans discussed for the 1926 county fair.

Court Action Filed.

When Pauline Leads and Andy Leads purchased a farm of 42 acres in section 24 Centre township from Frank Yurkas for $6,000 he agreed to pay $2,000 and give a mortgage on the place for $4,000.

In a petition filed in common pleas court against Leads, it is declared that the $2,000 has not been paid, although due, and that the defendants had proposed to give security for the $2,000 but have so far failed to do so. The action was filed for the plaintiff by Attorney Charles C. C. Connell of Lisbon.

LAXITY CHARGED TO AUTO DEALERS

Chalmers R. Wilson, state commissioner of motor vericles, with headquarters in Columbus, in a letter just E. Hamilton, has called attention to received by County Auditor Charles the laxity on the part of automobile dealers in issuing bill of sales promptly. His letter to Mr. Hamilton reads:

"It has come to our attention that many automobile dealers are not promptly issuing bills of sale for cars they sell—especially is this true with reference to used cars.

"Deputy commissioners can facilitate registrations for 1926 if they will confer with dealers to the end that bills of sale for all cars they sell or have sold be issued and filed at once."

It is declared that dealers are slow in issuing bills of sale for used cars because of the fact they do not obtain a bill of sale for a car that is taken in on a trade for a new car or even another used car. This, it has been pointed out, is a violation of the law, and not only subjects the seller of the used car to a fine, but also the dealer who fails to record such bill of sale. When the bill of sale for a car is taken in on a trade, the dealer, it is said, can promptly issue his bill of sale to the purchaser of that particular used car, and this will facilitate the issuing of 1926 licenses.

MILDRED GEORGE WEDS W. J. BOGGS

Miss Mildred George, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry V. George of East Lincoln way, Lisbon, and William J. Boggs, a mechanical engineer of Chicago, Ill., were married at the home of the parents of the bride at 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon by the Rev. J. M. Cameron, pastor of the Lisbon United Fresbyterian church.

They will be at home at 120 South Kilbourn street, Chicago, after December 1.

Mrs. Boggs is a graduate of the College for Women at Western Reserve, while Mr. Boggs is a graduate of the Case School of Applied Science, Cleveland.

Demurrer Overruled.

Judge J. B. Worley in common pleas No. 2 overruled the demurrer to the petition in the case of Harriet Powers again the city of Salem, wherein the plaintiff seeks to recover $50,000 damages from the defendant for personal injuries. Exceptions have been taken to the ruling of the court by City Solicitor Harris of Salem.

Marriage License.

A marriage license has been issued to Morton C. Marsh of Wheeling, an electrician, and Rebecca Spangle, of Wellsville, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Petty.

Sale Confirmed.

The court has confirmed the sale and a deed and distribution ordered in the foreclosure action filed in common pleas court by the Guaranty Trust company against the International Real Estate company.

Leave To File.

In the divorce action filed in common pleas court by Hazel Baun against her husband, Herman Baun, formerly of Elkton but now residing near Petersburg, Mahoning county, the court has granted the defendant leave to file an answer and cross petition. Recently Baun was cited to appear before Judge James G. Moore and show cause, if any, why he should not be punished for contempt. The hearing on the citation had been continued, and the court then allowed the answer and cross petition to be filed.

Action Filed.

An action has been filed in common pleas court by Herman Gardner and others against William Fisher and others, seeking the recovery of a claim for $2,500 and the foreclosure of a mortgage.

Suit Instituted.

Suit to recover $750 on a note dated January 8, 1924, has been filed in common pleas court by Jacob Zepperian against Gorea Giethlein.

Case Appealed.

After judgment had been rendered by Justice of the Peace P. V. Mackall of East Liverpool for $52.50 in favor of W. Christian in his automobile damage action against Lewis Barker, the defendant took an appeal to common pleas court, the transcript in the action having just been filed. In his pleadings, Christian sought $100 damages, but after a trial of the case, the amount was cut in half.

Suppose You Owned a Horse

AND suppose you had no work for him. You wouldn't let him stand in the stable eating his head off would you? Of course not. You'd hire him out to work and make money for you.

We all don't own horses but we all do have a little money laid by or can lay aside a little. Now this money can be put to work to earn money for you just the same as the horse would. Only the horse has got to eat and sleep and die sometime, while money put to work never eats, sleeps, or passes out of existence.

Money put to work (invested) in The Ohio Power Company, Preferred Stock earns good wages under SAFE working conditions. The pay-days are March 1, June 1, September 1, December 1. For instance; $950.00 invested would earn $15.00 every three months for you.

IMPORTANT

If you did have a horse you'd make sure that whoever used him would take good care of him—that he'd be SAFE. Don't forget SAFETY when you put your money to work, it's more important than the amount of wages. And that's one of the best points about The Ohio Power Company Preferred Stock—IT'S SAFE

Bebe Daniels Stars In "Wild, Wild Susan," At Ceramic Theatre

Bebe Daniels comes to the screen at the Ceramic theater today, Tuesday and Wednesday as "Wild, Wild Susan," a girl who can't live without excitement, in the Paramount picture by that name which was directed by Edward Sutherland from Steuart Emery's Liberty magazine story, "The Wild, Wild Child." Its characteristics are comedy, speed, romance, pep, thrills and general fast-moving entertainment.

Rod La Rocque has a featured role opposite the star and Helen Holcombe, whom Ernst Lubitsch, director of "Passion," "The Marriage Circle," etc., called "the girl with the Mona Lisa smile," has a prominent part in the supporting cast—that of Susan's prim and proper sister, whom Bebe's parents in the picture advise her to imitate.

One gets a pretty good idea of the type of picture "Wild, Wild Susan" is from the very first scenes. A fire engine shoots around a corner blowing and clanging for all it's worth. Everything gives way except a sporty racing car. It's Bebe! Even pacing fire engines are too tame for this up and going metropolitan miss who, in the ensuing scenes, takes to trailing shoplifters and bond thieves after reading a correspondence school book on detective work.

The closing scene of the production is that of a haunted house on the outskirts of the city. It's midnight, and there's nothing quite as creepy as a haunted house at midnight. But this is a riot of laughs.

Combine all the big thrills and laugh scenes in "Miss Blueheard" and "The Manicure Girl," then multiply by the size of your hat and then you just about begin to get an idea of what "Wild, Wild Susan" is like.

It's a thriller, if there ever was one!

Piles Disappear

No Cutting or Salves Needed

External treatments seldom cure Piles.

Nor do surgical operations.

The cause is inside—bad circulation.

The blood is stagnant, the veins flabby.

The bowel walls are weak, the parts almost dead.

To quickly and safely rid yourself of piles you must free the circulation—send a fresh current through stagnant pools. Internal treatment is the one safe method. Ointments and cutting won't do it.

J. S. Leonhardt, M. D., a specialist, set at work some years ago to find a real internal remedy for piles. He succeeded. He named his prescription HEM-ROID, and tried it in 1,000 cases before he was satisfied. Now HEM-ROID is sold by druggists everywhere under guarantee. It is a harmless tablet, easy to take, and can always be found at C. G. Anderson's, who will gladly refund the purchase price to any dissatisfied customer.

Highs Defeat East Palestine and Claim County Grid Title

LARKINS BLOCKS PUNT FOR ONLY TOUCHDOWN

Blue and White Center Grabs Muddy Ball in First Period and Drops Over Home Eleven's Line for Decisive Score; Contest is Played in Steady Downpour of Rain.

EAST LIVERPOOL practically clinched the Columbiana county scholastic football championship Saturday afternoon at East Palestine when the Blue and White won from East Palestine by a margin of a single touchdown. The final count was 6-0.

The clash gave the Potters their third consecutive victory in the county conference, Salem and Lisbon previously having bowed to the prowess of the Ohio river combine.

Saturday's game was played in a steady downpour of rain that made good football impossible. The rain greeted the 22 players of the rival teams as they took the field and was still going strong when they quit.

The issue was decided early when Center Dick Larkins blocked an East Palestine punt in the first period and jumped over the goal line for the only points of the contest. The subsequent kick went wide. The circumstances of the punt which gave the visitors their golden opportunity were rather peculiar. The ball was heavy and soggy and covered with mud. As it left the toe of the East Palestine kicker, it landed squarely on Larkins' chest and it stuck there, as the East Liverpool center wrapped his arms around it.

Tackle Banks was back in the game for the locals and his punting was an outstanding feature of the battle. Banks two weeks ago was thought to be ineligible, but a strict investigation of the workings of the eligibility ruling by Superintendent McVey revealed the fact that the local school was interpreting it to their own disadvantage and, consequently, the plan followed by other schools of the Ohio High School association was placed in effect here.

First Quarter.

East Liverpool kicked off and Dolan returned five yards. The first three plays were ineffective, failing to gain an inch. Palestine punted on the fourth down but the punt was blocked, East Palestine recovering the ball on their 15 yard line. First play failed through the line. The next play lost two yards around left end. East Palestine punted on the third down and Center Larkins broke through the line and caught the ball as it left the toe of the kicker and went over for a touchdown. The attempt for the extra point went wide. Score, East Liverpool 6; East Palestine, 0.

On the kickoff East Palestine returned six yards. The first play made one yard through the line. The next two plays failed to gain and East Palestine punted and the ball was returned 10 yards. English made two yards off tackle. Kirkham was stopped on the next, the line failing.

The next play lost three yards around right end, the line again failing to hold. On the fourth down Banks punted out of bounds on East Palestine's 25 yard line. On the first play East Palestine fumbled and East Liverpool recovered just as the quarter ended. Score, East Liverpool 6, East Palestine, 0.

Second Quarter.

On the first play East Liverpool was penalized 25 yards for roughing. The next play was stopped, the line failing to hold. East Liverpool was penalized five yards for offside and Banks punted over the goal line, a dandy 50 yard boot.

On the first play East Palestine lost three yards around right end. The next gained three yards off tackle. East Palestine fumbled but recovered on her five yard line. East Palestine punted but it was a weak attempt, the ball going almost straight up in the air. East Liverpool's ball on East Palestine's 20 yard line. The first two plays failed to gain. The next gained three yards through the line.

A forward pass on the fourth down grounded and it was East Palestine's ball on her own 17 yard line. East Palestine tried two plays through the line, but failed to gain. On the next they lost 10 yards around right end. East Palestine punted to mid-field.

East Liverpool made first down on two plays and the half ended with the ball on East Palestine's 35-yard line. Score, East Liverpool, 6; East Palestine, 0.

Third Quarter.

East Liverpool received and ran the ball back to their own 25 yard line. The first play gained five yards off tackle. The next was stopped, the line failing to hold. East Palestine off side making first down for East Liverpool. English gained 10 yards and another first down off tackle. The next play gained one yard through the same place. East Liverpool made another first down around right end. They repeated gaining 15 yards around left end. The next two plays made six yards through the line. East Liverpool was penalized five yards for offside. East Palestine held on the next attempt.

The home eleven intercepted a forward pass, giving them the ball on their 15 yard line just as the quarter ended. Score, East Liverpool, 6; East Palestine, 0.

Fourth Quarter.

East Palestine punted to mid field. The first play was stopped. East Palestine was off side on the next, making second and five for East Liverpool. A forward pass was grounded and Banks punted to East Palestine's 18 yard line. East Palestine at this point opened up an aerial attack. Their first attempt was grounded. East Palestine punted to their own 40 yard line. East Palestine intercepted a forward pass, giving them the balloon on their 30 yard line. Their first pass was grounded. The next made seven yards. The next went out of bounds. The next was good for eight yards, giving East Palestine their only first down of the game. The next two plays were stopped and East Palestine punted to East Liverpool's 30 yard line.

East Palestine was off side on the first play and East Liverpool made first down on their next attempt. The next two were stopped and Banks punted to mid field as the game ended. Score, East Liverpool, 6; East Palestine, 0.

Crimson Football Leader Makes Promise That He Couldn't Keep

"I Shall Not Return Defeated," Exclaims Cheek; and Now, Where is Our Wondering Boy Tonight?

By Katharine Brush.

PRINCETON, N. J., Nov. 9.—At a mass meeting of Harvard undergraduates held in Cambride on the eve of the Varsity's departure for Princeton, Captain Dolph Cheek is said to have exclaimed:

"I shall not return defeated."

Now those were brave words. In view of the fact that Dartmouth and Little Holy Cross had both defeated Captain Cheek previously, and that last year, as everyone knows, Harvard had a team that could have been licked to a standstill by any eleven young women from Vassar, I think you'll agree that they were very brave words indeed. But they were rather foolish words too. For Captain Cheek, having said them, can't conscientiously return to Cambridge now that it's all over. Five touchdowns, and one thing and another stand in his way. The question is, then, where is the wandering boy tonight? Where does he go from here, To Canada to drown his sorrows? To Waikiki to forget? This worries me. And not only worries me, but teaches me a lesson in humility. Hereafter, whenever I'm tempted to tell the world what I'll do and what I won't, I'm going to remember a November afternoon and an orange-and-black mowing machine going through a crimson paper mache wall—and maybe I'll keep my mouth shut.

It was the most pitiful game I ever saw. Everything about it that wasn't orange-and-black was pitiful. The fifty five thousand people who, under the delusion that they were going to see some football, had collected here from far and wide, were pitiful. The Harvard cheering section and band, bearing up bravely to the last, were pitiful. And the Harvard team was so pitiful that even a girl born yelling a Yale cheer felt her heart bleed. They never had even so much as a bowing acquaintance with the goal. They tackled their ancient rivals lovingly around the neck—when they got near enough to tackle them at all. And a couple of over-grown elephants in Siamese-twin formation could have ambled through some of the holes in the Harvard line without even brushing their outside flanks against anything. My idea of an unnecessary person was the man who sat somewhere behind me, who kept yelling, "Come on, Princeton!"- in a solemn voice at periodic intervals. He might as well have stood on the edge of a pond and yelled, "Swim, duck, swim!"

And the funny part of it is, Princeton wasn't so wonderful, either! Being 36 points better than Harvard doesn't make you a good football team, any more than taking candy from a baby makes you a good second-story man.

Two things, aside from the game itself always impress me most about football games at Princeton. One is the extremely rural location of the Tiger's lair. Princeton is a bosky dell, really. Drive to any other college game, and you park your car in a garage and eat your lunch in a restaurant. Drive to Princeton, and you park your car in an ex-cornfield and eat your lunch out of a paper-bag—unless you belong to one of the clubs, or know somebody who does, in which case you may perhaps get a potato chip in the clubhouse. Of course there is the Princeton Inn; but on a day like Saturday, it's Try-and-Get Inn, and no matter how hard you try, you simply can't.

The other thing that impresses me is the steepness of Palmer Stadium.

DODGERS GET MARANVILLE

Ex-Cub Pilot Obtained by Waiver Price.

NEW YORK, Nov. 9.—Walter "Rabbit" Maranville, once regarded as the greatest shortstop in baseball, has become the property of the Brooklyn Dodgers, it was announced today by officials of the club.

The rabbit was secured at the waiver price from the Chicago Cubs, whom he managed last season until demoted near the end of the campaign.

Marriott, young third baseman of the Boston Braves, also has been secured by Brooklyn at the waiver price, it was announced.

What disposition will be made of Maranville was not made known by Brooklyn officials, but it was assumed that he would be used at shortstop next season, displacing Johnny Mitchell and others who have been tried at the position.

His passing to the Dodgers at the waiver price illustrated how greatly the Rabbit's services have depreciated in value during the recent season. When he left the Boston Braves to join the Pittsburgh Pirates at the start of the 1921 season his value was not less than $100,000.

He played good ball for Pittsburgh, however, and when he was traded to the Cubs last season, he still was regarded as one of the National league's leading infielders.

But the Rabbit had a bad season in Chicago, his managerial duties appearing to place a great burden upon his playing. A broken leg, sustained during the training season, also seemed to slow Maranville up and his popularity in Chicago waned rapidly.

KUTSCH KEEPS SCORING LEAD

CHICAGO, Nov. 9.—Nick Kutsch of Iowa, who has not played in three weeks, retained his lead over conference scorers with 49 points, while Amquist of Minnesota moved into third place in Saturday's scoring. Amquist passed Grange of Illinois, who has 36 points, by scoring two touchdowns against Butler. Friedman of Michigan went scoreless against Northwestern but retained second place with 43 points.

No More Big Purses Is Tex's Ultimatum To Leading Fighter's

NEW YORK, Nov. 9.—Due notice was served upon leading boxers by Tex Rickard today that their extravagant demands for big purses no longer would receive recognition by the promoter in making up his shows for the new garden.

"I lost about $35,000 on the Slattery-Berlenbach and Walker-Shade matches last summer," Rickard declared. "The first of these drew about $100,000 and the second about $150,000. There is no reason why a promoter should lose money when the gate receipts run so high. The boxers simply will have to moderate their demands, that's all."

BIG TEN

CHICAGO, Nov. 9.—Saturday's football results, one of them an unexpected defeat of the leaders, put a crimp in the championship standing of three of the teams which heretofore have led the Western conference title race. Michigan, Iowa, and Chicago were beaten under almost unprecedented weather conditions—a blizzard at Iowa and heavy rain storms at the Chicago and Michigan games.

Minnesota, the only undefeated team of the conference and with only one conference tie on its record, is technically the Big Ten leader today. It has yet to play Iowa and Michigan.

The first score against the Michigan team this season came in its sixth game—a field goal by Lewis of Northwestern from the eighteen-yard line.

There were only five touchdowns scored in the Big Ten games Saturday, a field goal and a safety.

The team standing, including points made in all games; conference and non-conference:

	W.	L.	T.	T. pts.	O. pts.
Minnesota	0	0	1	143	56
Michigan	3	1	0	182	3
Iowa	2	1	0	121	33
Northwestern	2	1	0	58	47
Chicago	2	1	1	30	33
Wisconsin	2	1	1	90	33
Ohio State	1	1	1	46	21
Illinois	1	2	0	63	50

GREEN FACING ITS BIG TEST

HANOVER, N. H., Nov. 9. — Dartmouth's unbeaten eleven faced what is generally regarded here as its sternest test of the season this week in journeying to Chicago for the season's finale with Alonzo Stagg's Big Maroon team. Not only was Chicago rated as Dartmouth's most dangerous opponent, but the fact that the green must spend almost two days on the train en route to Chicago was viewed with considerable apprehension.

HARVARD FAILS TO DRAW STARS OF GRID GAME

NEW YORK, Nov. 9.—What is the matter with Harvard football?

That is, what is the matter with it outside of the fact that Harvard plays football too seldom, if at all.

"Harvard hasn't had the semblence of an attack for two years," says one critic and proceeds upon his arraignment by demanding that something be done about it. He seems to feel that the Harvard system is at fault.

Strange sentiments, these. Wasn't it only a few years ago that observers spoke glibly and in laudable terms of the Harvard system? It was.

Times Have Changed.

Therefore, has the system become obsolete? It may be so. Times have changed, in a gridiron sense, even since 1922, the last good Harvard year. However, the chances are that the system, with modifications, still is good and the players are bad.

Not so many years ago, Harvard had the most famous team in the country. Those were the days of Brickley, Mahan, Hardwick, Storey, Logan, et al., the days when the late Percy Haughton held forth. Harvard had plenty of punch then.

Critics now seem to feel that Haughtons passing meant the end. Yet it is a matter of record that Bob Fisher, his successor, carried Harvard along for years right with the pace. He used Haughton's methods and simply had good material.

First-class football players, however, apparently stopped coming to Harvard and, perforce, the institution stopped winning.

There hasn't been a punch in the Harvard backfield since Owen and Buell graduated, but the coaches are not to blame for this condition. You cannot get blood out of a stone or put life into a dish cloth. There hasn't been any punch in the Harvard backfield because the players with the punch at Cambridge didn't and doesn't exist.

It was once the custom there to strees the kicking game as a medium of the attack. This no longer is possible under present conditions. Except in certain circumstances, in and around midfield, punting now is strictly a defensive gesture, the development of the forward pass having made the attack more effective than before.

Lack of Backs Tells.

Perhaps Harvard still stresses the punting game. In the few times the writer has seen the team during the last two years, it rained heavily and punting was the thing. However, even if this is the custom rather than the exception, Harvard probably is forced to it. If you can't gain with dummy backs, you must get rid of the ball.

Another Haughton idea was to keep his quarter-back from running with the ball in order that he might thing clearly. This was a fine idea with such as Mahan, Casey and Owens in the backfield. Nowadays, one dead man in the Harvard backfield only serves to make four and increase the attack's liability.

Perhaps, they are not doing that at Harvard this year. As a matter of substantial fact, the writer doesn't know what they are doing at Harvard this year—except losing football games.

RIVAL BOBS UP FOR ED TRYON

Lane, Dartmouth, Equals Colgate Star's Mark.

NEW YORK, Nov. 9.—As a result of running wild against Cornell, Lane, of Dartmouth, came up from nowhere to tie Eddie Tryon, of Colgate, for eastern leadership in individual scoring, each having 90 points to his credit. Lane has the additional credit of topping all rivals in touchdowns with a total of 15, Borelli, of Muhlenberg, being second with 13, and Oberlander, another Dartmouth back, being tied with Tryon for third position with 12 each.

In total points, Brelli tops Oberlander for third place with 78 against the latter's 72.

LAUGHLINS BATTLE TO 1-1 TIE WITH SHELBYS

Fight for Supremacy In Northwest Division Soccer Circuit Continues as Result of Deadlock; Both Goals are Registered in Opening Half.

THE Homer Laughlin's soccer club battled the Shelbys, of Ellwood City, Pa., their foremost rivals in the Press Northwest Division Soccer League, to a 1-1 tie Saturday afternoon at Ellwood City in a steady down-pour of rain.

The Laughlins and the Shelbys remain undefeated in the Northwest circuit and the scrap for leadership continues.

The Laughlins opened up with a fast attack that broke up, temporarily, the dangerous Barr family combination, well known in Pennsylvania soccer circles. Haugh, local inside right, broke away early in the engagement, beating all opposition to the Shelby goal. The Shelby's errer at this juncture and the Laughlins were awarded a penalty boot. Bain took the kick and made good, scoring the first goal of the game. Barr had no chance to save.

Pearson and A. Barr of the Shelbys, and Scarry, were constant sources of danger from then on, but Bain and Scarry proved equal to the demands of the occasion at all times. Pearson made a great drive to score the first goal for the Shelbys. The half ended with the score a 1-1 tie.

Chapter 90.

Of course Amoura was thrilled by Vey Ardic's love letter. What young woman—or old, for that matter—wouldn't have been?

She never happened to learn that Vey had copied most of those pulsating sentences from a novel that was a favorite of his because he likened the hero to himself.

If the letter had been written and dispatched two weeks earlier, it probably would have been answered. But now—. How fate hangs on moods and moments!

Invited by telephone, Sam Sherwood, reporter of the Daily News, rode grandly up Indian Hill the following afternoon to sip tea and nibble cakes with Amoura Ainsley. Not since the wedding of Cynthia Ainsley and Robert Copley had a reporter been admitted to Ainsley House.

"After considering the matter, Mr. Sherwood," said Amoura, as Della complied with his specifications for two lumps and cream, "I have decided that perhaps you could be of service to the Community House as a press agent—or public relations director, as they are called I believe."

The reporter nodded. Miss Ainsley's telephone call had meant but one thing to him, and his hopes had risen high as he mounted Indian Hill.

"I really don't know anything about such matters," she confessed.

"I am willing to take charge of this important phase of the community's affairs, if you will give me a free hand."

"I would, of course, reserve the right of veto."

"Yes, naturally, but I mean— if I were allowed a sufficient amount of money to attend to the publicity end of it properly."

"What amount do you think necessary?"

"He had already decided that. "About ten thousand a year," he replied, eyeing her shrewdly.

"As I say, I don't know anything about such matters. I will not give you a definite answer today, as I wish to confer with my associates regarding the matter."

He felt rather uneasy. If she talked to her father, say, he would very likely tell her that ten thousand dollars a year for a publicity man for so small an enterprise was too much. "When may I expect an answer?"

"In a few days." There was a note of finality in her response, but if it was intended as a hint that the interview was at end, Sam Sherwood ignored it. One wasn't invited to tea by the daughter of a millionaire, and a beautiful one, very often. He became chatty.

"I suppose you find Westland a rather prosaic place after so many thrilling and charming adventures?" He went on in this vein for some minutes, getting only brief replies. Finally, Amoura, bored, arose.

"I shall have to ask you to pardon me now, Mr. Sherwood. I have an engagement."

He was on his feet now. "Yes, certainly."

She offered her hand. He held it, clingingly, until she deftly extracted the member. When he had gone she smiled to herself.

In only a few minutes, as she was slipping out of her tea-gown to take a nap, Philip Weinrich was announced.

"Tell him I am indisposed," she told Della first. Then, "No, wait." She rearrayed herself, taking her time about it.

"Another admirer?" he smiled, as he took her hand, nodding his head in the direction of the road on which he had passed the departing Sam Sherwood.

"Who knows?" she laughed.

"A pretty gown. Chicago?" To him there was something charming in her nod. He took her hand again and pulled her toward the library. 'Come, I wish to talk to you." His tone was commanding. He closed the door behind them and stood for a moment or two with his back to the portal, regarding her.

"Amoura, dearest, let's put an end to all this nonsense and get married."

His eyes held her irresistibly. Slowly he advanced toward her as she stood tense, unable to move. Without a murmur, without a movement, she surrendered to his arms.

"Let's elope, dearest. Today."

Still in his grasp, she shook her head.

"Why?"

Before answering she pulled him to a great leather lounge before the fireplace. "I'll marry you, Phillip." She gave him a little kiss that was only a peck. "But I don't want the wedding to be some dowdy little thing performed by a justice of the peace. Let's have a church wedding, or be married here."

"Anything you say, my dear," he replied resignedly, kissing her. A great content had settled upon him. He had expected her to be emotional and all that. To him this easy assent of hers was proof of her love.

Half an hour later he left, with the agreement that he would return to be a dinner guest that evening. Then they would break the news.

At eight o'clock, no Phillip. At 8:30, no Philip. J. Reginald was getting impatient about his dinner; the chef was fuming and Amoura was in the act of phoning the Weinrich home when a messenger arrived with a note.

"Dearest Amoura: When I returned home I found this letter, which explains itself. I have been unable to reach you by phone. This is being written at the station. I am taking the 7:36 for New York. Love.—Philip."

Feverishly she opened the letter he enclosed with his own. Her eyes were arrested by the signature, "Always, your Vera."

If you sit in the top row, as I did once (but didn't this time, thank goodness) it seems to you that, should you let fall a tear, it would splash on top of the hat of the person sitting in relative position in the very bottom row. If you sit in the bottom row you feel rather as though you were supporting all the people above you on your shoulders. But you can see beautifully in any seat, and I know of no stadium that presents a more picturesque appearance at a football game than Princeton's concrete horseshoe. Its sides, rising so abruptly from green velvet gridiron to blue chiffon sky, are vertical blocks of solid color, and the huge curve back of the north goal is a semi-circular wall as brilliant and many-hued as a patchwork quilt.

And Princeton's stadium on Saturday was Princeton's stadium at its best, too, for Saturday was the kind of a day when women wear their gayest hats and men their loudest neckties, and when even the most impecunious sophomore manages to buy a crysanthemum for his girl. I never saw so many flowers outside of a seed catalogue. Big yellow "mums" on the Princeton girls, and white posies with red H's adorning the coats of the fair cohorts of Harvard.

And this conflict of enemy colors was repeated everywhere one looked—in banners tacked across the hoods of automobiles, in bunting draped across the facades of Gothic clubhouses and university buildings, in armbands encircling racoon sleeves, in quills stuck into collegiate hats, in the cheering-sections, in the bands, everywhere. Truly, it was not only up and down the field that orange-and-black fought crimson—and knocked it for a loop.

Princeton uses the huddle system for giving signals, which always amuses me. It makes me think of a bunch of stags in a corner at a dance exchanging naughty stories. One of the few sweet sights of Saturday afternoon was the speed and snap of the Tiger outfit in getting into line after one of these little heart-to-heart talks. One minute you saw them grouped together, and then in the twinkling of an eye they were in position, and their center had passed the ball, and they were off—leaving the Harvard linesmen still gazing pensively at the spot where they had been.

The only redeeming feature of the Harvard team that I could see was their kicking. The large toe on the right foot of a gentleman by the name of Coady deserves the only laurel wreath of the crimson's black day. And to think that all my life I've heard that college called, "Fair Harvard!" They're not even fair they're just terrible.

Laughlins Battle

second period.

The Laughlins, with a wind advantage, continued to hold their own. Brown came within an ace of scoring. A penalty kick was awarded to Shelby, but Beech made a remarkable save and local rooters tendered him a great ovation.

Carnie and Haugh in this half played clever football. The local halves continually thwarted the attempts of the Barr family, who were making Herculean efforts to score. But they could not break through a rock-ribbed defense. Aldridge's shot for goal brought Barr to the ground to save. Time was called with the count still 1-1.

5,245 PUPILS ENROLLED IN CITY SCHOOLS

Record Mark Attained, Supt. C. S. McVay Reports.

ATTENDANCE 96.1

Arrangements Made to Observe "American Education Week."

Enrollment in the local schools at the end of October reached a record mark, Superintendent C. S. McVay announced today.

The report showed an enrollment of 5,245, which is said to be approximately 300 more than the registration last year. In the high school the enrollment is 832, but this includes 87 registered in the part-time schools which are under high school classification. The high school enrollment last year was 769 and deducting those enrolled in the part time schools the increase this year is 36.

Ten rooms reported an attendance of 98 per cent or better. Students reported as having had perfect attendance for the month numbered 3063. The average percent of attendance was 96.1. There were 202 cases of tardiness 108 home visits and 397 visits from patrons while 140 visits were made by the school superintendent.

Arrangements are being made to observe "American Education Week" in the public schools during the week of Nov. 16-22. A program will be given Friday afternoon Nov. 20.

Where You Pay Less

Home-made, but Ends Coughs In a Hurry

A family supply of dependable cough medicine. Easily made and saves about $2

If you have a severe cough or chest cold accompanied with soreness, throat tickle, hoarseness, or difficult breathing or if your child wakes up during the night with croup and you want quick help, try this reliable old home-made cough remedy. Any druggist can supply you with 2½ ounces of Pinex. Pour this into a pint bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup. Or you can use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup, if desired. This recipe makes a pint of really remarkable cough remedy. It tastes good, and in spite of its low cost it can be depended upon to give quick and lasting relief.

You can feel this take hold of a cough in a way that means business. It loosens and raises the phlegm, stops throat tickle and soothes and heals the irritated membranes that line the throat and bronchial tubes with such promptness, ease and certainty that it is really astonishing.

Pinex is a special and highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, and is probably the best known means of overcoming severe coughs, throat and chest colds.

There are many worthless imitations of this mixture. To avoid disappointment, ask for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with full directions and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne Ind.

Are You Making A Success or A Failure

It's a wonderful feeling to be able to tackle your work every day with snap and vigor. Endurance is the true test of a man. You go forward or backward according to your health. Ill health causes more failures than any other one thing.

Get the spirit of youth! Acquire the appearance of success by radiating the magnetism of good health. Gain strength to meet your daily tasks. Build up your nerve vigor. Put iron into your blood. Be a success, not a failure.

If you are run-down, tire easily, lack endurance; if you are weak, thin, anaemic, if you want to put firm, stay-there flesh on your bones, try taking one of BURKE'S COD LIVER OIL and IRON TABLETS three times a day with your meals. For sale by Carnahan's Drug Co., 3 stores, and all good druggists.

ROTARY CLUB SPONSORS BOYS' READING HERE

Contest Conducted in Public and Parochial Schools.

SUGGEST BOOKS

More Than 200 Titles on Library Shelves.

In an effort to encourage the reading of good books, the Rotary club, through the Boys Work committee has instituted a book reading contest among the boys of both the public and parochial schools.

More than 200 books have been placed on the shelves of the Carnegie Library, most of them furnished by the club, which boys taking part in the contest have been asked to read. A list of 50 books for boys between the ages of 8 and 12, has been arranged; another list is suitable for boys between the ages of 12 and 18 years. In addition, 50 books covering a general selection and 50, suggested by the Ohio Reading Circle, have been provided.

Each boy will be asked to read at least two of the books and then write an essay of not more than 500 words on the subject, "What I liked Best about the books I read." The youth writing the best essay from each room will be known as the "Honor Boy" and will be a guest at some entertainment to be given at the close of the contest by the club.

The club will donate fountain pens as prizes to one boy from each of the eight grades who turns in the best essay. A beautiful American flag also will be furnished the room which has the largest number of entrants in the contest.

The high school boys may compete in this contest by reading any of the books contained in the list of books required in their English courses, submitting an essay dealing with the same subject afterwards.

All books must be read and essays submitted to the teachers in each of the respective rooms not later than March 1, 1926. The winners will be announced as soon as the judges pass upon the essays.

The club has arranged to loan sets of five books where more than one half of the boys enrolled in each room have agreed to read two or more of the books, making them eligible to take part in the contest. The Ohio Reading Circle, a state organization, issues a certificate to boys who read three or more books listed by them in a school year. If this custom is followed for four consecutive years a diploma will be presented at the end of the last year.

This is the second year that the Rotary club has sponsored a book reading contest among the boys in school, but last year no prizes were offered.

Charles R. Boyce is chairman of the Boy's Work committee of the club in charge of the campaign. Literature explaining the proposed contest, has been distributed among the various schoools. Readin will begin immedately. Between $200 and $250 will be required to purchase the necessary books, furnish prizes and meet other costs in connection with the campaign.

The nature of the entertainment to be tendered the winners at the close of the contest has not been determined.

The president does not believe that the only relief for a farmer is to sit around and "let nature take its course," which means letting railroads, jobbers, wholesalers and foodstuff gamblers get the profit while the farmer plows, milks the cow and carries the mortgage.

A nation which finds it easy to help railroads out of troubles by increasing rates and compelling the public to pay ought to help farmers, without whom all railroads would go bankrupt and cities into starvation.

The president has lived on a farm. His suggestion will be interesting, for he knows where the farmer's life is.

Miss Jacqueline Rogers, aged 23, confesses that she stole "about one automobile a week" to support her friend, Mr. Kenyon, also 23. She stole the cars, he sold them and the lady, very modern, says "it's about all that boob was good for. He was of use in getting them."

Nevertheless th[illegible] him and needles[illegible] her. So Adam bl[illegible] when Eve stole the apples before the days of automobiles. He ate it and Eve probably would have said "that's about all that boob was good for," using, of course, the word "schlemiel," Yiddish equivalent for "boob."

The federal council of churches flatly denies that prohibition is a failure.

A million industrious bootleggers concur and also deny most flatly that prohibition is a failure. The thing seems to be unanimous.

During the war did you tear your hair with one hand signing checks for Liberty bonds with the other, praying that before death you might be allowed to kill a German?

Were you all wrought up over terrible German atrocities, chidren with hands cut off, allied officers crucified, nails driven through their hands and feet? If so, peep behind the scenes and find how the strings were pulled.

He received pictures of a train. One car was loaded with bodies of dead soldiers being drawn away from the battlefield. Another was filled with the bodies of dead cavalry horses. On the carload of dead horses was a sign saying that the carcasses were to be boiled down for soap fat.

General Charteris says he changed the sign from the carload of dead horses to the carload of dead soldiers, circulated the photographs all over the world to arouse hatred against Germany.

The photograph was sent to China where the "worship of ancestors" would make the propaganda story true: "boiling down soldiers' bodies

FORMER SALINEVILLE PHYSICIAN READY FOR 'LOVE MURDER' ORDEAL

Salineville Club Lauds Prisoner's Devotion to Child

LITTLETON, Colo., Nov. 9.—The Salineville, O., Kiwanis club, among others, today made a plea for mercy in behalf of Dr. Harold Elmer Blazer, former Ohioan, who is charged with the slaying of his imbecilic daughter, Hazel.

The Salineville club, in a letter, told of the "irreproachable character" of Dr. Blazer in that community and graphically described the "loving care and solicitude" that marked his devotion to his invalid child.

Attorney Lewis D. Mory and his associate, H. W. Spangler, were swamped with letters and telegrams from all parts of the country offering advice on every ism and ology known to science that might be applied to the insanity defense of the old fashioned doctor.

SENATE JURY WOULD ACQUIT 'MERCY SLAYER'

POLL IS TAKEN

(Copyright, 1925, by I. N. S.)

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9.—If Dr. Harold E. Blazer, Colorado's "mercy slayer," and former resident of Salineville, O., were being tried before a jury of United States senators instead of a jury of Araphoe farmers, he would be acquitted or put away in an asylum for taking the life of his legless, armless, mindless, husk of a daughter.

The Blazer case has aroused intense interest in the capital because of the many intricate questions of law and science raised in the case.

Twelve members of the senate were picked at random today around the capital and asked to state what their attitude in the Blazer case would be if they were on the jury—in other words constitute a senatorial jury.

Of these 12, three stood for unconditional acquittal, five voted to sustain the defense's plea that the aged doctor was out of his mind when he chloroformed his idiot child, and four voted merely a verdict of guilty.

Drafted for service on this unique jury were several former governors of states, several famous prosecutors, several great trial lawyers, business men and farmers. Most of them were fathers.

Only two declined to permit publication of their names. The verdict was:

For acquittal—Senators Lynn J.

Mrs. Joliet, who died suddenly, was a resident of Canton for more than 40 years. She was a member of St. Peter's church and Altar society. She leaves her husband, one son and three daughters.

New Heart Throbs Will Be Woven Into Emotional Drama in Drab Colorado District Court.

HE WILL REVEAL IMBECILE'S LIFE

By MICHAEL F. DACEY

LITTLETON, Colo., Nov. 9.—New heart throbs will be woven into the emotional drama that is being enacted in the drab Arapahoe district court here when Dr. Harold Elmer Blazer, on trial for the alleged chloroform-slaying of his 33-year-old idiot daughter, Hazel, takes the witness stand today in his own defense.

Claims Loss of Memory.

Lewis D. Mowry, chief of defense counsel, announced this morning that the old country doctor, who killed his imbecile daughter because he feared he might die suddenly and leave the helpless clod to the mercy of strangers, will be called as the first witness.

The keen-eyed, florid faced defendant appeared bright and cheerful shortly before court opened and declared he was prepared for the ordeal of relating to the jury how 33 long years of constant care, worry and unflagging devotion to his stricken "woman child" who is declared by Attorney Mowry to have been without a soul, had so undermined his mentality that he became the victim of disease that resulted in spells of complete loss of memory.

JOHN W. WYMAN, FORMER POLICE CHIEF, DIES IN LOS ANGELES

Served as Sheriff for Two Terms and Town Marshal.

81 YEARS OLD

Funeral Services are Held in California City.

John W. Wyman, 81, sheriff of Columbiana county for two terms and town marshal and chief of police of East Liverpool for approximately 24 years, died in his home in Los Angeles, Cal., early Saturday morning, after a short illness. Burial was made in Inglewood cemetery, Los Angeles, today.

Mr. Wyman resided here for more than 50 years. Two years ago last June he and his wife went to the Pacific coast.

He was born in Huntingdon county, Pa., August 21, 1844, a son of George and Catherine Wyman, and was educated in the schools of Pennsylvania. When a young man he moved to Lawrence county, Pa., where he resided for about six months and then came to East Liverpool.

For three years, Mr. Wyman was employed in the flour mill operated here by James Wilson and for four years in the mill conducted by Christian Metsch. He served as town marshal for six terms of two years each.

Appointed by Mayor Weaver.

In 1887, he was elected sheriff of Columbiana county and two years later was re-elected. In 1903, when the legislature placed police departments under civil service, Mr. Wyman was named chief of police by Mayor W. A. Weaver. He held that office until 1917 when he resigned from the force, to be succeeded by Captain Hugh McDermott. He was once a candidate for the Republican nomination of mayor.

For a short time after leaving the police force, Mr. Wyman served as school attendance officer, but ill health prompted his resignation.

While sheriff and chief of police, Mr. Wyman was known as one of the most fearless men in the county. During his second term as sheriff Ira Marlatt, East Fairfield farmer, shot and killed Barak Ashton and wounded

E. Palestine's First Woman Mayor Warns Law Breakers

Miss Clara Morrow, Democrat, Will Take Into Office Many Years' Experience in Public Affairs.

Miss Clara Morrow, Democrat, who will become mayor of East Palestine on Jan. 1, next, thus earning the distinction of being the first Columbiana county woman to be honored with the city executive's post, declared today that she expects to enforce the law without fear or favor.

She will succeed Mayor Albert Ferren, former East Liverpool man, who long has been known as the nemesis of Columbiana county bootleggers.

"I intend to give the people of East Palestine my best service," the mayor-elect said. "I shall make my administration a business one to the extent of my ability. I am not a fanatic, but I expect to enforce all laws on the statute books against the law breakers.

Miss Morrow, who is the first woman elected to any office in East Palestine and the fourth Democrat chosen mayor of that city, will take into office a long experience in public affairs.

MRS. SARAH A. OWEN, AGED 67, DIES IN HER HOME HERE SUNDAY

Funeral Services for Widow of Real Estate Company President Will be Held at 3 p. m. Tomorrow.

Mrs. Sarah Agnes Owen, 67, widow of George H. Owen, died Sunday morning in her home, 415 Jefferson street, after a two weeks' illness of complications.

Mrs. Owen was born in East Liverpool and spent her entire life here. She was a lifelong member of the First Presbyterian church and took an active part in the work of the various church organizations.

She is survived by one son, Frank E. Owen, Parkersburg, W. Va.; three sisters, Mrs. Flora Pomeroy, Mrs. George E. Buxton and Mrs. C. O. Weaver, and one brother, William Allison, all of East Liverpool.

Funeral services will be held at 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon in the home. Rev. Dr. D. W. MacLeod, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, will be in charge. Burial will be made in Riverview cemetery.

Friends may view the body tonight.

FUNERAL SERVICES FOR J. F. MURRAY, CHESTER, WILL BE HELD TOMORROW

Oil Operator, Who Died Saturday, Was Born Near Hamilton, Ontario Canada.

Funeral services for James Fraser Murray, 81 years old, widely known oil operator, will be held at 2:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon in the home, Fifth street, Chester. Rev. W. T. McKee, pastor of the First Presbyterian church of Chester, assisted by Rev. F. C. Roberts, rector of St. Matthew's Episcopal church, Chester, will have charge. Burial will be made in Riverview cemetery, East Liverpool.

Mr. Murray was born in Oxford county, near Hamilton, Ontario, and was the eldest of eight children. He worked on a farm until he was 18 years old when he started into the oil business as a driller. He finally drifted into the Pennsylvania fields and accepted employment at Petroleum Center. Later he engaged in business for himself taking up some leases at Shamburg, Pa., where he went "dead broke" and to use his own words he was "$3,000 worse off than nothing."

He next went to Butler, Pa., where he obtained an interest in a well. This venture also proved a failure. Nothing daunted he bobbed up at St. Joe, Butler county, where he operated, get-

Caldwell Farmer Rockefeller in Oil Game for One Hour

CALDWELL, O., Nov. 9.—For an hour today a Caldwell farmer was a Rockefeller competitor in the oil game—then competition ceased.

Neise Leisure was awakened by a gurgling hissing noise which seemed to come from the basement of his home. He investigated and found pure Pennsylvania crude oil. —worth $2.80 per barrel—oozing into the concrete cellar. He gave one mighty whoop and started bringing barrels to hold the precious fluid.

By the time the barrels arrived the oil had ceased to flow.

An investigation revealed that the Leisure house had been built over on abandoned oil well and that because of poor plugging, some of the oil had found its way into the cellar. Leisure placed some pipes in the hole, so gas could escape and set about making plans to "revive" the well.

AUTO SALESMAN FACES TRIAL FOR DEATH OF TAXI DRIVER

"Accidental Shooting" Defense of Former Football Star.

WIDOW IN COURT

Jurors Will Visit Scene of Tragedy Later in Day.

LISBON, Nov. 9.—The jury in the trial of George Anderson, 43, East Liverpool automobile salesman and former Kenyon college football star, charged with second degree murder in the shooting of Frank R. McLain, 25, East Liverpool taxicab fleet manager, was chosen in common pleas court here at 10:40 o'clock this morning.

Three Women on Jury.

Clarence Fisher, Lisbon.
W. D. Driscoll, Lisbon.
George Ashley, Wellsville.
John Patterson, Elkrun township.
W. T. Speidel, Salem.
E. M. Farmer, Columbiana.
John C. Gaston, Clarkson.
A. P. Boyd, Wellsville.
James Windel, Columbiana.
Etta Mellinger, Leetonia.
Alice Morgan, Wellsville.
Claudia Campbell, Salem.

The jury was accepted by the defense and state after eight prospective veniremen had been challenged and excused.

State's Case Outlined.

After the jurors had been sworn by Judge J. B. Worley, of Cadiz, who is presiding, Prosecutor R. M. Brookes, who, with Attorney Blaine H. Cochran, of East Liverpool, is representing the state, outlined the prosecution's case. He said that the state would prove that the statement, "Oh, my God, I'm shot!" or "My God, I've shot you!" made either by McLain or Anderson at the time of the shooting, would be brought out in the testimony.

Brookes, using his own body as an illustration, pointed out where McLain was shot, with a 45 calibre army automatic revolver after the taxi driver had driven Anderson to the home of the latter's aunt, Miss Elizabeth Anderson, Second and Jackson streets, East Liverpool, and assisted his passenger from the cab to a second floor bedroom in the Anderson house.

The shooting occurred on Saturday night, Oct. 3, McLain dying early Sunday morning in the City hospital.

HONOR HEROES ON TRUCE DAY

Business Will Suspend For Short Period at 11 a. m.

No public ceremonies in observance of Armistice Day will be held in East Liverpool, Wednesday, but fraternal and patriotic organizations plan programs, celebrating the seventh anniversary of the ending of the World war.

Through action of the Retail Mercants' division of the Chamber of Commerce, stores will not close, but at 11 a. m. clerks will stand at attention for two minues in memory of those who made the supreme sacrifice during the war. The same tribute will be paid by children in the public and parochial schools.

Church bells will ring and factory whistles will be sounded for five minutes or longer at the truce hour. Arrangements have also been made to sound the fire sirens in the Diamond and at the corner of Fifth street and Broadway.

The traction companies have agreed to halt all street cars operating within the city limits for two minutes. Business houses have been asked to display flags in the sidewalk sockets or from their store windows.

The Sons of Italy will fire three large bombs from Deidrick's hill at 11 o'clock. They will stage a parade at 2 o'clock and Prof. Alexander's band will give a street concert after the parade. Local veterans' organi-

LAUNCH CAMPAIGN AGAINST RECKLESS AND DRUNKEN DRIVERS AS AUTOMOBILES KILL 12 OHIOANS

With three men lying at the point of death in a Cleveland hospital today, 12 deaths had been recorded over the week-end in traffic accidents in Ohio. As a result of seven fatal accidents in Cleveland a new campaign against reckless and drunken drivers was launched by authorities. The death list included: Seven in Cleveland, one in Warren, one in Toledo, one in Zanesville, one in Dayton and one in Columbus.

A fine snow, freezing upon wind shields as driven by a 50-mile gale, accentuated traffic hazards in Cleveland, officials declared.

CLEVELAND, Nov. 9.—With seven persons dead in greater Cleveland, the result of traffic accidents over the week-end — the heaviest death roll over recorded here—Traffic Commissioner Edward J. Donahue was to ask Safety Director Edwin D. Barry for an immediate addition of 25 more motorcycle policemen to the traffic squad.

Three men were injured this morning when the auto truck in which they were riding to work at the American Steel & Wire company's plant was hit by a freight train at the Independence road crossing.

Their names were not learned. Physicians at the hospital said all three might die.

Escape With Light Fines.

Snow and rain added to the dangers of traffic, accentuated, according to Donahue, by "drunken and reckless driving," on the part of many machine operators.

The death list included:
Miss Evelyn Chertoff, 23.
Mrs. Sophia Wolinski, 23.
Leo Zawicki, 38.
Charles Yesick, 38.
Mrs. Charlotte Edwards, 58.
Mrs. Emelie Van Gastel, 63.
Mrs. Beatrice Johnson, 66.

Greater severity upon the part of judges sitting in traffic court was seen by Fred H. Caley, secretary of the Cleveland Automobile club, as a cure for the mounting casualty list.

"Too many careless, reckless and drunken drivers are let off with light fines," Caley said. "The fear of God must be put into the hearts of these potential murderers."

Some Blame Upon Pedestrians.

Donahue pointed out that completion of the city's automatic traffic signal system would help, but placed some of the blame upon pedestrians, who, in many instances, walk into busy streets without looking for approaching automobiles.

Miss Chertoff, a children's worker at the Jewish center, was fatally injured when she walked into the side of a moving automobile. The driver took her home, where she died. Her skull was fractured.

Mrs. Wolinski was killed when her coupe collided with another machine. Leo Zawicki, her uncle, met death in the same accident. Two men in the other car jumped and fled when the crash came and have not yet been arrested.

Yesek was run down and killed in front of his home.

Mrs. Edwards and Mrs. Van Gesel were pedestrians struck by speeding cars.

A youth of 17 was held for the juvenile authorities today and Mrs. Anna Kernan was dying the result of another traffic accident yesterday. After hitting the woman the boy fled, but was caught by other motorists.

Children Are Victims.

DAYTON, Nov. 9.—Clara May Deis, three years old, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Deis, was killed yesterday afternoon when the automobile in which she was a passenger was struck by a southbound B. & O. passenger train at Woodfield crossing, west of West Carrollton, near here.

The president has lived on a farm. His suggestion will be interesting, for he knows where the farmer's life is.

Miss Jacqueline Rogers, aged 23, confesses that she stole "about one automobile a week" to support her friend, Mr. Kenyon, also 23. She stole the cars, he sold them and the lady, very modern, says "it's about all that boob was good for. He was no use in getting them."

Nevertheless th[illegible] hom and needles[illegible] her. So Adam bl[illegible] when Eve stole the apples before the days of automobiles. He ate it and Eve probably would have said "that's about all that boob was good for," using, of course, the word "schlemiel," Yiddish equivalent for "boob."

The federal council of churches flatly denies that prohibition is a failure.

A million industrious bootleggers concur and also deny most flatly that prohibition is a failure. The thing seems to be unanimous.

During the war did you tear your hair with one hand signing checks for Liberty bonds with the other, praying that before death you might be allowed to kill a German?

Were you all wrought up over terrible German atrocities, children with hands cut off, allied officers crucified, nails driven through their hands and feet? If so, peep behind the scenes and find how the strings were pulled.

He received pictures of a train. One car was loaded with bodies of dead soldiers being drawn away from the battlefield. Another was filled with the bodies of dead cavalry horses. On the carload of dead horses was a sign saying that the carcasses were to be boiled down for soap fat.

General Charteris says he changed the sign from the carload of dead horses to the carload of dead soldiers, circulated the photographs all over the world to arouse hatred against Germany.

The photograph was sent to China where the "worship of ancestors" will make the propaganda story of "boiling down soldiers' bodies

FREE BOOKLET ON BAKING

Some kind of bread is served on the average American table three times a day. The quality of that bread is an important matter. The food value depends on the materials which go into it, whether it is made at home or in the bakery. The Bakery Booklet has been planned primarily as a guide in home baking, but through its discussion of materials it offers help also in the choice of commercial baked products.

This invaluable offering is a free government publication, and our Washington Information Bureau will secure a copy for any reader who fills out and mails the coupon below, enclosing two cents in stamps for return postage. Write your name and address clearly.

FORMER SALINEVILLE PHYSICIAN READY FOR 'LOVE MURDER' ORDEAL

Salineville Club Lauds Prisoner's Devotion to Child

LITTLETON, Colo., Nov. 9.—The Salineville, O., Kiwanis club, among others, today made a plea for mercy in behalf of Dr. Harold Elmer Blazer, former Ohioan, who is charged with the slaying of his imbecilic daughter, Hazel.

The Salineville club, in a letter, told of the "irreproachable character" of Dr. Blazer in that community and graphically described the "loving care and solicitude" that marked his devotion to his invalid child.

Attorney Lewis D. Mory and his associate, H. W. Spangler, were swamped with letters and telegrams from all parts of the country offering advice on every ism and ology known to science that might be applied to the insanity defense of the old fashioned doctor.

SENATE JURY WOULD ACQUIT 'MERCY SLAYER'

POLL IS TAKEN

(Copyright, 1925, by I. N. S.)

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9.—If Dr. Harold E. Blazer, Colorado's "mercy slayer," and former resident of Salineville, O., were being tried before a jury of United States senators instead of a jury of Araphoe farmers, he would be acquitted or put away in an asylum for taking the life of his legless, armless, mindless, husk of a daughter.

The Blazer case has aroused intense interest in the capital because of the many intricate questions of law and science raised in the case.

Twelve members of the senate were picked at random today around the capital and asked to state what their attitude in the Blazer case would be if they were on the jury—in other words constitute a senatorial jury.

Of these 12, three stood for unconditional acquittal, five voted to sustain the defense's plea that the aged doctor was out of his mind when he chloroformed his idiot child, and four voted merely a verdict of guilty.

Drafted for service on this unique jury were several former governors of states, several famous prosecutors, several great trial lawyers, business men and farmers. Most of them were fathers.

Only two declined to permit publication of their names. The verdict was:

For acquittal—Senators Lynn J.

New Heart Throbs Will Be Woven Into Emotional Drama in Drab Colorado District Court.

HE WILL REVEAL IMBECILE'S LIFE

By MICHAEL F. DACEY

LITTLETON, Colo., Nov. 9.—New heart throbs will be woven into the emotional drama that is being enacted in the drab Arapahoe district court here when Dr. Harold Elmer Blazer, on trial for the alleged chloroform-slaying of his 33-year-old idiot daughter, Hazel, takes the witness stand today in his own defense.

Claims Loss of Memory.

Lewis D. Mowry, chief of defense counsel, announced this morning that the old country doctor, who killed his imbecile daughter because he feared he might die suddenly and leave the helpless clod to the mercy of strangers, will be called as the first witness.

The keen-eyed, florid faced defendant appeared bright and cheerful shortly before court opened and declared he was prepared for the ordeal of relating to the jury how 33 long years of constant care, worry and unflagging devotion to his stricken "woman child" who is declared by Attorney Mowry to have been without a soul, had so undermined his mentality that he became the victim of disease that resulted in spells of complete loss of memory.

"If I killed my child, I do not re-

OPEN TWO-WEEK REVIVAL TONIGHT

Rev. John and Bona Fleming, Kentucky evangelists, will open a two weeks' series of evangelistic meetings in the First Church of the Nazarene, corner St. Clair and Lincoln avenues, at 7:30 o'clock this evening.

The evangelists were to have started their local campaign yesterday but were detained at their home in Ashland, Ky., because of the illness of another brother, who is suffering from blood poisoning.

The revival meetings will be featured by music by a large chorus choir and a 15-piece orchestra. Services will be held every evening this week.

Mrs. Paul Joliet Dies Suddenly in Home at Canton

Mrs. Alice McConnell, Kent and Ina Mae McConnell, Clark Bradfield, Margaret Milliron and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Gething were called to Canton yesterday by the death of Mrs. Paul Joliet, mother of Mrs. Rex McConnell.

Mrs. Joliet, who died suddenly, was a resident of Canton for more than 40 years. She was a member of St. Peter's church and Altar society. She leaves her husband, one son and three daughters.

JOHN W. WYMAN, FORMER POLICE CHIEF, DIES IN LOS ANGELES

Served as Sheriff for Two Terms and Town Marshal.

81 YEARS OLD

Funeral Services are Held in California City.

John W. Wyman, 81, sheriff of Columbiana county for two terms and town marshal and chief of police of East Liverpool for approximately 24 years, died in his home in Los Angeles, Cal., early Saturday morning, after a short illness. Burial was made in Inglewood cemetery, Los Angeles, today.

Mr. Wyman resided here for more than 50 years. Two years ago last June he and his wife went to the Pacific coast.

He was born in Huntingdon county, Pa., August 21, 1844, a son of George and Catherine Wyman, and was educated in the schools of Pennsylvania. When a young man he moved to Lawrence county, Pa., where he resided for about six months and then came to East Liverpool.

For three years, Mr. Wyman was employed in the flour mill operated here by James Wilson and for four years in the mill conducted by Christian Metsch. He served as town marshal for six terms of two years each.

Appointed by Mayor Weaver.

In 1887, he was elected sheriff of Columbiana county and two years later was re-elected. In 1903, when the legislature placed police departments under civil service, Mr. Wyman was named chief of police by Mayor W. A. Weaver. He held that office until 1917 when he resigned from the force, to be succeeded by Captain Hugh McDermott. He was once a candidate for the Republican nomination of mayor.

For a short time after leaving the police force, Mr. Wyman served as school attendance officer, but ill health prompted his resignation.

While sheriff and chief of police, Mr. Wyman was known as one of the most fearless men in the county. During his second term as sheriff Ira Marlatt, East Fairfield farmer, shot and killed Barak Ashton and wounded

E. Palestine's First Woman Mayor Warns Law Breakers

Miss Clara Morrow, Democrat, Will Take Into Office Many Years Experience in Public Affairs.

Miss Clara Morrow, Democrat, who will become mayor of East Palestine on Jan. 1, next, thus earning the distinction of being the first Columbiana county woman to be honored with the city executive's post, declared today that she expects to enforce the law without fear or favor.

She will succeed Mayor Albert Ferren, former East Liverpool man, who long has been known as the nemesis of Columbiana county bootleggers.

"I intend to give the people of East Palestine my best service," the mayor-elect said. "I shall make my administration a business one to the extent of my ability. I am not a fanatic, but I expect to enforce all laws on the statute books against the law breakers.

Miss Morrow, who is the first woman elected to any office in East Palestine and the fourth Democrat chosen mayor of that city, will take into office a long experience in public affairs.

Since 1893, when she graduated from high school, she has worked in

MRS. SARAH A. OWEN, AGED 67, DIES IN HER HOME HERE SUNDAY

Funeral Services for Widow of Real Estate Company President Will be Held at 3 p. m. Tomorrow.

Mrs. Sarah Agnes Owen, 67, widow of George H. Owen, died Sunday morning in her home, 415 Jefferson street, after a two weeks' illness of complications.

Mrs. Owen was born in East Liverpool and spent her entire life here. She was a lifelong member of the First Presbyterian church and took an active part in the work of the various church organizations.

She is survived by one son, Frank E. Owen, Parkersburg, W. Va.; three sisters, Mrs. Flora Pomeroy, Mrs. George E. Buxton and Mrs. C. O. Weaver, and one brother, William Allison, all of East Liverpool.

Funeral services will be held at 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon in the home. Rev. Dr. D. W. MacLeod, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, will be in charge. Burial will be made in Riverview cemetery.

Friends may view the body tonight.

FUNERAL SERVICES FOR J. F. MURRAY, CHESTER, WILL BE HELD TOMORROW

Oil Operator, Who Died Saturday, Was Born Near Hamilton, Ontario Canada.

Funeral services for James Fraser Murray, 81 years old, widely known oil operator, will be held at 2:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon in the home, Fifth street, Chester. Rev. W. T. McKee, pastor of the First Presbyterian church of Chester, assisted by Rev. F. C. Roberts, rector of St. Matthew's Episcopal church, Chester, will have charge. Burial will be made in Riverview cemetery, East Liverpool.

Mr. Murray was born in Oxford county, near Hamilton, Ontario, and was the eldest of eight children. He worked on a farm until he was 18 years old when he started into the oil business as a driller. He finally drifted into the Pennsylvania fields and accepted employment at Petroleum Center. Later he engaged in business for himself taking up some leases at Shamburg, Pa., where he went "dead broke" and to use his own words he was "$3,000 worse off than nothing."

He next went to Butler, Pa., where he obtained an interest in a well. This venture also proved a failure. Nothing daunted he bobbed up at St. Joe, Butler county, where he operated, get-

CALDWELL, O., Nov. 9.—For an hour today a Caldwell farmer was a Rockefeller competitor in the oil game—then competition ceased.

Nelse Leisure was awakened by a gurgling hissing noise which seemed to come from the basement of his home. He investigated and found pure Pennsylvania crude oil—worth $2.80 per barrel—oozing into the concrete cellar. He gave one mighty whoop and started bringing barrels to hold the precious fluid.

By the time the barrels arrived the oil had ceased to flow.

An investigation revealed that the Leisure house had been built over on abandoned oil well and that because of poor plugging, some of the oil had found its way into the cellar. Leisure placed some pipes in the hole, so gas could escape and set about making plans to "revive" the well.

AUTO SALESMAN FACES TRIAL FOR DEATH OF TAXI DRIVER

"Accidental Shooting" Defense of Former Football Star.

WIDOW IN COURT

Jurors Will Visit Scene of Tragedy Later in Day.

LISBON, Nov. 9.—The jury in the trial of George Anderson, 43, East Liverpool automobile salesman and former Kenyon college football star, charged with second degree murder in the shooting of Frank R. McLain, 25, East Liverpool taxicab fleet manager, was chosen in common pleas court here at 10:40 o'clock this morning.

Three Women on Jury.

Clarence Fisher, Lisbon.
W. D. Driscoll, Lisbon.
George Ashley, Wellsville.
John Patterson, Elkrun township.
W. T. Speidel, Salem.
E. M. Farmer, Columbiana.
John C. Gaston, Clarkson.
A. P. Boyd, Wellsville.
James Windel, Columbiana.
Etta Mellinger, Leetonia.
Alice Morgan, Wellsville.
Claudia Campbell, Salem.

The jury was accepted by the defense and state after eight prospective veniremen had been challenged and excused.

State's Case Outlined.

After the jurors had been sworn by Judge J. B. Worley, of Cadiz, who is presiding, Prosecutor R. M. Brookes, who, with Attorney Blaine H. Cochran, of East Liverpool, is representing the state, outlined the prosecution's case. He said that the state would prove that the statement, "Oh, my God, I'm shot!" or "My God, I've shot you!" made either by McLain or Anderson at the time of the shooting, would be brought out in the testimony.

Brookes, using his own body as an illustration, pointed out where McLain was shot, with a 45 calibre army automatic revolver after the taxi driver had driven Anderson to the home of the latter's aunt, Miss Elizabeth Anderson, Second and Jackson streets, East Liverpool, and assisted his passenger from the cab to a second floor bedroom in the Anderson house.

The shooting occurred on Saturday night, Oct. 3, McLain dying early Sunday morning in the City hospital.

Claim of Defense.

HONOR HEROES ON TRUCE DAY

Business Will Suspend For Short Period at 11 a. m.

No public ceremonies in observance of Armistice Day will be held in East Liverpool, Wednesday, but fraternal and patriotic organizations plan programs, celebrating the seventh anniversary of the ending of the World war.

Through action of the Retail Mercants' division of the Chamber of Commerce, stores will not close, but at 11 a. m. clerks will stand at attention for two minues in memory of those who made the supreme sacrifice during the war. The same tribute will be paid by children in the public and parochial schools.

Church bells will ring and factory whistles will be sounded for five minutes or longer at the truce hour. Arrangements have also been made to sound the fire girens in the Diamond and at the corner of Fifth street and Broadway.

The traction companies have agreed to halt all street cars operating within the city limits for two minutes. Business houses have been asked to display flags in the sidewalk sockets or from their store windows.

The Sons of Italy will fire three large bombs from Deidrick's hill at 11 o'clock. They will stage a parade at 2 o'clock and Prof. Alexander's band will give a street concert after the parade. Local veterans' organi-

With three men lying at the point of death in a Cleveland hospital today, 12 deaths had been recorded over the week-end in traffic accidents in Ohio. As a result of seven fatal accidents in Cleveland a new campaign against reckless and drunken drivers was launched by authorities. The death list included: Seven in Cleveland, one in Warren, one in Toledo, one in Zanesville, one in Dayton and one in Columbus.

A fine snow, freezing upon wind shields as driven by a 50-mile gale, accentuated traffic hazards in Cleveland, officials declared.

CLEVELAND, Nov. 9.—With seven persons dead in greater Cleveland, the result of traffic accidents over the week-end — the heaviest death roll over recorded here—Traffic Commissioner Edward J. Donahue was to ask Safety Director Edwin D. Barry for an immediate addition of 25 more motorcycle policemen to the traffic squad.

Three men were injured this morning when the auto truck in which they were riding to work at the American Steel & Wire company's plant was hit by a freight train at the Independence road crossing.

Their names were not learned. Physicians at the hospital said all three might die.

Escape With Light Fines.

Snow and rain added to the dangers of traffic, accentuated, according to Donahue, by "drunken and reckless driving," on the part of many machine operators.

The death list included:
Miss Evelyn Chertoff, 23.
Mrs. Sophia Wolinski, 23.
Leo Zawicki, 38.
Charles Yesick, 38.
Mrs. Charlotte Edwards, 58.
Mrs. Emelie Van Gastel, 63.
Mrs. Beatrice Johnson, 66.

Greater severity upon the part of judges sitting in traffic court was seen by Fred H. Caley, secretary of the Cleveland Automobile club, as a cure for the mounting casualty list.

"Too many careless, reckless and drunken drivers are let off with light fines," Caley said. "The fear of God must be put into the hearts of these potential murderers."

Some Blame Upon Pedestrians.

Donahue pointed out that completion of the city's automatic traffic signal system would help, but placed some of the blame upon pedestrians, who, in many instances, walk into busy streets without looking for approaching automobiles.

Miss Chertoff, a children's worker at the Jewish center, was fatally injured when she walked into the side of a moving automobile. The driver took her home, where she died. Her skull was fractured.

Mrs. Wolinski was killed when her coupe collided with another machine. Leo Zawicki, her uncle, met death in the same accident. Two men in the other car jumped and fled when the crash came and have not yet been arrested.

Yesek was run down and killed in front of his home.

Mrs. Edwards and Mrs. Van Gesel were pedestrians struck by speeding cars.

A youth of 17 was held for the juvenile authorities today and Mrs. Anna Kernan was dying the result of another traffic accident yesterday. After hitting the woman the boy fled, but was caught by other motorists.

Children Are Victims.

DAYTON, Nov. 9.—Clara May Deis, three years old, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Deis, was killed yesterday afternoon when the automobile in which she was a passenger was struck by a southbound B. & O. passenger train at Woodfield crossing, west of West Carrollton, near here.

Two women, Mrs. Marcella Tate, 22, and Miss Dona Boone, 17, both of Day-

Playhouse, where many visitors have enjoyed it and returned home with the catch line of the show-off on their lips, "Sign on the dotted line,' and with chuckles of amusement at the ludicrous situations of the play. George Kelly, the author, directed all rehearsals and staged his play with the same care as the New York production received, with the result that it has scored a big success.

There are 'show-offs'—male and female—all around us. George Kelly chose a freight clerk, in the Pennsylvania offices and "the kid from West Philly," with this "sign on the dotted line," his idiotic self sufficiency and vanity makes every man in the audience want to flatten him out and reduce him to his proper equation in the scheme of things as they are. Their interest is centered in Pa and Ma Fisher and their daughter, and the Fisher home life. It is a transcript of American home life which appeals to all, has delighted hundreds of thousands of playgoers and is a welcome addition to the best theatrical offerings of native drama seen in years.

"Halitosis?" said the man who doesn't read advertisements. "I think he was on one of the debt commissions."—Youngstown Vindicator.

Tells Why He Can Now Eat Hearty

"A letter which I read in the paper about Carter's Little Liver Pills fitted my own case so closely that I could not help trying them and am very happy I did." So writes Mr. Frank J Trumbull of Jersey City, N J., whose letter goes on to say: "I had heard about Carter's Little Liver Pills for years but never knew they helped overcome poor appetite and sour stomach until I read about another man in the same plight who took Carter's with good results. I tried them and can honestly say that they freed me of nasty gas on stomach, so that I can now eat without getting bilious, and they improved my appetite fully 100%. You can rest assured that from now on I will boost Carter's Little Liver Pills whenever I can."

'Sign On Dotted Line,' Says 'Show-Off,' Coming to Ceramic

Stewart and French, who gave production to George Kelly's, "The Torch-Bearers," are sending George Kelly's transcript of American life, "The Show-Off" to the Ceramic theatre, Thursday evening, Nov. 12.

In Burns Mantle's book, "The Best Plays of 1923-24," a year book of the drama in America which is of interest and value to all thoughtful playgoers, he heads his list of the ten best plays with "The Show-Off,' which was also nominated for the Pulitzer Prize.

The Story of a Household

Evening always found Mrs. A. nervous and irritable, althought there wasn't actually much housework to be done in her small apartment. But she complained that every time she bent over her kitchen table the same old pain in her back seized her, so that it was real agony for her to attend to the simplest household duties. It didn't seem right to be so completely worn when her work was done, and she knew something was wrong. A consultation with a physician solved the problem. Mrs. A. had been suffering from kidney trouble for a long time, just as are many people who suspect it no more than she did. Just a little disorder that could have been overcome long ago was being allowed to develop through ignorance and neglect and was ruining her health.

The treatment was simple and one that the nearest drug store provided. Dr. Pierce's An-uric tablets proved to be the remedy that put Mrs. A. on her feet again and brought her old energy. How sorry she was that she hadn't thought of it long ago! She recommends "An-uric" (kidney-backache) Tablets to all her friends now.

Pity the Weak Skinny Children

Nature's greatest health builder and strength giver is Cod Liver Oil—it's full of vitamines of the first class—everyone knows that.

But pity the poor children—how can they take this nasty, nauseating stuff that invariably upsets their small, delicate stomachs?

Most of them can't and now—thank goodness none of them have to.

For now Cod Liver Oil comes in tasteless sugar coated tablets, that are as easy for the kids to take as candy and they sure do build up the youngsters in double quick time.

So mothers, if any one of your loved ones is frail and peaked or isn't feeling right just ask Mathews Medicine store or any druggist for a box of McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets—60 tablets—60 cents.

One sickly, thin child aged 9 gained 12 pounds in seven months and now plays daily with other children.

Splendid for any run down, weak, skinny, nervous man or woman—thousands of boxes are sold daily—but be sure and ask for McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets—the original and genuine. Try them for 30 days and if you aren't delighted with the improvement your druggist is authorized to hand you back the money you paid for them.

Gulbransen Registering Piano Community Model

Let this Christmas Bring You Happy Hours of Music that You Play Yourself on the

Gulbransen Registering Piano

UNTIL the introduction of the Gulbransen Registering Piano, only those who had studied and practiced for years could play the kind of music they or their friends could enjoy.

Now anyone without previous musical training can play with all the expression of a trained pianist who plays by hand.

You can play a piano solo by roll on the Gulbransen Registering Piano equal to hand-playing—not mechanically as on ordinary player pianos—but with your own interpretation—your personal touch.

You can accompany singers on this piano easily and inspiringly with perfect control of the keys, even though you may not know one note from another.

You may have a talent for music that has never been developed. When you play this responsive instrument for the first time you will discover a talent that will bring you many happy hours of music if you have a Gulbransen Piano in your home.

Come in and play a few rolls of the kind of music you like. You'll be surprised at the musical talent you possess even though you have never had any musical training, for you can play this instrument by roll with expression—just like hand playing.

Tells Why He Can Now Eat Hearty

"A letter which I read in the paper about Carter's Little Liver Pills fitted my own case so closely that I could not help trying them and am very happy I did." So writes Mr. Frank J. Trumbull of Jersey City, N. J., whose letter goes on to say: "I had heard about Carter's Little Liver Pills for years but never knew they helped overcome poor appetite and sour stomach until I read about another man in the same plight who took Carter's with good results. I tried them and can honestly say that they freed me of nasty gas on stomach, so that I can now eat without getting bilious, and they improved my appetite fully 100%. You can rest assured that from now on I will boost Carter's Little Liver Pills whenever I can."

Let this Christmas Bring You Happy Hours of Music that You Play Yourself on the

Gulbransen Registering Piano

UNTIL the introduction of the Gulbransen Registering Piano, only those who had studied and practiced for years could play the kind of music they or their friends could enjoy.

Now anyone without previous musical training can play with all the expression of a trained pianist who plays by hand.

You can play a piano solo by roll on the Gulbransen Registering Piano equal to hand-playing—not mechanically as on ordinary player pianos—but with your own interpretation—your personal touch.

You can accompany singers on this piano easily and inspiringly with perfect control of the keys, even though you may not know one note from another.

You may have a talent for music that has never been developed. When you play this responsive instrument for the first time you will discover a talent that will bring you many happy hours of music if you have a Gulbransen Piano in your home.

Come in and play a few rolls of the kind of music you like. You'll be surprised at the musical talent you possess even though you have never had any musical training, for you can play this instrument by roll with expression—just like hand playing.

'Sign On Dotted Line,' Says 'Show-Off,' Coming to Ceramic

Stewart and French, who gave production to George Kelly's, "The Torch-Bearers," are sending George Kelly's transcript of American life, "The Show-Off" to the Ceramic theatre, Thursday evening, Nov. 12.

In Burns Mantle's book, "The Best Plays of 1923-24," a year book of the drama in America which is of interest and value to all thoughtful playgoers, he heads his list of the ten best plays with "The Show-Off,' which was also nominated for the Pulitzer Prize.

"The Show-Off was one of the outstanding successes in New York and ran well into its second year at the Playhouse, where many visitors have enjoyed it and returned home with the catch line of the show-off on their lips, "Sign on the dotted line,' and with chuckles of amusement at the ludicrous situations of the play. George Kelly, the author, directed all rehearsals and staged his play with the same care as the New York production received, with the result that it has scored a big success.

The Story of a Household

Evening always found Mrs. A. nervous and irritable, although there wasn't actually much housework to be done in her small apartment. But she complained that every time she bent over her kitchen table the same old pain in her back seized her, so that it was real agony for her to attend to the simplest household duties. It didn't seem right to be so completely worn when her work was done, and she knew something was wrong. A consultation with a physician solved the problem. Mrs. A. had been suffering from kidney trouble for a long time, just as are many people who suspect it no more than she did. Just a little disorder that could have been overcome long ago was being allowed to develop through ignorance and neglect and was ruining her health.

The treatment was simple and one that the nearest drug store provided. Dr. Pierce's An-uric tablets proved to be the remedy that put Mrs. A. on her feet again and brought her old energy. How sorry she was that she hadn't thought of it long ago! She recommends "An-uric" (kidney-backache) Tablets to all her friends now.

Pity the Weak Skinny Children

Nature's greatest health builder and strength giver is Cod Liver Oil—it's full of vitamines of the first class—everyone knows that.

But pity the poor children—how can they take this nasty, nauseating stuff that invariably upsets their small, delicate stomachs?

Most of them can't and now—thank goodness none of them have to.

For now Cod Liver Oil comes in tasteless sugar coated tablets, that are as easy for the kids to take as candy and they sure do build up the youngsters in double quick time.

So mothers, if any one of your loved ones is frail and peaked or isn't feeling right just ask Mathews Medicine store or any druggist for a box of McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets—60 tablets—60 cents.

One sickly, thin child aged 9 gained 12 pounds in seven months and now plays daily with other children.

Splendid for any run down, weak, skinny, nervous man or woman—thousands of boxes are sold daily—but be sure and ask for McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets—the original and genuine. Try them for 30 days and if you aren't delighted with the improvement your druggist is authorized to hand you back the money you paid for them.

DRY OFFICERS ARREST FOUR

Cases Will be Tried in Salem Mayor's Court.

Charged with violation of prohibition laws, three men and one woman, all Italians, were arrested here Saturday afternoon by a squad of enforcement agents on warrants issued from the court of Mayor George Russell, of Salem.

Mrs. Modesta Lozzo, 29 Third street; Rocco Corbisella, 307, Main street; and Tony Venziale, 1531 Main street were taken before the Salem court on charges of possessing intoxicating liquor.

Charles Prezzia, 1230 Commerce street, was charged with manufacturing intoxicating liquor.

Mrs. Lozzo, Corbisella and Venziale were released on bonds, respectively, of $500. Prezzia was released under bond of $2,000.

The enforcement officers, known as "inspectors from the office of State Prohibition Director B. F. McDonald, of Columbus,' entered the city shortly after noon, it is said, and visited a number of places. Only four arrests were made, however.

At Mrs. Modesta Lozzo's place, the officers are alleged to have found two quarts of whiskey and 300 bottles of beer. The beer, it is said, was secreted beneath the flooring.

At Carbisella's, the raiders found a quart of whisky, and it is claimed, a pint bottle of liquor and a whisky glass in Carbisella's coat pocket.

A 15-gallon still, in operation, it is alleged, was found at Charles Prezzia's. In addition, the officers confiscated four barrels of mash and eight gallons liquor.

Two bottles of whisky were said to have been found at Tony Venziale's.

The quartet was taken to Salem where they posted bond. No definite date was set by Mayor Russell for hearings.

The enforcement officers who conducted the raid have been working in and around the northern part of Columbiana county during the past several weeks.

DR. CALDWELL AT AGE 83

To Dr. W. B. Caldwell, of Monticello, Ill., a practicing physician for 47 years, it seemed cruel that so many constipated infants and children had to be kept constantly "stirred up" and half sick by taking cathartic pills, tablets, salts, calomel and nasty oils.

While he knew that constipation was the cause of nearly all children's little ills, he did not believe that a sickening "purge" or "physic" every little while was necessary.

In Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin he discovered a laxative which regulates the bowels. A single dose will establish natural, healthy bowel movement for weeks at a time, even if the child was chronically constipated. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin not only causes a gentle, easy bowel movement but, best of all, it is often months before another dose is necessary. Besides, it is absolutely harmless, and so pleasant that even a cross, feverish, bilious, sick child gladly takes it.

HIGHS LOSE AT SALEM, 19 TO 0

Playing through an incessant downpour of rain at Reilly Field, Salem, Saturday afternoon, Wellsville high school gridders bowed to the Red and Black, 19 to 0, on a slimy, mud covered gridiron.

The light Wellsville eleven was unable to withstand the attack of the north county combine and three touchdowns were registered, two by Coffee and one by Tackle Older, who, in the final quarter, was brought back from the line to carry the ball.

Despite various handicaps with which they were beset, the Orange and Black battled every minute of the contest in a courageous attempt to score, but their efforts were unavailing.

The lineup:

Guard Against "Flu" With Musterole

Musterole relives the congestion and stimulates circulation. It has all the good qualities of the old-fashioned mustard plaster without the blister.

Rub it on with your finger-tips. First you feel a warm tingle as the healing ointment penetrates the pores, then a soothing, cooling sensation and quick relief. Have Musterole handy for emergency use. It may prevent serious illness.

To Mothers: Musterole is also made in milder form for babies and small children. Ask for Children's Musterole.

3,000,000 Motorists Are Courting Disaster

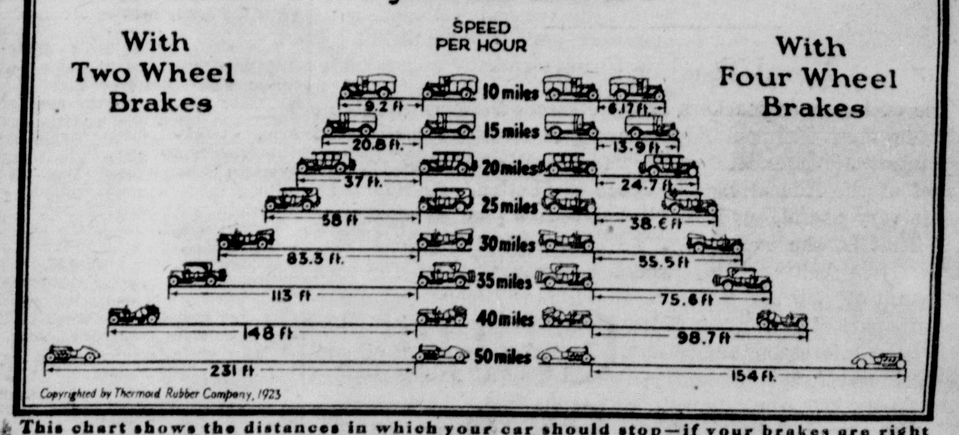
OVER 15,000,000 cars on American streets and roads today! And at least one-fourth of them have brakes so faulty as to be positively dangerous.

ANOTHER fifty per cent are running with brakes in only "fair" condition. These are figures collected by police departments in various cities.

IS it any wonder that our daily papers show accident lists that read like a war-time report of battle casualties?

ARE YOUR BRAKES SAFE?

Will your car do this?



This chart shows the distances in which your car should stop—if your brakes are right

IF NOT, have your brakes relined with

Russia In The League?

A new foreign policy has been launched by the Russian Soviet government, says an American correspondent at Berlin. According to his information, supported by the attitude of a leading Russian newspaper, Russia is making a complete about-face and, after having scorned and fought the league of nations, is now willing to join it.

Locarno, he says, opened the eyes of the Soviet leaders—as it did, for that matter, of the rest of the world. The results of that conference are regarded as evidence of a sincere desire for peace, "especially in England, where the workers will no longer tolerate war." Europe wants peace, say the Russian Communists, if only for economic reasons, and they feel that "they cannot stay out of a club of peaceful nations without hurting themselves." So if the Locarno pact is ratified, and Germany becomes a member of the league, Russia may follow soon.

Would Bolshevist-Soviet-Communist Russia be welcomed as Germany is? That is hard to say. There will doubtless be opposition to her by nations that fear Communist propaganda in the guise of league activity. Others will argue that application for membership in the league means that Russia herself is eager for peace.

Certainly there can be no assured peace in Europe, even after Locarno, as long as Russia remains an outcast, at swords' points with the other powers. If she is not within the league, an understanding and a workable arrangement will have to be made with Russia som...ow.

Compulsory Voting

Now Australia is going to have an election, and with an unusual condition. For once, perhaps, the voting itself will be more interesting than the people and the things voted for. Australia has a new law which voting is compulsory. Stay-aways will go to jail, unless they can furnish a mighty good reason for their absence from the polls.

A half-hearted effort of this sort was made some time ago, with indifferent results. But now there is a new law with teeth in it.

We shall see what we shall see, and the result may help in working out our own voting problem. There are plenty of good citizens in this country ready to demand a similar law. Others will be inclined in the future, as in the past, to question whether it pays to drive citizens to the polls—whether an unwilling and uninterested voter is any better than no voter—whether it isn't well to keep voting a privilege rather than a forced duty—whether it isn't all right, everything considered, that those who won't take the trouble to help govern should be governed by those who will.

Facts Or Prejudice

During the days preceding the recent election Miss Belle Sherwin, president of the National League of Women Voters, urged citizens to cast their ballots "guided by facts, not hearsay or propaganda." It was such excellent advice and so well applicable to other matters than voting that it is worth repeating even though the election is over.

Miss Sherwin believes that sound self-education is necessary to make democracy successful. For that end, too, the habit of accepting hearsay evidence must be overcome. The trustworthiness of sources of information should be proved. People need to develop an appetite for facts and for an understanding of them.

Certainly such guidance would work wonders in the practice of citizenship. It would also work wonders in other branches of living. The search for an understanding of facts would go far toward developing fine tolerance. It would help to eliminate prejudices and mistakes and cruelty. Facts alone are not all-powerful, but the honest search for them is very enlightening and broadening.

Local Teacher Exchange

The exchange of teachers and professors between countries is becoming more common and is proving of definite value in promoting international understanding and educational progress. The president of the Educational Institute of Scotland, finding such exchange very useful, suggests that the same plan be applied at home. That is, she would have an exchange of city and rural teachers. She believes this would create sympathy for each other's point of view and would develop a more broad-minded outlook on the part of both types of teachers.

It is an interesting suggestion. To make it work at all successfully, however, in this country, at least, the teaching standards of the two sections would have to be harmonized. At present, in many of our rural communities, the requirements and qualifications of teachers are placed too low. Young men and women of little education and no special preparation are frequently allowed to teach, while in some of the cities college or normal training, or both, are required.

It would be an excellent thing if teaching standards throughout the country could all be brought up to the highest level now established, one which includes requirements of personality as well as pedagogical training. This would mean making salary scales more nearly uniform, too, but that should mean progress.

The circus man with double joints and rubber bones should be kept off the streets. A pedestrian like that isn't fair to drivers.

NEW YORK DAYBYDAY

By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Nov. 9. — Diary of a modern Samuel Pepys: Up to walk my dog and Jay Brennan, the comic, told of meeting an old character actress who said she was tired of New York. He told her she might like it better after living here a while. Then he asked her how long she had been in town. She said 43 years.

Hence to breakfast with R. Long and Marshall Neilan, but they had gone, and so home, but the people next door so noisy I could not labor, what with their screeching and talking machine, but I suffered no anger soever.

In the evening to sit with a friend brought to bed of a fever, and he told of a scurvy turn he did me once and had it not failed it would have wrought havoc not only to myself but innocent people. So to walk home in a great wonder and to bed.

Old ladies who play character parts in the theatre seem to be from another world. They recall the poke-bonneted, black satin ladies of the 90's. They appear attuned to martyrdom and a little defeated by sacrifices. They visit the sick and cheer the disconsolate and live alone in shabby boarding houses.

When they are not engaged they make the rounds of agencies and appear far happier than younger applicants. There are many past 60 who have devoted their lives to the stage and never had more than a few lines to speak.

Top salary for them is $50 a week. They receive a polite gallantry from their fellows, but they rarely become a part of the real camaraderie of the stage. At the season's height there are only about 12 playing on Broadway while at least 200 look for work.

There is a character actress whose three sons are chorus men. She keeps house for them and now and then plays short engagements. Her husband is said to be a middle west banker and wanted his sons to follow banking careers, but they preferred to follow their mother's profession and separation followed.

Wardrobe women are usually former small-part actresses. They become buxim, white-haired, motherly souls who look out for the gay young folk of the stage. Sometimes they preside over the domicile of a group of chorus girls and act as mothers when the Johns become too brash.

Two show girls have decided if their boy friends want to be seen in public with them they must pay for it. Gaby Deslys did the same thing years ago when she was the talk of Paris, but her rate was much higher. The New York girls are said—although I have not seen them—to have printed cards with the following tariff:

Luncheon $10.
Dinner $15.
Midnight supper club $15.

Men actually pay for this privilege. They have bright and fair companionship and probably the thrill of thinking themselves men about town.

A most discouraging job is that of the rubberneck wagon ballyhoo on Broadway. He must salvage patronage out of the hurrying throngs, and despite his constant pleadings they pass by for hours. He never loses hope, and somehow he fills the car. One never sees a rubberneck wagon starting with a half load. The investment in sightseeing wagons represent thousands of dollars and they make money, but it seems a precarious business. Nobody apparently goes on one of the trips of their own volition. They must be talked into it.

HASKIN'S LETTER

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN

New Columbus Memorial.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9.—The Pan American Union recently made two announcements, which coming on the heels of the unveiling of San Martin's statue, indicate that this organization and interests allied with it are making progress in their effort to link the Americans with friendship. These announcements were that there would be erected at Santo Domingo City, capital of the Dominician Republic, a memorial to Christopher Columbus, who, according to most present-day authorities is buried there, and that the Dominician Republic soon would present a statue of Juan Pablo Duarte, its George Washington, to the Hall of Heroes in the Pan American building here. The former announcement will, no doubt, be of great interest to Americans.

The memorial to Columbus will be a unique affair. It will be a lighthouse. This Faro de Colon—Light of Columbus—will be one of the highest lighthouses in the world. It will look out from Santo Domingo City at the ships passing to and from the Panama Canal, and its flashes, arranged in Morse code, will spell out Colon.

The type of light that will be used will be an innovation in lighthouse beacons. It is called the Neon Light, made possible by new colors discovered at the end of the spectrum. It is of reddish yellow color and is very penetrating, being plainly discernible in heavy fogs. It is cheap and is in use along the London-Paris airway. It can be operated on one-fourth the power needed for an ordinary electric light of the same size.

The lighthouse will be a combination. It is planned to make it a shrine to Columbus and there will be a museum of Columbus relics in it. Likewise there will be a temple dedicated to him and his mausoleum will be removed from its present resting place—the Cathedral at Santo Domingo City where Durate is also buried—and placed there.

The idea of a lighthouse memorial to the First Admiral originated in the mind of an American, William E. Pulliam, receiver general of the Dominican republic. He broached the subject to the people of that nation and reecived an enthusiastic response.

A committee was formed, made up of Dominicans, which set out on a campaign to bring about the realization of the project. All the countries of the Americas were responsive, and even European nations welcomed the idea. There is now a working organization in Santo Domingo city which is making steady progress toward the completion of plans for the memorial. A recent message from Cuba states that cooperation from that country may be counted on, while the Pan American congress, sitting at Santiago de Chile, May 7, 1925, lent its indorsement. When the fundamental plans of organization and financing are completed an architects' competition will be held, and a design selected.

The burial place of Columbus was long a subject of controversy, but of late years it has been established almost beyond doubt that the canthedral of Santo Domingo city houses his bones.

Columbus died in Valladolid, Spain, in the year 1506. In 1513 his body was removed to Seville, where it remained for more than 20 years. In 1537, however, in accordance with his expressed wishes it was transferred to Santo Domingo city and laid in the cathedral, which had been erected in 1514 at the imperial order of Ferdinand and Isabella, and is one of the most important religious buildings in the Western Hemisphere today. Columbus was buried beside the bodies of his son and brother.

In 1795 Spain, by treaty, ceded the island of Santo Domingo—the modern Haiti and the Dominican republic—to France. The Spanish officer in charge of the island decided that it would be unworthy of his country and himself to leave the casket of one so illustrious in the service of Spain in foreign hands, so he ordered it removed to Havana. This was done with great solemnity and ceremony, or, rather, what was believed to be the casket of Columbus was removed.

In 1877 the cathedral, being in need of repair, was being worked over by a group of workmen. There had been vague rumors in Santo Domingo city that Columbus' body was still in the cathedral and that it was that of his son Diego which had been removed to Havana, but the people had paid no attention to them. When, however, these workmen, digging in the ancient walls, ran on to forgotten doors and half-buried compartments, and reported the discovery of a casket, these rumors gained credence. And later, when, in the presence of the archbishop and an august group of foreign dignitaries and representatives, this casket was unearthed and the words First Admiral found inscribed upon it, the rumors became fact and with salutes of cannon and many ceremonies the Dominican republic hailed the discovery of the tomb of the discoverer of America.

Then followed years of rest for the Genoan in the cathedral built by the monarchs he served. His mausoleum is in it now, but what is considered to be a more distinguishing memorial to him will house it soon.

Pan American Heroes.

The Hall of Heroes in the Pan American Union building is situated in the west corridor on the second floor and it is planned to have a bust of each national hero in the Western Hemisphere deposited there. Ecuador, Paraguay, and Nicaragua will, after the presentation of Durate's image, be the only ones unrepresented. Ecuador's bust is selected, but has not arrived yet.

Durate is immortal in Dominican history. It was he who named the republic. It was he who founded the famous Trinity which resulted in the Endless Chain, an organization which started the Spanish inhabitants of Santo Domingo island toward independence. Like so many men who give themselves to a public cause, he became a martyr to his people and was exiled in 1844. He died in Venezuela in 1884 and his body subsequently was brought back to the Dominican republic and placed in the cathedral at Santo Domingo city, where is has reposed ever since.

The Hall of Heroes is a shrine of Pan American Friendship. The Columbus memorial, sponsored and supported so enthusiastically by the Pan American Union is another evidence of the solidiarity of this friendship. The two together are further evidence that this friendship, already puissant, is growing stronger.

All the countries of the Americas were responsive, and even European nations welcomed the idea. There is now a working organization in Santo Domingo city which is making steady progress toward the completion of plans for the memorial. A recent message from Cuba states that cooperation from that country may be counted on, while the Pan American congress, sitting at Santiago de Chile, May 7, 1925, lent its indorsement. When the fundamental plans of organization and financing are completed an architects' competition will be held, and a design selected.

The burial place of Columbus was long a subject of controversy, but of late years it has been established almost beyond doubt that the cathedral of Santo Domingo city houses his bones.

Columbus died in Valladolid, Spain, in the year 1506. In 1513 his body was removed to Seville, where it remained for more than 20 years. In 1537, however, in accordance with his expressed wishes it was transferred to Santo Domingo city and laid in the cathedral, which had been erected in 1514 at the imperial order of Ferdinand and Isabella, and is one of the most important religious buildings in the Western Hemisphere today. Columbus was buried beside the bodies of his son and brother.

In 1795 Spain, by treaty, ceded the island of Santo Domingo—the modern Haiti and the Dominican republic—to France. The Spanish officer in charge of the island decided that it would be unworthy of his country and himself to leave the casket of one so illustrious in the service of Spain in foreign hands, so he ordered it removed to Havana. This was done with great solemnity and ceremony, or, rather, what was believed to be the casket of Columbus was removed.

In 1877 the cathedral, being in need of repair, was being worked over by a group of workmen. There had been vague rumors in Santo Domingo city that Columbus' body was still in the cathedral and that it was that of his son Diego which had been removed to Havana, but the people had paid no attention to them. When, however, these workmen, digging in the ancient walls, ran on to forgotten doors and half-buried compartments, and reported the discovery of a casket, these rumors gained credence. And later, when, in the presence of the archbishop and an august group of foreign dignitaries and representatives, this casket was unearthed and the words First Admiral found inscribed upon it, the rumors became fact and with salutes of cannon and many ceremonies the Dominican republic hailed the discovery of the tomb of the discoverer of America.

Then followed years of rest for the Genoan in the cathedral built by the monarchs he served. His mausoleum is in it now, but what is considered to be a more distinguishing memorial to him will house it soon.

Pan American Heroes.

The Hall of Heroes in the Pan American Union building is situated in the west corridor on the second floor and it is planned to have a bust of each national hero in the Western Hemisphere deposited there. Ecuador, Paraguay, and Nicaragua will, after the presentation of Durate's image, be the only ones unrepresented. Ecuador's bust is selected, but has not arrived yet.

Durate is immortal in Dominican history. It was he who named the republic. It was he who founded the famous Trinity which resulted in the Endless Chain, an organization which started the Spanish inhabitants of Santo Domingo island toward independence. Like so many men who give themselves to a public cause, he became a martyr to his people and was exiled in 1844. He died in Venezuela in 1884 and his body subsequently was brought back to the Dominican republic and placed in the cathedral at Santo Domingo city, where is has reposed ever since.

The Hall of Heroes is a shrine of Pan American Friendship. The Columbus memorial, sponsored and supported so enthusiastically by the Pan American Union is another evidence of the solidiarity of this friendship. The two together are further evidence that this friendship, already puissant, is growing stronger.

PEP is Vitality

More energy will increase your earning ability

IT is the red blooded people who win success in this world! Red blood gives men and women the vitality—the energy—the strength and the activity to earn what they deserve!

Nobody can do justice to themselves when they are suffering for want of rich, red blood. It is this impoverished condition of the blood that causes so many failures in life. There's no place at the top for the weakling—the men and women with poor, weak blood.

Build up your blood! Get in the red-blooded class—and get the rewards you deserve. S. S. S. will do it for you! S. S. S. helps Nature build millions of red-blood-cells!

S. S. S. sends rich, red blood tingling to every fibre of your body and every pore of your skin. You are fairly radiant with energy, vim and vitality.

You'll look like success, too! The rich, red blood that S. S. S. helps Nature build for you will clear your skin of any ugly blemishes—your eyes will sparkle with enthusiasm — firm, solid flesh will round out your figure—strength and power will come to weak, flabby muscles.

Kansas City Doctor Invents New Truss

New Discovery Heals Rupture Without an Operation.

A new discovery which, experts agree, has no equal for curative effects in all rupture cases, is the latest accomplishment of the well-known Hernia Specialist. Dr. Andrew Kaiser, 4848 Koch Bldg., Kansas City, Mo. The extraordinary success of this new method proves that it holds and heals a rupture. It weighs only a few ounces. Has no hard gouging pads, no elastic belt, no leg straps, no cruel steel bands, and is as comfortable as a light garment. It has enabled hundreds of persons to throw away trusses and declare their rupture absolutely healed. Many of these had serious double ruptures, from which they had suffered for years. It is Dr. Kaiser's ambition to have every ruptured person enjoy the quick relief, comfort and healing power of his discovery, and he will send it on free trial to any reader of The Review-Tribune who writes him. He wants one person in each neighborhood to whom he can refer. If you wish to be rid of rupture for good, without an operation, take advantage of the doctor's free offer. Write him today. BETTER THAN CALOMEL

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—the substitute for calomel—are a mild but sure laxative, and their effect on the liver is almost instantaneous. These little olive-colored tablets are the result of Dr. Edwards' determination not to treat liver and bowel complaints with calomel.

The pleasant little tablets do the good that calomel does, but have no bad after effects. They don't injure the teeth like strong liquids or calomel. They take hold of the trouble and quickly correct it. Why cure the liver at the expense of the teeth? Calomel sometimes plays havoc with the gums. So do strong liquids. It is best not to take calomel. Let Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets take its place.

Headaches, "dullness" and that lazy feeling come from constipation and a disordered liver. Take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets when you feel "logy" and "heavy." They "clear" clouded brain and "perk up" the spirits. 15c and 30c.

BETTER THAN CALOMEL

Thousands Have Discovered Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets Are a Harmless Substitute.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—the substitute for calomel—are a mild but sure laxative, and their effect on the liver is almost instantaneous. These little olive-colored tablets are the result of Dr. Edwards' determination not to treat liver and bowel complaints with calomel.

The pleasant little tablets do the good that calomel does, but have no bad after effects. They don't injure the teeth like strong liquids or calomel. They take hold of the trouble and quickly correct it. Why cure the liver at the expense of the teeth? Calomel sometimes plays havoc with the gums. So do strong liquids. It is best not to take calomel. Let Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets take its place.

Headaches, "dullness" and that lazy feeling come from constipation and a disordered liver. Take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets when you feel "logy" and "heavy." They "clear" clouded brain and "perk up" the spirits. 15c and 30c.

COL. MITCHELL OUTLINES HIS DEFENSE PLANS

Faces Task of Proving Truth of Criticisms.

TRIAL RESUMED

Representative Reid Says he Will Produce Evidence.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9.—After thundering new accusations of incompetency against the war and navy departments for their conduct of the air services, Col. William Mitchell began at noon today the effort of trying to prove, through witnesses, that his charges of "almost treasonable administration and criminal negligence," against these departments, were justified.

One of the fresh accusations was that the war department had permitted an Austro-German owned flying organization to set up a commercial flying business "within striking distance of the Panama Canal Zone."

The first defense witness called by Mitchell was Brig. Gen. Amos A. Fries, head of the chemical warfare service.

Announcement of the defense plan of action was made by Representative Frank R. Reid, (R.) of Illinois chief of Mitchell's counsel as soon as court convened.

"I conceive it my duty,' said Reid, "in the interests of justice and in the proper presentation of the defense of the accused, to produce direct and positive evidence which will not only convince Col. Mitchell's accusers of their error but remove much ignorance by a revelation of the truth."

Reid declared the defense would prove the War and Navy departments were guilty of "An almost treasonable administration of aviation."

Then Reid announced he was considering a request for contempt citations against the acting heads of the war department for their issuing press reports on the Mitchell trial.

Coroner's Verdict Is Handed Down in J. W. Reed Death

Funeral services for John W. Reed, 68 years old, who was fatally injured when run down by a Y. & O. interurban car at the Claybourne avenue crossing Saturday, will be held at 1:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon at the home in Dresden avenue. Rev. W. H. Clark, pastor of the Emmanuel Presbyterian church, will have charge. Interment will be made in Riverview cemetery.

Coroner J. M. Van Fossan of East Palestine, who conducted an inquest, returned a verdict that "death was caused by being struck by an electric car on the Youngstown and Ohio River line."

An average of less than one in twenty girls of Germany bob their hair.

In that interesting way international hatred was built up.

The British are excited about General Charteris' story, not that it isn't true, but because he ought not to tell. However, when you fight you fight, and to fight well you must hate. Everything is fair in war from poison gas to lying. The thing is to win.

The American tariff on sugar is ruining Cuba, a friendly neighbor to which we owe at least friendship and decent treatment.

Cuba's commercial balance of trade with the United States has fallen in the last year from $167,000,000 to $85,000,000.

Cuba, with commercial generosity, continues buying in our markets while we with our cut-throat sugar tariff are doing all we can to strangle the prosperity of Cuba.

The tax we inflict on Cuban sugar amounts to more than 100 per cent.

One hundred and seven pounds of raw sugar make 100 pounds of granulated sugar. It costs about 1 cent a pound to make raw sugar into white sugar. The Cugan sugar grower after paying freight, lighterage, warehouse, railway tax on industrial process and other costs gets less than one-half a cent a pound for the raw sugar refined and retailed here at 6 cents.

Under such conditions the Cuban grower cannot live. Leaving out any question of decency it is against the interest of this country to destroy Cuba's sugar industry. A little while ago Americans were eagerly buying for $25 a bag of sugar that can be bought now for $5 to $6.

Unless housewives want to see the price of sugar go up again they will do well to lay in a supply and help get rid of the present surplus.

Gen. Felix Agnus, a brave, useful fighter in the army and in journalism, is dead in Baltimore at the age of 86. He fought for France, his native land, and in the army of Garibaldi. For half a century or more he lived in the United States, the best type of patriotic American citizen. And he retained the French qualities with which he was born and of which he was proud, retaining also as he should, his deep love for France.

Gen. Agnus worked and fought for the right as long as there was any life in him. He is gone now to the home of good workers and good fighters.

China's thickly populated Shantung province was flooded at the rate of 40,000 cubic feet a second because of two breaks in the dikes of the Yellow river.

That great river is called "China's sorrow," because of the calamities it inflicts, and has made 2,000,000 homeless this time.

One thousand villages are inundated.

What with Yellow river, pestilence, bandits, Christian and Confucian generals fighting, European nations interfering, taxing and bullying, you need not envy the poor Chinese.

Some scientist observes that the human race talks too much about pain and too little about "absence of pain."

We think too much of a pain or an ache, too little of the fact that of eighteen hundred million people on earth, about seventeen hundred million live free of pain and think nothing about it.

Forty-eight states of this nation do not half appreciate their freedom from the trouble of China and a hundred other countries.

In the Mexican state of Tobasco five Catholic priests are arrested because they refused to marry. The state of Tobasco has passed a law forbidding priests of any denomination to perform religious duties until they are married.

This is kind of stupid intolerance that carries its own punishment and its own failure within itself. It is as idiotic as it would be to pass a law forbidding any clergyman to officiate unless he were a bachelor. Such laws don't last long.

Attorney Hollis E. Grosshans, of Youngstown, and Attorney George T. Farrell, of Lisbon, has been retained by Anderson, made the opening statement for the defense.

He declared "accidental shooting" would be the defense. "Our claim in the whole matter, and all the circumstances we will show you, will convince you that the shooting was accidental,' said Grosshans.

The defense counsel than declared that McLain, the victim of the shooting, and Anderson were close friends. He said Anderson had sold McLain a taxicab. He added there had been no trouble between them and no words had been exchanged on the night of the shooting.

Hear Testimony Tomorrow.

Jesse McLain, 70, father of the slain man, as well as the taxicab fleet manager's widow, Mildred, 23, and her son, Jesse R., three years old, were in the courtroom when the trial began. The elder McLain held his grandson on his knee.

Court adjourned at 11:30 a. m., to permit the jurors to go to lunch. At 12:30 p. m., the jurors, accompanied counsel for the state and defense and Sheriff George Wright, left Lisbon for East Liverpool, where they will visit the scene of the shooting.

After the East Liverpool trip, the jurors will be excused until 9:30 o'clock tomorrow morning, when the taking of testimony will begin.

ting a good production of oil and gas, but in the end he again lost money. He once more returned to working by the day and for several years he was employed at Bradford, Pa.; Allentown, N. Y.; Garfield, Biltown and Butler, Pa. Once more he purchased a string of tools and engaged in contracting. The future began to look rosy, but he invested his earnings in property and shortly lost everything.

Never Discouraged

Despite the failure which seemed to pursue him, Mr. Murray never lost heart, and in 1900, with an old string of tools, he went to Wellsville, O., where he did some contracting. He continued at this for one year, but the venture proved a losing proposition. He next went to New Cumberland, W. Va., where he drilled eight wells for the Mack Brick company. He then took up 275 acres of leases of oil and gas property in Hancock county, W. Va., and Beaver county, Pa. After obtaining the property he was unable to secure capital in the vicinity. He finally associated himself with Mark Miller, of Sistersville, W. Va., with whom he commenced operation and drilling and they were successful from the start. They sank 28 wells before getting a dry hole in the Carson fields. Many of these wells are still large producers.

Mr. Murray attributed his success to hard work and sticking to it and by making difficulties stepping stones to achievements. His advice often given to young men was: "Be truthful in all your dealings, have good associates, get all the education you can, save your money until you get an opportunity for investment, and do not allow failure to discourage you." He never failed to give much of the credit for his success to his wife who stood by him in the darkest hours of his adversity, buoying him up with cheery words, and thus inspired him to struggle on until prosperity supplanted blasted hopes. His home in Chester is one of the finest in the state.

Mrs. William Roby Is Charged With Beating Stepson

Mrs. William Roby, Dresden avenue, bound over to the grand jury by Justice of the Peace P. V. Mackall, upon a charge of cruelty to a child, is at liberty today under $500 bond.

Mrs. Roby is alleged to have severely beaten her 10-year-old step-son, Victory Roby, with a heavy stick, and was arrested upon information furnished by the child's mother, Mrs. Minnie McKinnon, of Pennsylvania avenue, East End.

Mrs. McKinnon caused the arrest of the step-mother last week, but she denied the charge and entered a plea of not guilty. She was represented by Attorney Ben L. Bennett.

Parents of the child were divorced several years ago, but both have been married since then. Custody of the two children was given the father when the decree was granted. The child is now in the care of his mother. An elder brother, aged about 12 years, was committed to the Fairmont Children's home at Alliance by his father and step-mother about two months ago.

MARINE SHOT TO DEATH WHEN HE REFUSES TO "GET UP IN MORNING"

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9.—There is an old army song about how "I Hate to Get Up in the Morning."

Private John Ban, 20, of the Marines, was thinking about it as he lay in bed in the barracks yesterday. It was Sunday morning.

"Everybody out," snapped Corp. John J. Kulick. He was corporal of the guard. The last note of reveille had floated away in the misty rain.

Ban didn't stir.

"You, too," barked the corporal.

He backed away. Out came his service revolver. A shot. Ban crumpled up on the floor.

He died later in the naval hospital. Corporal Kulick was under arrest today and a board of officers were convened to investigate.

Both marines were from New Jersey—Ban from New Brunswick, and Kulick from Passaic.

Alienists Will be Called

His story, told in his own simple language, is expected by defense counsel to rekindle the great wave of sympathy that swept the court room Saturday as the old doctor's second child, Mrs. Frances Blazer Bishop, revealed to a weeping jury the "mother-like devotion" that Dr. Blazer had lavished upon the mis-shapen helpless Hazel.

Blazer will be followed on the witness stand, according to Attorney Mowry, by Dr. Cyrus Pershing, a Denver alienist, and Dr. D. E. Phillips, professor of psychology at Denver university. To them will be propounded a 4,000-word hypothetical question covering all the evidence in the record to date and upon which their expert opinion of the "temporary insanity" of the defendant will be based.

The prosecution let it be known today that they were prepared to call in rebuttal Dr. Edward Delehanty and Dr. George A. Molden, both of Denver and widely known in the west, as alienists to combat the temporary insanity plea. Doctors Delehanty and Moleen have been regular attendants at the trial since it's opening.

Senate Jury

Raise New Issue.

In expressing their opinions about Colorado's sensational murder case, the senatorial jurors indicated the trial has raised an issue which some day may be carried to the floors of congress. This is the question whether a state or national agency should be created to destroy human derelicts at birth. One juror, Senator Frazier, said he believed some authority should be established to determine this weighty problem.

Those senators, voting for a conviction, contended the armless, legless, deaf and dumb idiot, Hazel Blazer, was still a human being, to kill such an unfortunate after deliberation premediation, they held, was as criminal as to kill anyone else.

The other jurors, either voting for acquittal or for the insanity plea, said circumstances of the Blazer case did not justify punishment of the father as a murderer. Rather, they said, such a victim of circumstances should be placed in an asylum for his few remaining days.

Opinions of Senatorial Jurors.

The opinion of the senatorial jurors were as follows:

Senator Warren, former governor of Wyoming, and dean of congess: "If Dr. Blazer killed his daughter deliberately and with premeditation, as indicated in press reports, he ought to be hung for murder."

Senator Walsh, noted Teapot Dome prosecutor, and a famous constitutional lawyer: "I cannot justify murder, whatever the circumstances may be. It took Dr. Blazer too long—32 years—to decide it was his duty to take his daughter's life. Once we tolerate that sort of thing, there is no telling where to draw the line or what degree of deformity there should be to make the act of murder justifiable or even excusable. One easily recalls many brilliant minds which would have been lost to the world had not the wisdom of men or the Creator himself set the seal of condemnation on murder generally."

Senator Goff, former assistant attorney general and once a prosecuting attorney in Wisconsin: "It is not so much the fact that a physical body was destroyed as that opportunity was denied to a human soul. I would vote for conviction."

Senator Bayard's Viewpoint.

Senator Bayard, one of Delaware's greatest lawyers and father of five children: "We all recall families who have had to bear the burden of caring for crippled children. If I found that Dr. Blazer killed his daughter deliberately, as indicated in newspaper reports, I would vote that he be punished according to law. Otherwise you would be giving a man the right to take human life at his own inclination."

Senator Frazier, former governor of North Dakota, farmer and father of five children: "While I don't approve of such an action generally, I think there ought to be a state of government authority to care for such unfortunates. In the Blazer case, I think he ought to be acquitted under the circumstances."

Believes Father Insane

Senator "A", mid-western Republican, famous as a liberal and father of three daughters: "I would vote to acquit the father. Its a really serious question because there are times when death comes as a blessing. I don't think though that I would vote for a law to put such unfortunates out of their misery, because there would be no way to prevent its abuse."

Senator Wheeler, noted as a prosecutor and father of six children: "From what I have read of the Blazer case in newspaper reports, I believe the father is insane and should be confined in an asylum."

Senator Harris, former banker and father of one daughter: "A father who could murder his daughter is either depraved or insane. He should either be hung or committed to an asylum. In the Blazer case, I think newspaper reports indicate the father is insane."

Blind Senator's Statement.

Senator McMaster, former Governor of South Dakota, once a farmer: "The frightful mental ordeal undergone by the father in caring for his daughter all these years. In my judgment, rendered his mind unbalanced, I should adjudge him insane."

Senator Schall, criminal lawyer and himself blinded by an electric shock: "The action of Dr. Blazer itself indicates what the verdict should be. He is insane and should be sent to an asylum."

Senator "B," a national leader in independent thought and formerly one of the greatest criminal prosecutors in the west: "If people's lives are to be taken because they are not believed to have a soul, it would be better to let the state supervise the destruction. From press reports of the Blazer case, I should say the father is insane and would so vote if I were on his jury."

REPORTS FROM STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, Nov. 9.—Speculative tendencies in the stock market were reversed in the early trading today and the motor and specialty stocks were thrown on the market in large volume, resulting in the most serious decline in prices in a month or more. Saturday's reactionary closing may have invited a more general desire to take profits, in the Wall Street view, but certainly there was little or no professional support for the speculative favorites which were boomed by the pools in recent weeks.

Dupont declined 11 points to 250 in the first period, but most sales were made 4 or 5 points above the opening price. General Motors sold down from 147 to 142; Hudson from 129 to 123; and numerous industrial, copper and utility stocks which enjoyed the boom last week, contracted 2 to 4 points in market value. United States Steel at 135½ showed a loss of about 4 points from last Friday's high. General Electric at 324 was down 12 points and Dupont at 250 down 20 points from the high of last week, in Wall Street's view the reaction was somewhat overdue, particularly in high priced speculative stocks.

The oil stocks and a few of the rails and industrials supplied whatever stability the market exhibited to this period.

Brady Larcombe is Suffering From Fractured Skull.

Brady Larcombe, teamster for the D. E. McNicol pottery, is in the City hospital suffering from a fractured skull and injuries to his shoulder and side, as a result of an automobile accident near Silver's switch on the Wellsville-East Liverpool road at 2:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon. His condition is believed to be serious.

Larcombe, who resides in Boyce street, East End, was returning from Wellsville with a party of friends yesterday afternoon when his machine swerved from the road and struck a telephone pole. He was thrown from the car to the street. None of the other occupants of the car was injured.

He was taken to the hospital in another machine where Dr. R. J. Marshall attended him. The automobile, which was badly damaged, was brought here by the McElravy wrecker.

Larcombe was street commissioner for approximately four years during the administration of ex-Mayor J. S. Wilson. He is a brother of Councilman James Larcombe of Riverview street.

Shot By Marlatt.

The murderer barricaded himself in his home and refused to surrender to Sheriff Wyman. The sheriff went to Marlatt's bedroom and while he was forcing the door which had been locked, Marlatt pressed the barrel of his 32-caliber gun against Wyman's right breast and fired. The bullet passed through his overcoat, under coat, vest on a note book, which Wyman carried with him, and struck one of his ribs, inflicting only a flesh wound.

Marlatt was subdued and taken to Lisbon and later sentenced to life imprisonment in the Ohio state penitentiary. He died a few years ago while a prisoner in the institution.

Member of M. E. Church.

Mr. Wyman was one of five children. One brother, Decatur S., was killed during the Civil War. Another brother and a sister, have since died, leaving but one other brother, Samuel E. Wyman, who resides in Redlands, Cal.

The deceased first married Miss Harriet B. Armstrong, of Pennsylvania. To this union two children, Mrs. J. R. Shawke and George Edward Wyman, both of this city, were born. She died in 1903. About 14 years ago, Mr. Wyman married Mrs. Louise Fluno, sister of his first wife, who survives him, together with his two children.

He was a member of Riddle Lodge No. 315, A. F. and A. m., Junior Order of United American Mechanics, the subordinate, encampment and uniformed lodges of the Odd Fellows of this city and the Rechabites. He also was a member of the First Methodist Episcopal church of this city, having joined the church when he was 18 years of age.

DELINQUENT LISTS SENT TO SHERIFFS

State Auditor John C. Bond said today that delinquent lists for real estate taxes due in 1923 had been mailed to all the sheriffs. All property thus reported delinquent will be advertised for sale, the law requiring four weeks. The day sale must be a court day—that is, a day set for the opening of county court, circuit court or special court. The sales will take place at different times in different counties and will be at intervals from the middle of December until along in January.

WARNING ISSUED BY DRY OFFICER

Druggists of West Virginia and other merchants have been warned by U. S. prohibition enforcement officers, acting under instructions from J. H. Gadd, advisor to Administrator Fullweiler of the Seventh district, that it is unlawful to display, offer to keep for sale malt and hops, preparations commonly used in the manufacture of what is known as "home brew."

In a letter written by Mr. Gadd he states:

"For your information I desire to quote you Section 18 of the National Prohibition Act which reads as follows:

" 'It shall be unlawful to advertise, manufacture, sell or possess for sale any utensil, contrivance, machine, preparation, compound, tablet, substance formula direction, or recipe advertised resigned or intended for use in the unlawful manufacture of intoxicating liquor.

"It is a matter of common knowledge that malt and hops are designed and intended for use in the unlawful manufacture of intoxicating liquor, and you will keep in mind the phrase, 'intoxicating liquor' embraces and includes any preparation containing one-half of 1 per cent, or more, of alcohol by volume, and which is fit for beverage purposes. Therefore, dealers, merchants or druggists who advertise the same for sale are violating the section just quoted."

A THREE DAYS' COUGH IS YOUR DANGER SIGNAL

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Company, Atlanta, Ga. (adv.)

COL. MITCHELL OUTLINES HIS DEFENSE PLANS

Faces Task of Proving Truth of Criticisms.

TRIAL RESUMED

Representative Reid Says he Will Produce Evidence.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9.—After thundering new accusations of incompetency against the war and navy departments for their conduct of the air services, Col. William Mitchell began at noon today the effort of trying to prove, through witnesses, that his charges of "almost treasonable administration and criminal negligence," against these departments, were justified.

One of the fresh accusations was that the war department had permitted an Austro-German owned flying organization to set up a commercial flying business "within striking distance of the Panama Canal Zone."

The first defense witness called by Mitchell was Brig. Gen. Amos A. Fries, head of the chemical warfare service.

Announcement of the defense plan of action was made by Representative Frank R. Reid, (R.) of Illinois chief of Mitchell's counsel as soon as court convened.

"I conceive it my duty,' said Reid, "in the interests of justice and in the proper presentation of the defense of the accused, to produce direct and positive evidence which will not only convince Col. Mitchell's accusers of their error but remove much ignorance by a revelation of the truth."

Reid declared the defense would prove the War and Navy departments were guilty of "An almost treasonable administration of aviation."

Then Reid announced he was considering a request for contempt citations against the acting heads of the war department for their issuing press reports on the Mitchell trial.

Coroner's Verdict Is Handed Down in J. W. Reed Death

Funeral services for John W. Reed, 68 years old, who was fatally injured when run down by a Y. & O. interurban car at the Claybourne avenue crossing Saturday, will be held at 1:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon at the home in Dresden avenue. Rev. W. H. Clark, pastor of the Emmanuel Presbyterian church, will have charge. Interment will be made in Riverview cemetery.

Coroner J. M. Van Fossan of East Palestine, who conducted an inquest, returned a verdict that "death was caused by being struck by an electric car on the Youngstown and Ohio River line."

An average of less than one in twenty girls of Germany bob their hair.

In that interesting way international hatred was built up.

The American tariff on sugar is ruining Cuba, a friendly neighbor to which we owe at least friendship and decent treatment.

Cuba's commercial balance of trade with the United States has fallen in the last year from $167,000,000 to $85,000,000.

Cuba, with commercial generosity, continues buying in our markets while we with our cut-throat sugar tariff are doing all we can to strangle the prosperity of Cuba.

The tax we inflict on Cuban sugar amounts to more than 100 per cent.

One hundred and seven pounds of raw sugar make 100 pounds of granulated sugar. It costs about 1 cent a pound to make raw sugar into white sugar. The Cugan sugar grower after paying freight, lighterage, warehouse, railway tax on industrial process and other costs gets less than one-half a cent a pound for the raw sugar refined and retailed here at 6 cents.

Under such conditions the Cuban grower cannot live. Leaving out any question of decency it is against the interest of this country to destroy Cuba's sugar industry. A little while ago Americans were eagerly buying for $25 a bag of sugar that can be bought now for $5 to $6.

Unless housewives want to see the price of sugar go up again they will do well to lay in a supply and help get rid of the present surplus.

Gen. Felix Agnus, a brave, useful fighter in the army and in journalism, is dead in Baltimore at the age of 86. He fought for France, his native land, and in the army of Garibaldi. For half a century or more he lived in the United States, the best type of patriotic American citizen. And he retained the French qualities with which he was born and of which he was proud, retaining also as he should, his deep love for France.

Gen. Agnus worked and fought for the right as long as there was any life in him. He is gone now to the home of good workers and good fighters.

China's thickly populated Shantung province was flooded at the rate of 40,000 cubic feet a second because of two breaks in the dikes of the Yellow river.

That great river is called "China's sorrow," because of the calamities it inflicts, and has made 2,000,000 homeless this time.

One thousand villages are inundated.

What with Yellow river, pestilence, bandits, Christian and Confucian generals fighting, European nations interfering, taxing and bullying, you need not envy the poor Chinese.

Some scientist observes that the human race talks too much about pain and too little about "absence of pain."

We think too much of a pain or an ache, too little of the fact that of eighteen hundred million people on earth, about seventeen hundred million live free of pain and think nothing about it.

Forty-eight states of this nation do not half appreciate their freedom from the trouble of China and a hundred other countries.

In the Mexican state of Tobasco five Catholic priests are arrested because they refused to marry. The state of Tobasco has passed a law forbidding priests of any denomination to perform religious duties until they are married.

This is kind of stupid intolerance that carries its own punishment and its own failure within itself. It is as idiotic as it would be to pass a law forbidding any clergyman to officiate unless he were a bachelor. Such laws don't last long.

Attorney Hollis E. Grosshans, of Youngstown, and Attorney George T. Farrell, of Lisbon, has been retained by Anderson, made the opening statement for the defense.

He declared "accidental shooting" would be the defense. "Our claim in the whole matter, and all the circumstances we will show you, will convince you that the shooting was accidental," said Grosshans.

The defense counsel than declared that McLain, the victim of the shooting, and Anderson were close friends. He said Anderson had sold McLain a taxicab. He added there had been no trouble between them and no words had been exchanged on the night of the shooting.

Hear Testimony Tomorrow.

Jesse McLain, 70, father of the slain man, as well as the taxicab fleet manager's widow, Mildred, 23, and her son, Jesse R., three years old, were in the courtroom when the trial began. The elder McLain held his grandson on his knee.

Court adjourned at 11:30 a. m., to permit the jurors to go to lunch. At 12:30 p. m., the jurors, accompanied counsel for the state and defense and Sheriff George Wright, left Lisbon for East Liverpool, where they will visit the scene of the shooting.

After the East Liverpool trip, the jurors will be excused until 9:30 o'clock tomorrow morning, when the taking of testimony will begin.

ting a good production of oil and gas, but in the end he again lost money. He once more returned to working by the day and for several years he was employed at Bradford, Pa.; Allentown, N. Y.; Garfield, Billtown and Butler, Pa. Once more he purchased a string of tools and engaged in contracting. The future began to look rosy, but he invested his earnings in property and shortly lost everything.

Never Discouraged

Despite the failure which seemed to pursue him, Mr. Murray never lost heart, and in 1900, with an old string of tools, he went to Wellsville, O., where he did some contracting. He continued at this for one year, but the venture proved a losing proposition. He next went to New Cumberland, W. Va., where he drilled eight wells for the Mack Brick company. He then took up 275 acres of leases of oil and gas property in Hancock county, W. Va., and Beaver county, Pa. After obtaining the property he was unable to secure capital in the vicinity. He finally associated himself with Mark Miller, of Sistersville, W. Va., with whom he commenced operation and drilling and they were successful from the start. They sank 28 wells before getting a dry hole in the Carson fields. Many of these wells are still large producers.

Mr. Murray attributed his success to hard work and sticking to it and by making difficulties stepping stones to achievements. His advice often given to young men was: "Be truthful in all your dealings, have good associates, get all the education you can, save your money until you get an opportunity for investment, and do not allow failure to discourage you." He never failed to give much of the credit for his success to his wife who stood by him in the darkest hours of his adversity, buoying him up with cheery words, and thus inspired him to struggle on until prosperity supplanted blasted hopes. His home in Chester is one of the finest in the state.

Mrs. William Roby Is Charged With Beating Stepson

Mrs. William Roby, Dresden avenue, bound over to the grand jury by Justice of the Peace P. V. Mackall, upon a charge of cruelty to a child, is at liberty today under $500 bond.

Mrs. Roby is alleged to have severely beaten her 10-year-old step-son, Victory Roby, with a heavy stick, and was arrested upon information furnished by the child's mother, Mrs. Minnie McKinnon, of Pennsylvania avenue, East End.

Mrs. McKinnon caused the arrest of the step-mother last week, but she denied the charge and entered a plea of not guilty. She was represented by Attorney Ben L. Bennett.

Parents of the child were divorced several years ago, but both have been married since then. Custody of the two children was given the father when the decree was granted. The child is now in the care of his mother. An elder brother, aged about 12 years, was committed to the Fairmont Children's home at Alliance by his father and step-mother about two months ago.

MARINE SHOT TO DEATH WHEN HE REFUSES TO "GET UP IN MORNING"

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9.—There is an old army song about how "I Hate to Get Up in the Morning."

Private John Ban, 20, of the Marines, was thinking about it as he lay in bed in the barracks yesterday. It was Sunday morning.

"Everybody out," snapped Corp. John J. Kulick. He was corporal of the guard. The last note of reveille had floated away in the misty rain.

Ban didn't stir.

"You, too," barked the corporal.

He backed away. Out came his service revolver. A shot. Ban crumpled up on the floor.

He died later in the naval hospital. Corporal Kulick was under arrest today and a board of officers were convened to investigate.

Both marines were from New Jersey—Ban from New Brunswick, and Kulick from Passaic.

Alienists Will be Called

His story, told in his own simple language, is expected by defense counsel to rekindle the great wave of sympathy that swept the court room Saturday as the old doctor's second child, Mrs. Frances Blazer Bishop, revealed to a weeping jury the "mother-like devotion" that Dr. Blazer had lavished upon the mis-shapen helpless Hazel.

Blazer will be followed on the witness stand, according to Attorney Mowry, by Dr. Cyrus Pershing, a Denver alienist, and Dr. D. E. Phillips, professor of psychology at Denver university. To them will be propounded a 4,000-word hypothetical question covering all the evidence in the record to date and upon which their expert opinion of the "temporary insanity" of the defendant will be based.

The prosecution let it be known today that they were prepared to call in rebuttal Dr. Edward Delehanty and Dr. George A. Molden, both of Denver and widely known in the west, as alienists to combat the temporary insanity plea. Doctors Delehanty and Moleen have been regular attendants at the trial since it's opening.

Senate Jury

Raise New Issue.

In expressing their opinions about Colorado's sensational murder case, the senatorial jurors indicated the trial has raised an issue which some day may be carried to the floors of congress. This is the question whether a state or national agency should be created to destroy human derelicts at birth. One juror, Senator Frazier, said he believed some authority should be established to determine this weighty problem.

Those senators, voting for a conviction, contended the armless, legless, deaf and dumb idiot, Hazel Blazer, was still a human being, to kill such an unfortunate after deliberation premediation, they held, was as criminal as to kill anyone else.

The other jurors, either voting for acquittal or for the insanity plea, said circumstances of the Blazer case did not justify punishment of the father as a murderer. Rather, they said, such a victim of circumstances should be placed in an asylum for his few remaining days.

Opinions of Senatorial Jurors.

The opinion of the senatorial jurors were as follows:

Senator Warren, former governor of Wyoming, and dean of congess: "If Dr. Blazer killed his daughter deliberately and with premeditation, as indicated in press reports, he ought to be hung for murder."

Senator Walsh, noted Teapot Dome prosecutor, and a famous constitutional lawyer: "I cannot justify murder, whatever the circumstances may be. It took Dr. Blazer too long—32 years—to decide it was his duty to take his daughter's life. Once we tolerate that sort of thing, there is no telling where to draw the line or what degree of deformity there should be to make the act of murder justifiable or even excusable. One easily recalls many brilliant minds which would have been lost to the world had not the wisdom of men or the Creator himself set the seal of condemnation on murder generally."

Senator Goff, former assistant attorney general and once a prosecuting attorney in Wisconsin: "It is not so much the fact that a physical body was destroyed as that opportunity was denied to a human soul. I would vote for conviction."

Senator Bayard's Viewpoint.

Senator Bayard, one of Delaware's greatest lawyers and father of five children: "We all recall families who have had to bear the burden of caring for crippled children. If I found that Dr. Blazer killed his daughter deliberately, as indicated in newspaper reports, I would vote that he be punished according to law. Otherwise you would be giving a man the right to take human life at his own inclination."

Senator Frazier, former governor of North Dakota, farmer and father of five children: "While I don't approve of such an action generally, I think there ought to be a state of government authority to care for such unfortunates. In the Blazer case, I think he ought to be acquitted under the circumstances."

Believes Father Insane

Senator "A", mid-western Republican, famous as a liberal and father of three daughters: "I would vote to acquit the father. Its a really serious question because there are times when death comes as a blessing. I don't think though that I would vote for a law to put such unfortunates out of their misery, because there would be no way to prevent its abuse."

Senator Wheeler, noted as a prosecutor and father of six children: "From what I have read of the Blazer case in newspaper reports, I believe the father is insane and should be confined in an asylum."

Senator Harris, former banker and father of one daughter: "A father who could murder his daughter is either depraved or insane. He should either be hung or committed to an asylum. In the Blazer case, I think newspaper reports indicate the father is insane."

Blind Senator's Statement.

Senator McMaster, former Governor of South Dakota, once a farmer: "The frightful mental ordeal undergone by the father in caring for his daughter all these years. In my judgment, rendered his mind unbalanced, I should adjudge him insane."

Senator Schall, criminal lawyer and himself blinded by an electric shock: "The action of Dr. Blazer itself indicates what the verdict should be. He is insane and should be sent to an asylum."

Senator "B," a national leader in independent thought and formerly one of the greatest criminal prosecutors in the west: "If people's lives are to be taken because they are not believed to have a soul, it would be better to let the state supervise the destruction. From press reports of the Blazer case, I should say the father is insane and would so vote if I were on his jury."

MAN IS HURT IN AUTO CRASH

Brady Larcombe, teamster for the D. E. McNicol pottery, is in the City hospital suffering from a fractured skull and injuries to his shoulder and side, as a result of an automobile accident near Silver's switch on the Wellsville-East Liverpool road at 2:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon. His condition is believed to be serious.

Larcombe, who resides in Boyce street, East End, was returning from Wellsville with a party of friends yesterday afternoon when his machine swerved from the road and struck a telephone pole. He was thrown from the car to the street. None of the other occupants of the car was injured.

He was taken to the hospital in another machine where Dr. R. J. Marshall attended him. The automobile, which was badly damaged, was brought here by the McElravy wrecker.

Larcombe was street commissioner for approximately four years during the administration of ex-Mayor J. S. Wilson. He is a brother of Councilman James Larcombe of Riverview street.

Louis Bell, during a dispute with Bell over a real estate transaction. Ashton was acting the role of peacemaker when Marlatt is alleged to have opened fire, shooting him through the heart.

Shot By Marlatt.

The murderer barricaded himself in his home and refused to surrender to Sheriff Wyman. The sheriff went to Marlatt's bedroom and while he was forcing the door which had been locked, Marlatt pressed the barrel of his 32-caliber gun against Wyman's right breast and fired. The bullet passed through his overcoat, under coat, vest on a note book, which Wyman carried with him, and struck one of his ribs, inflicting only a flesh wound.

Marlatt was subdued and taken to Lisbon and later sentenced to life imprisonment in the Ohio state penitentiary. He died a few years ago while a prisoner in the institution.

Member of M. E. Church.

Mr. Wyman was one of five children. One brother, Decatur S., was killed during the Civil War. Another brother and a sister, have since died, leaving but one other brother, Samuel E. Wyman, who resides in Redlands, Cal.

The deceased first married Miss Harriet B. Armstrong, of Pennsylvania. To this union two children, Mrs. J. R. Shawke and George Edward Wyman, both of this city, were born. She died in 1903. About 14 years ago, Mr. Wyman married Mrs. Louise Fluno, sister of his first wife, who survives him, together with his two children.

He was a member of Riddle Lodge No. 315, A. F. and A. m., Junior Order of United American Mechanics, the subordinate, encampment and uniformed lodges of the Odd Fellows of this city and the Rechabites. He also was a member of the First Methodist Episcopal church of this city, having joined the church when he was 18 years of age.

DELINQUENT LISTS SENT TO SHERIFFS

State Auditor John C. Bond said today that delinquent lists for real estate taxes due in 1923 had been mailed to all the sheriffs. All property thus reported delinquent will be advertised for sale, the law requiring four weeks. The day sale must be a court day—that is, a day set for the opening of county court, circuit court or special court. The sales will take place at different times in different counties and will be at intervals from the middle of December until along in January.

WARNING ISSUED BY DRY OFFICER

Druggists of West Virginia and other merchants have been warned by U. S. prohibition enforcement officers, acting under instructions from J. H. Gadd, advisor to Administrator Fullweller of the Seventh district, that it is unlawful to display, offer to keep for sale malt and hops, preparations commonly used in the manufacture of what is known as "home brew."

In a letter written by Mr. Gadd he states:

"For your information I desire to quote you Section 18 of the National Prohibition Act which reads as follows:

" 'It shall be unlawful to advertise, manufacture, sell or possess for sale any utensil, contrivance, machine, preparation, compound, tablet, substance formula direction, or recipe advertised resigned or intended for use in the unlawful manufacture of intoxicating liquor.

"It is a matter of common knowledge that malt and hops are designed and intended for use in the unlawful manufacture of intoxicating liquor, and you will keep in mind the phrase, 'intoxicating liquor' embraces and includes any preparation containing one-half of 1 per cent, or more, of alcohol by volume, and which is fit for beverage purposes. Therefore, dealers, merchants or druggists who advertise the same for sale are violating the section just quoted."

A THREE DAYS' COUGH IS YOUR DANGER SIGNAL

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Company, Atlanta, Ga. (adv.)

CHESTER HIGH JOLTS WEIRTON

Chester high school eleven blasted Weirton's hopes for the county gridiron championship here Saturday by soundly trouncing the Steel City squad here by a score of 19-0. Despite the inclement weather, a large crowd attended.

The victory of the locals, which was scored on a watersoaked field and in the face of a steady downpour of rain came as a surprise to the dopesters who had figured in a triumph for Weirton based on the showing made by the team in previous games this season. The dope went far astray as Chester outplayed their opponents the greater part of the game and the result left no doubt as to which was the best team.

Chester scored touchdowns in the first, third and final periods. The first two were made possible by the forward passing of Bartley and Campbell. The final one was made on a line plunge by Shaw. Chester registered 12 first downs, while eight were recorded by Weirton. Chester completed three of five forward passes while Weirton failed in seven attempts at aerial gains. Weirton played their best football in the first half, being completely outclassed in the second period by Coach Wild's charges.

Campbell's playing at quarterback stood out prominent, while the line plunging of Shaw was a distinct feature. Other players contributed their share in the victory, which local followers of the team predict will result in the county championship coming to Chester.

Weirton was penalized 25 yards for not being on the field on scheduled time, the ball being put into play on their 15 yard line. Weirton kicked on the third down and Campbell gained four yards around right end. Shaw hit the line for a gain. A five yard penalty imposed on the visitors made the first down for Chester. Campbell made a three yard gain through the line. On the next play Bartley and Campbell executed a forward pass and the latter went around right end for the first touchdown. Campbell tried for point after touchdown but his placement kick was wide of the mark. Weirton braced after the scoring and launched an offensive that carried the ball to Chester's five yard line where it was lost on a fumble. The ball was on Chester's five yard line when the whistle sounded the end of the first half.

Weirton kicked off at the opening of the second half. Shaw hit the line for a first down, Campbell, Bartley and Ewing advanced the ball within scoring distance where it was carried over on a forward pass Bartley to Campbell. Try for point after touchdown failed. The third touchdown came in the last quarter when Campbell trying for placement kick from the 25 yard line missed, the ball going over the goal line. A Weirton player brought the ball to the six yard line where it was fumbled and recovered by a Chester player. Shaw went over on a line plunge and made the point after scoring on a similar play. Weirton tried numerous forward passes in an effort to score. Play ended with the ball in the middle of the field. Lineup and summaries:

'SIN OF CHURCH' SERMON TOPIC

Evangelist Miller Occupies Christian Church Pulpit.

Evangelist William Mart Miller of Covington, Ky., who is conducting a series of revivals in the First Christian church, preached to a large audience last evening, taking as his text "The Sin of the Church." He made a plea for church unity in which he called upon the congregation to "disband, sell their house of worship and other property and go as a body to any other church which would receive them on Bible terms and turn the proceeds of their property into their treasury." The entire assemblage stood in approval which was also given by the pastor, Rev. A. E. Sims.

The evangelist said at the outset of his sermon that the division of Christians into hundreds of rival and often conflicting denominations was the greatest sin of modern times. He declared that the Christian people of the land were strong enough to accomplish absolutely anything in which they might stand united, but that too often they were rendered powerless to seriously cope with evil because of denominational rivalries.

He concluded his sermon as follows: "I therefore suggest that if there is in this community any church which receives all its members on the exact terms laid down in the Bible, without addition, subtraction or alteration, and which will receive you on those terms, requiring of you and of all others every step required in the Bible, and no other steps, giving to faith, repentance, confession, baptism, the operation of the holy spirit and the christian life exactly the place, form, importance and effect given the same on the sacred page, and none other; neither wearing nor requiring its members to wear any name not found in the Bible, and not recognizing any church officer nor dignitary, nor any conference, assembly, presbytery, nor other ecclesiastical organization not expressly provided on the sacred page—demanding nothing not expressly demanded in the Bible, forbidding nothing not expressly forbidden in the Bible, and imposing no condition of admission nor of continued fellowship not expressly imposed as such in the Bible, I propose that you at once sell your house of worship and other property, go as a body to the church so receiving you, and put your money into their treasury."

Pugh Funeral Held.

Funeral services for the three-month-old daughter of Mrs. Daniel Pugh, who died in Youngstown, were held this afternoon in the home at Lawrenceville. Rev. A. E. Sims, pastor of the First Christian church, was in charge. Burial was made in Locust Hill cemetery.

SCHOOLS MAKE GOOD RECORDS

Attendance Marks High at Salineville and Columbiana.

In his report of the attendance in the Salineville schools filed with County Supt. of Schools H. C. Leonard by J. C. Skaggs, principal of the Salineville schools, it is shown that during October there were 42 cases of tardiness. There are 453 children enrolled in the Salineville schools, and there were 411 days of absence recorded.

The attendance for October, however, reached a 95 per cent record. The report shows that 133 boys and girls were neither absent or tardy during October.

Out of an enrollment of 151 children, only 33 boys and 23 girls were neither absent or tardy during October, the report of the Salineville high school shows. The attendance record stands at 84 per cent for October. There were 117 cases of tardiness in the high school, 60 boys and 57 girls having been placed in this class.

It is disclosed to the reports from the Columbiana grade schools of Columbiana, filed by F. J. Sewall, out of an enrollment of 349 pupils, 242 were neither absent or tardy during October, 120 boys and 122 girls having a perfect attendance record. Only 33 cases of tardiness were reported in these schools, 21 boys and 12 girls being placed in this class. The percentage of attendance reached the high mark of 97.58 for the month.

In the Columbiana high school report, where 141 children are enrolled, the attendance record for the month stood at 96.4 with an average daily attendance of 133. There were 99 cases of tardiness listed in this high school, 65 boys and 34 girls being placed in this class.

NAME DIRECTORS OF FAIR BOARD

On account of the weather, a light vote was polled Saturday afternoon for election of three directors of the Columbiana County Agricultural society, which interest has charge of the county fair.

Four candidates only were nominated between the hours of 10 o'clock and noon Saturday, these being Van J. Morris, John Patterson and Frank Borman of Elkrun township and J. M. LeVan of Fairfield township. All save Mr. Morris were candidates for re-election of directors.

A meeting of the new board of directors is expected to be held within the next few weeks when all business matters having to do with the 1925 county fair will be closed, and plans discussed for the 1926 county fair.

Court Action Filed.

When Pauline Leads and Andy Leads purchased a farm of 42 acres in section 24 Centre township from Frank Yurkas for $6,000 he agreed to pay $2,000 and give a mortgage on the place for $4,000.

In a petition filed in common pleas court against Leads, it is declared that the $2,000 has not been paid, although due, and that the defendants had proposed to give security for the $2,000 but have so far failed to do so. The action was filed for the plaintiff by Attorney Charles C. C. Connell of Lisbon.

LAXITY CHARGED TO AUTO DEALERS

Chalmers R. Wilson, state commissioner of motor vericles, with headquarters in Columbus, in a letter just E. Hamilton, has called attention to received by County Auditor Charles the laxity on the part of automobile dealers in issuing bill of sales promptly. His letter to Mr. Hamilton reads:

"It has come to our attention that many automobile dealers are not promptly issuing bills of sale for cars they sell—especially is this true with reference to used cars.

"Deputy commissioners can facilitate registrations for 1926 if they will confer with dealers to the end that bills of sale for all cars they sell or have sold be issued and filed at once."

It is declared that dealers are slow in issuing bills of sale for used cars because of the fact they do not obtain a bill of sale for a car that is taken in on a trade for a new car or even another used car. This, it has been pointed out, is a violation of the law, and not only subjects the seller of the used car to a fine, but also the dealer who fails to record such bill of sale. When the bill of sale for a car is taken in on a trade, the dealer, it is said, can promptly issue his bill of sale to the purchaser of that particular used car, and this will facilitate the issuing of 1926 licenses.

MILDRED GEORGE WEDS W. J. BOGGS

Miss Mildred George, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry V. George of East Lincoln way, Lisbon, and William J. Boggs, a mechanical engineer of Chicago, Ill., were married at the home of the parents of the bride at 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon by the Rev. J. M. Suppose You Owned a Horse

AND suppose you had no work for him. You wouldn't let him stand in the stable eating his head off would you? Of course not. You'd hire him out to work and make money for you.

We all don't own horses but we all do have a little money laid by or can lay aside a little. Now this money can be put to work to earn money for you just the same as the horse would. Only the horse has got to eat and sleep and die sometime, while money put to work never eats, sleeps, or passes out of existence.

Money put to work (invested) in The Ohio Power Company, Preferred Stock earns good wages under SAFE working conditions. The pay-days are March 1, June 1, September 1, December 1. For instance; $950.00 invested would earn $15.00 every three months for you.

IMPORTANT

If you did have a horse you'd make sure that whoever used him would take good care of him—that he'd be SAFE. Don't forget SAFETY when you put your money to work, it's more important than the amount of wages. And that's one of the best points about The Ohio Power Company Preferred Stock—IT'S SAFE

After judgment had been rendered by Justice of the Peace P. V. Mackall of East Liverpool for $52.50 in favor of W. Christian in his automobile damage action against Lewis Barker, the defendant took an appeal to common pleas court, the transcript in the action having just been filed. In his pleadings, Christian sought $100 damages, but after a trial of the case, the amount was cut in half.

Suppose You Owned a Horse

AND suppose you had no work for him. You wouldn't let him stand in the stable eating his head off would you? Of course not. You'd hire him out to work and make money for you.

We all don't own horses but we all do have a little money laid by or can lay aside a little. Now this money can be put to work to earn money for you just the same as the horse would. Only the horse has got to eat and sleep and die sometime, while money put to work never eats, sleeps, or passes out of existence.

Money put to work (invested) in The Ohio Power Company, Preferred Stock earns good wages under SAFE working conditions. The pay-days are March 1, June 1, September 1, December 1. For instance; $950.00 invested would earn $15.00 every three months for you.

IMPORTANT

If you did have a horse you'd make sure that whoever used him would take good care of him—that he'd be SAFE. Don't forget SAFETY when you put your money to work, it's more important than the amount of wages. And that's one of the best points about The Ohio Power Company Preferred Stock—IT'S SAFE

Bebe Daniels Stars In "Wild, Wild Susan," At Ceramic Theatre

Bebe Daniels comes to the screen at the Ceramic theater today, Tuesday and Wednesday as "Wild, Wild Susan," a girl who can't live without excitement, in the Paramount picture by that name which was directed by Edward Sutherland from Steuart Emery's Liberty magazine story, "The Wild, Wild Child." Its characteristics are comedy, speed, romance, pep, thrills and general fast-moving entertainment.

Rod La Rocque has a featured role opposite the star and Helen Holcombe, whom Ernst Lubitsch, director of "Passion," "The Marriage Circle," etc., called "the girl with the Mona Lisa smile," has a prominent part in the supporting cast—that of Susan's prim and proper sister, whom Bebe's parents in the picture advise her to imitate.

One gets a pretty good idea of the type of picture "Wild, Wild Susan" is from the very first scenes. A fire engine shoots around a corner blowing and clanging for all it's worth. Everything gives way except a sporty racing car. It's Bebe! Even pacing fire engines are too tame for this up and going metropolitan miss who, in the ensuing scenes, takes to trailing shoplifters and bond thieves after reading a correspondence school book on detective work.

The closing scene of the production is that of a haunted house on the outskirts of the city. It's midnight, and there's nothing quite as creepy as a haunted house at midnight. But this is a riot of laughs.

Combine all the big thrills and laugh scenes in "Miss Blueheard" and "The Manicure Girl," then multiply by the size of your hat and then you just about begin to get an idea of what "Wild, Wild Susan" is like.

It's a thriller, if there ever was one!

Piles Disappear

No Cutting or Salves Needed

External treatments seldom cure Piles.

Nor do surgical operations.

The cause is inside—bad circulation.

The blood is stagnant, the veins flabby.

The bowel walls are weak, the parts almost dead.

To quickly and safely rid yourself of piles you must free the circulation—send a fresh current through stagnant pools. Internal treatment is the one safe method. Ointments and cutting won't do it.

J. S. Leonhardt, M. D., a specialist, set at work some years ago to find a real internal remedy for piles. He succeeded. He named his prescription HEM-ROID, and tried it in 1,000 cases before he was satisfied. Now HEM-ROID is sold by druggists everywhere under guarantee. It is a harmless tablet, easy to take, and can always be found at C. G. Anderson's, who will gladly refund the purchase price to any dissatisfied customer.

Highs Defeat East Palestine and Claim County Grid Title

Blue and White Center Grabs Muddy Ball in First Period and Drops Over Home Eleven's Line for Decisive Score; Contest is Played in Steady Downpour of Rain.

EAST LIVERPOOL practically clinched the Columbiana county scholastic football championship Saturday afternoon at East Palestine when the Blue and White won from East Palestine by a margin of a single touchdown. The final count was 6-0.

The clash gave the Potters their third consecutive victory in the county conference, Salem and Lisbon previously having bowed to the prowess of the Ohio river combine.

Saturday's game was played in a steady downpour of rain that made good football impossible. The rain greeted the 22 players of the rival teams as they took the field and was still going strong when they quit.

The issue was decided early when Center Dick Larkins blocked an East Palestine punt in the first period and jumped over the goal line for the only points of the contest. The subsequent kick went wide. The circumstances of the punt which gave the visitors their golden opportunity were rather peculiar. The ball was heavy and soggy and covered with mud. As it left the toe of the East Palestine kicker, it landed squarely on Larkins' chest and it stuck there, as the East Liverpool center wrapped his arms around it.

Tackle Banks was back in the game for the locals and his punting was an outstanding feature of the battle. Banks two weeks ago was thought to be ineligible, but a strict investigation of the workings of the eligibility ruling by Superintendent McVey revealed the fact that the local school was interpreting it to their own disadvantage and, consequently, the plan followed by other schools of the Ohio High School association was placed in effect here.

First Quarter.

East Liverpool kicked off and Dolan returned five yards. The first three plays were ineffective, failing to gain an inch. Palestine punted on the fourth down but the punt was blocked, East Palestine recovering the ball on their 15 yard line. First play failed through the line. The next play lost two yards around left end. East Palestine punted on the third down and Center Larkins broke through the line and caught the ball as it left the toe of the kicker and went over for a touchdown. The attempt for the extra point went wide. Score, East Liverpool 6; East Palestine, 0.

On the kickoff East Palestine returned six yards. The first play made one yard through the line. The next two plays failed to gain and East Palestine punted and the ball was returned 10 yards. English made two yards off tackle. Kirkham was stopped on the next, the line failing.

The next play lost three yards around right end, the line again failing to hold. On the fourth down Banks punted out of bounds on East Palestine's 25 yard line. On the first play East Palestine fumbled and East Liverpool recovered just as the quarter ended. Score, East Liverpool 6, East Palestine, 0.

Second Quarter.

On the first play East Liverpool was penalized 25 yards for roughing. The next play was stopped, the line failing to hold. East Liverpool was penalized five yards for offside and Banks punted over the goal line, a dandy 50 yard boot.

On the first play East Palestine lost three yards around right end. The next gained three yards off tackle. East Palestine fumbled but recovered on her five yard line. East Palestine punted but it was a weak attempt, the ball going almost straight up in the air. East Liverpool's ball on East Palestine's 20 yard line. The first two plays failed to gain. The next gained three yards through the line.

A forward pass on the fourth down grounded and it was East Palestine's ball on her own 17 yard line. East Palestine tried two plays through the line, but failed to gain. On the next they lost 10 yards around right end. East Palestine punted to mid-field.

East Liverpool made first down on two plays and the half ended with the ball on East Palestine's 35-yard line. Score, East Liverpool, 6; East Palestine, 0.

Third Quarter.

East Liverpool received and ran the ball back to their own 25 yard line. The first play gained five yards off tackle. The next was stopped, the line failing to hold. East Palestine off side making first down for East Liverpool. English gained 10 yards and another first down off tackle. The next play gained one yard through the same place. East Liverpool made another first down around right end. They repeated gaining 15 yards around left end. The next two plays made six yards through the line. East Liverpool was penalized five yards for offside. East Palestine held on the next attempt.

The home eleven intercepted a forward pass, giving them the ball on their 15 yard line just as the quarter ended. Score, East Liverpool, 6; East Palestine, 0.

Fourth Quarter.

East Palestine punted to mid field. The first play was stopped. East Palestine was off side on the next, making second and five for East Liverpool. A forward pass was grounded and Banks punted to East Palestine's 18 yard line. East Palestine at this point opened up an aerial attack. Their first attempt was grounded. East Palestine punted to their own 40 yard line. East Palestine intercepted a forward pass, giving them the balloon on their 30 yard line. Their first pass was grounded. The next made seven yards. The next went out of bounds. The next was good for eight yards, giving East Palestine their only first down of the game. The next two plays were stopped and East Palestine punted to East Liverpool's 30 yard line.

East Palestine was off side on the first play and East Liverpool made first down on their next attempt. The next two were stopped and Banks punted to mid field as the game ended. Score, East Liverpool, 6; East Palestine, 0.

"I Shall Not Return Defeated," Exclaims Cheek; and Now, Where is Our Wondering Boy Tonight?

By Katharine Brush.

PRINCETON, N. J., Nov. 9.—At a mass meeting of Harvard undergraduates held in Cambride on the eve of the Varsity's departure for Princeton, Captain Dolph Cheek is said to have exclaimed:

"I shall not return defeated."

Now those were brave words. In view of the fact that Dartmouth and Holy Cross had both defeated Captain Cheek previously, and that last year, as everyone knows, Harvard had a team that could have been licked to a standstill by any eleven young women from Vassar, I think you'll agree that they were very brave words indeed. But they were rather foolish words too. For Captain Cheek, having said them, can't conscientiously return to Cambridge now that it's all over. Five touchdowns, and one thing and another stand in his way. The question is, then, where is the wandering boy tonight? Where does he go from here, To Canada to drown his sorrows? To Waikiki to forget? This worries me. And not only worries me, but teaches me a lesson in humility. Hereafter, whenever I'm tempted to tell the world what I'll do and what I won't, I'm going to remember a November afternoon and an orange-and-black mowing machine going through a crimson paper mache wall—and maybe I'll keep my mouth shut.

It was the most pitiful game I ever saw. Everything about it that wasn't orange-and-black was pitiful. The fifty five thousand people who, under the delusion that they were going to see some football, had collected here from far and wide, were pitiful. The Harvard cheering section and band, bearing up bravely to the last, were pitiful. And the Harvard team was so pitiful that even a girl born yelling a Yale cheer felt her heart bleed. They never had even so much as a bowing acquaintance with the goal. They tackled their ancient rivals lovingly around the neck—when they got near enough to tackle them at all. And a couple of over-grown elephants in Siamese-twin formation could have ambled through some of the holes in the Harvard line without even brushing their outside flanks against anything. My idea of an unnecessary person was the man who sat somewhere behind me, who kept yelling, "Come on, Princeton!"- in a solemn voice at periodic intervals. He might as well have stood on the edge of a pond and yelled, "Swim, duck, swim!"

And the funny part of it is, Princeton wasn't so wonderful, either! Being 36 points better than Harvard doesn't make you a good football team, any more than taking candy from a baby makes you a good second-story man.

Two things, aside from the game itself always impress me most about football games at Princeton. One is the extremely rural location of the Tiger's lair. Princeton is a bosky dell, really. Drive to any other college game, and you park your car in a garage and eat your lunch in a restaurant. Drive to Princeton, and you park your car in an ex-cornfield and eat your lunch out of a paper-bag—unless you belong to one of the clubs, or know somebody who does, in which case you may perhaps get a potato chip in the clubhouse. Of course there is the Princeton Inn; but on a day like Saturday, it's Try-and-Get Inn, and no matter how hard you try, you simply can't.

The other thing that impresses me is the steepness of Palmer Stadium.

DODGERS GET MARANVILLE

Ex-Cub Pilot Obtained by Waiver Price.

NEW YORK, Nov. 9.—Walter "Rabbit" Maranville, once regarded as the greatest shortstop in baseball, has become the property of the Brooklyn Dodgers, it was announced today by officials of the club.

The rabbit was secured at the waiver price from the Chicago Cubs, whom he managed last season until demoted near the end of the campaign.

Marriott, young third baseman of the Boston Braves, also has been secured by Brooklyn at the waiver price, it was announced.

What disposition will be made of Maranville was not made known by Brooklyn officials, but it was assumed that he would be used at shortstop next season, displacing Johnny Mitchell and others who have been tried at the position.

His passing to the Dodgers at the waiver price illustrated how greatly the Rabbit's services have depreciated in value during the recent season. When he left the Boston Braves to join the Pittsburgh Pirates at the start of the 1921 season his value was not less than $100,000.

He played good ball for Pittsburgh, however, and when he was traded to the Cubs last season, he still was regarded as one of the National league's leading infielders.

But the Rabbit had a bad season in Chicago, his managerial duties appearing to place a great burden upon his playing. A broken leg, sustained during the training season, also seemed to slow Maranville up and his popularity in Chicago waned rapidly.

KUTSCH KEEPS SCORING LEAD

CHICAGO, Nov. 9.—Nick Kutsch of Iowa, who has not played in three weeks, retained his lead over conference scorers with 49 points, while Amquist of Minnesota moved into third place in Saturday's scoring. Amquist passed Grange of Illinois, who has 36 points, by scoring two touchdowns against Butler. Friedman of Michigan went scoreless against Northwestern but retained second place with 43 points.

No More Big Purses Is Tex's Ultimatum To Leading Fighter's

NEW YORK, Nov. 9.—Due notice was served upon leading boxers by Tex Rickard today that their extravagant demands for big purses no longer would receive recognition by the promoter in making up his shows for the new garden.

"I lost about $35,000 on the Slattery-Berlenbach and Walker-Shade matches last summer," Rickard declared. "The first of these drew about $100,000 and the second about $150,000. There is no reason why a promoter should lose money when the gate receipts run so high. The boxers simply will have to moderate their demands, that's all."

BIG TEN

CHICAGO, Nov. 9.—Saturday's football results, one of them an unexpected defeat of the leaders, put a crimp in the championship standing of three of the teams which heretofore have led the Western conference title race. Michigan, Iowa, and Chicago were beaten under almost unprecedented weather conditions—a blizzard at Iowa and heavy rain storms at the Chicago and Michigan games.

Minnesota, the only undefeated team of the conference and with only one conference tie on its record, is technically the Big Ten leader today. It has yet to play Iowa and Michigan.

The first score against the Michigan team this season came in its sixth game—a field goal by Lewis of Northwestern from the eighteen-yard line.

There were only five touchdowns scored in the Big Ten games Saturday, a field goal and a safety.

GREEN FACING ITS BIG TEST

HANOVER, N. H., Nov. 9. — Dartmouth's unbeaten eleven faced what is generally regarded here as its sternest test of the season this week in journeying to Chicago for the season's finale with Alonzo Stagg's Big Maroon team. Not only was Chicago rated as Dartmouth's most dangerous opponent, but the fact that the green must spend almost two days on the train en route to Chicago was viewed with considerable apprehension.

HARVARD FAILS TO DRAW STARS OF GRID GAME

NEW YORK, Nov. 9.—What is the matter with Harvard football?

That is, what is the matter with it outside of the fact that Harvard plays football too seldom, if at all.

"Harvard hasn't had the semblence of an attack for two years," says one critic and proceeds upon his arraignment by demanding that something be done about it. He seems to feel that the Harvard system is at fault.

Strange sentiments, these. Wasn't it only a few years ago that observers spoke glibly and in laudable terms of the Harvard system? It was.

Times Have Changed.

Therefore, has the system become obsolete? It may be so. Times have changed, in a gridiron sense, even since 1922, the last good Harvard year. However, the chances are that the system, with modifications, still is good and the players are bad.

Not so many years ago, Harvard had the most famous team in the country. Those were the days of Brickley, Mahan, Hardwick, Storey, Logan, et al., the days when the late Percy Haughton held forth. Harvard had plenty of punch then.

Critics now seem to feel that Haughtons passing meant the end. Yet it is a matter of record that Bob Fisher, his successor, carried Harvard along for years right with the pace. He used Haughton's methods and simply had good material.

First-class football players, however, apparently stopped coming to Harvard and, perforce, the institution stopped winning.

There hasn't been a punch in the Harvard backfield since Owen and Buell graduated, but the coaches are not to blame for this condition. You cannot get blood out of a stone or put life into a dish cloth. There hasn't been any punch in the Harvard backfield because the players with the punch at Cambridge didn't and doesn't exist.

It was once the custom there to stress the kicking game as a medium of the attack. This no longer is possible under present conditions. Except in certain circumstances, in and around midfield, punting now is strictly a defensive gesture, the development of the forward pass having made the attack more effective than before.

Lack of Backs Tells.

Perhaps Harvard still stresses the punting game. In the few times the writer has seen the team during the last two years, it rained heavily and punting was the thing. However, even if this is the custom rather than the exception, Harvard probably is forced to it. If you can't gain with dummy backs, you must get rid of the ball.

Another Haughton idea was to keep his quarter-back from running with the ball in order that he might thing clearly. This was a fine idea with such as Mahan, Casey and Owens in the backfield. Nowadays, one dead man in the Harvard backfield only serves to make four and increase the attack's liability.

Perhaps, they are not doing that at Harvard this year. As a matter of substantial fact, the writer doesn't know what they are doing at Harvard this year—except losing football games.

NEW YORK, Nov. 9.—As a result of running wild against Cornell, Lane, of Dartmouth, came up from nowhere to tie Eddie Tryon, of Colgate, for eastern leadership in individual scoring, each having 90 points to his credit. Lane has the additional credit of topping all rivals in touchdowns with a total of 15, Borelli, of Muhlenberg, being second with 13, and Oberlander, another Dartmouth back, being tied with Tryon for third position with 12 each.

In total points, Brelli tops Oberlander for third place with 78 against the latter's 72.

LAUGHLINS BATTLE TO 1-1 TIE WITH SHELBYS

Fight for Supremacy In Northwest Division Soccer Circuit Continues as Result of Deadlock; Both Goals are Registered in Opening Half.

THE Homer Laughlin's soccer club battled the Shelbys, of Ellwood City, Pa., their foremost rivals in the Press Northwest Division Soccer League, to a 1-1 tie Saturday afternoon at Ellwood City in a steady down-pour of rain.

The Laughlins and the Shelbys remain undefeated in the Northwest circuit and the scrap for leadership continues.

The Laughlins opened up with a fast attack that broke up, temporarily, the dangerous Barr family combination, well known in Pennsylvania soccer circles. Haugh, local inside right, broke away early in the engagement, beating all opposition to the Shelby goal. The Shelby's errer at this juncture and the Laughlins were awarded a penalty boot. Bain took the kick and made good, scoring the first goal of the game. Barr had no chance to save.

Pearson and A. Barr of the Shelbys, and Scarry, were constant sources of danger from then on, but Bain and Scarry proved equal to the demands of the occasion at all times. Pearson made a great drive to score the first goal for the Shelbys. The half ended with the score a 1-1 tie.

Highs Defeat East Palestine and Claim County Grid Title

LARKINS BLOCKS PUNT FOR ONLY TOUCHDOWN

Blue and White Center Grabs Muddy Ball in First Period and Drops Over Home Eleven's Line for Decisive Score; Contest is Played in Steady Downpour of Rain.

EAST LIVERPOOL practically clinched the Columbiana county scholastic football championship Saturday afternoon at East Palestine when the Blue and White won from East Palestine by a margin of a single touchdown. The final count was 6-0.

The clash gave the Potters their third consecutive victory in the county conference, Salem and Lisbon previously having bowed to the prowess of the Ohio river combine.

Saturday's game was played in a steady downpour of rain that made good football impossible. The rain greeted the 22 players of the rival teams as they took the field and was still going strong when they quit.

The issue was decided early when Center Dick Larkins blocked an East Palestine punt in the first period and jumped over the goal line for the only points of the contest. The subsequent kick went wide. The circumstances of the punt which gave the visitors their golden opportunity were rather peculiar. The ball was heavy and soggy and covered with mud. As it left the toe of the East Palestine kicker, it landed squarely on Larkins' chest and it stuck there, as the East Liverpool center wrapped his arms around it.

Tackle Banks was back in the game for the locals and his punting was an outstanding feature of the battle. Banks two weeks ago was thought to be ineligible, but a strict investigation of the workings of the eligibility ruling by Superintendent McVey revealed the fact that the local school was interpreting it to their own disadvantage and, consequently, the plan followed by other schools of the Ohio High School association was placed in effect here.

First Quarter.

East Liverpool kicked off and Dolan returned five yards. The first three plays were ineffective, failing to gain an inch. Palestine punted on the fourth down but the punt was blocked, East Palestine recovering the ball on their 15 yard line. First play failed through the line. The next play lost two yards around left end. East Palestine punted on the third down and Center Larkins broke through the line and caught the ball as it left the toe of the kicker and went over for a touchdown. The attempt for the extra point went wide. Score, East Liverpool 6; East Palestine, 0.

On the kickoff East Palestine returned six yards. The first play made one yard through the line. The next two plays failed to gain and East Palestine punted and the ball was returned 10 yards. English made two yards off tackle. Kirkham was stopped on the next, the line failing.

The next play lost three yards around right end, the line again failing to hold. On the fourth down Banks punted out of bounds on East Palestine's 25 yard line. On the first play East Palestine fumbled and East Liverpool recovered just as the quarter ended. Score, East Liverpool 6, East Palestine, 0.

Second Quarter.

On the first play East Liverpool was penalized 25 yards for roughing. The next play was stopped, the line failing to hold. East Liverpool was penalized five yards for offside and Banks punted over the goal line, a dandy 50 yard boot.

On the first play East Palestine lost three yards around right end. The next gained three yards off tackle. East Palestine fumbled but recovered on her five yard line. East Palestine punted but it was a weak attempt, the ball going almost straight up in the air. East Liverpool's ball on East Palestine's 20 yard line. The first two plays failed to gain. The next gained three yards through the line.

A forward pass on the fourth down grounded and it was East Palestine's ball on her own 17 yard line. East Palestine tried two plays through the line, but failed to gain. On the next they lost 10 yards around right end. East Palestine punted to mid-field.

East Liverpool made first down on two plays and the half ended with the ball on East Palestine's 35-yard line. Score, East Liverpool, 6; East Palestine, 0.

Third Quarter.

East Liverpool received and ran the ball back to their own 25 yard line. The first play gained five yards off tackle. The next was stopped, the line failing to hold. East Palestine off side making first down for East Liverpool. English gained 10 yards and another first down off tackle. The next play gained one yard through the same place. East Liverpool made another first down around right end. They repeated gaining 15 yards around left end. The next two plays made six yards through the line. East Liverpool was penalized five yards for offside. East Palestine held on the next attempt.

The home eleven intercepted a forward pass, giving them the ball on their 15 yard line just as the quarter ended. Score, East Liverpool, 6; East Palestine, 0.

Fourth Quarter.

East Palestine punted to mid field. The first play was stopped. East Palestine was off side on the next, making second and five for East Liverpool. A forward pass was grounded and Banks punted to East Palestine's 18 yard line. East Palestine at this point opened up an aerial attack. Their first attempt was grounded. East Palestine punted to their own 40 yard line. East Palestine intercepted a forward pass, giving them the balloon on their 30 yard line. Their first pass was grounded. The next made seven yards. The next went out of bounds. The next was good for eight yards, giving East Palestine their only first down of the game. The next two plays were stopped and East Palestine punted to East Liverpool's 30 yard line.

East Palestine was off side on the first play and East Liverpool made first down on their next attempt. The next two were stopped and Banks punted to mid field as the game ended. Score, East Liverpool, 6; East Palestine, 0.

RIVAL BOBS UP FOR ED TRYON

Lane, Dartmouth, Equals Colgate Star's Mark.

NEW YORK, Nov. 9.—As a result of running wild against Cornell, Lane, of Dartmouth, came up from nowhere to tie Eddie Tryon, of Colgate, for eastern leadership in individual scoring, each having 90 points to his credit. Lane has the additional credit of topping all rivals in touchdowns with a total of 15, Borelli, of Muhlenberg, being second with 13, and Oberlander, another Dartmouth back, being tied with Tryon for third position with 12 each.

In total points, Brelli tops Oberlander for third place with 78 against the latter's 72.

Other high scorers are: Carr, Syracuse, 67; Woerner, Fordham, 61; Tully, Dartmouth, 59; Graham, Fordham, 53; O'Connor, New Hampshire, 53; Plansky, Georgetown, 52; Kittredge, Holy Cross, 50; Gassner, Cornell, 48; Mohardt, Amherst, 48; Wallis, Holy Cross, 48; Allen, Yale, 46.

LAUGHLINS BATTLE TO 1-1 TIE WITH SHELBYS

Fight for Supremacy In Northwest Division Soccer Circuit Continues as Result of Deadlock; Both Goals are Registered in Opening Half.

THE Homer Laughlin's soccer club battled the Shelbys, of Ellwood City, Pa., their foremost rivals in the Press Northwest Division Soccer League, to a 1-1 tie Saturday afternoon at Ellwood City in a steady down-pour of rain.

The Laughlins and the Shelbys remain undefeated in the Northwest circuit and the scrap for leadership continues.

The Laughlins opened up with a fast attack that broke up, temporarily, the dangerous Barr family combination, well known in Pennsylvania soccer circles. Haugh, local inside right, broke away early in the engagement, beating all opposition to the Shelby goal. The Shelby's errer at this juncture and the Laughlins were awarded a penalty boot. Bain took the kick and made good, scoring the first goal of the game. Barr had no chance to save.

Pearson and A. Barr of the Shelbys, and Scarry, were constant sources of danger from then on, but Bain and Scarry proved equal to the demands of the occasion at all times. Pearson made a great drive to score the first goal for the Shelbys. The half ended with the score a 1-1 tie.

Crimson Football Leader Makes Promise That He Couldn't Keep

"I Shall Not Return Defeated," Exclaims Cheek; and Now, Where is Our Wondering Boy Tonight?

By Katharine Brush.

PRINCETON, N. J., Nov. 9.—At a mass meeting of Harvard undergraduates held in Cambride on the eve of the Varsity's departure for Princeton, Captain Dolph Cheek is said to have exclaimed:

"I shall not return defeated."

Now those were brave words. In view of the fact that Dartmouth and Holy Cross had both defeated Captain Cheek previously, and that last year, as everyone knows, Harvard had a team that could have been licked to a standstill by any eleven young women from Vassar. I think you'll agree that they were very brave words indeed. But they were rather foolish words too. For Captain Cheek, having said them, can't conscientiously return to Cambridge now that it's all over. Five touchdowns, and one thing and another stand in his way. The question is, then, where is the wandering boy tonight? Where does he go from here, To Canada to drown his sorrows? To Waikiki to forget? This worries me. And not only worries me, but teaches me a lesson in humility. Hereafter, whenever I'm tempted to tell the world what I'll do and what I won't, I'm going to remember a November afternoon and an orange-and-black mowing machine going through a crimson paper mache wall—and maybe I'll keep my mouth shut.

It was the most pitiful game I ever saw. Everything about it that wasn't orange-and-black was pitiful. The fifty five thousand people who, under the delusion that they were going to see some football, had collected here from far and wide, were pitiful. The Harvard cheering section and band, bearing up bravely to the last, were pitiful. And the Harvard team was so pitiful that even a girl born yelling a Yale cheer felt her heart bleed. They never had even so much as a bowing acquaintance with the goal. They tackled their ancient rivals lovingly around the neck—when they got near enough to tackle them at all. And a couple of over-grown elephants in Siamese-twin formation could have ambled through some of the holes in the Harvard line without even brushing their outside flanks against anything. My idea of an unnecessary person was the man who sat somewhere behind me, who kept yelling, "Come on, Princeton!" in a solemn voice at periodic intervals. He might as well have stood on the edge of a pond and yelled, "Swim, duck, swim!"

And the funny part of it is, Princeton wasn't so wonderful, either! Being 36 points better than Harvard doesn't make you a good football team, any more than taking candy from a baby makes you a good second-story man.

Two things, aside from the game itself always impress me most about football games at Princeton. One is the extremely rural location of the Tiger's lair. Princeton is a bosky dell, really. Drive to any other college game, and you park your car in a garage and eat your lunch in a restaurant. Drive to Princeton, and you park your car in an ex-cornfield and eat your lunch out of a paper-bag—unless you belong to one of the clubs, or know somebody who does, in which case you may perhaps get a potato chip in the clubhouse. Of course there is the Princeton Inn; but on a day like Saturday, it's Try-and-Get Inn, and no matter how hard you try, you simply can't.

The other thing that impresses me is the steepness of Palmer Stadium.

SURRENDER

The Story Of A Girl Who Dared

By Edgar Poe Norris

Chapter 90.

Of course Amoura was thrilled by Vey Ardle's love letter. What young woman—or old, for that matter—wouldn't have been?

She never happened to learn that Vey had copied most of those pulsating sentences from a novel that was a favorite of his because he likened the hero to himself.

If the letter had been written and dispatched two weeks earlier, it probably would have been answered. But now—. How fate hangs on moods and moments!

Invited by telephone, Sam Sherwood, reporter of the Daily News, rode grandly up Indian Hill the following afternoon to sip tea and nibble cakes with Amoura Ainsley. Not since the wedding of Cynthia Ainsley and Robert Copley had a reporter been admitted to Ainsley House.

"After considering the matter, Mr. Sherwood," said Amoura, as Della complied with his specifications for two lumps and cream, "I have decided that perhaps you could be of service to the Community House as a press agent—or public relations director, as they are called I believe."

The reporter nodded. Miss Ainsley's telephone call had meant but one thing to him, and his hopes had risen high as he mounted Indian Hill.

"I really don't know anything about such matters," she confessed.

"I am willing to take charge of this important phase of the community's affairs, if you will give me a free hand."

"I would, of course, reserve the right of veto."

"Yes, naturally, but I mean— if I were allowed a sufficient amount of money to attend to the publicity end of it properly."

"What amount do you think necessary?"

"He had already decided that. "About ten thousand a year," he replied, eyeing her shrewdly.

"As I say, I don't know anything about such matters. I will not give you a definite answer today, as I wish to confer with my associates regarding the matter."

He felt rather uneasy. If she talked to her father, say, he would very likely tell her that ten thousand dollars a year for a publicity man for so small an enterprise was too much. "When may I expect an answer?"

"In a few days." There was a note of finality in her response, but if it was intended as a hint that the interview was at end, Sam Sherwood ignored it. One wasn't invited to tea by the daughter of a millionaire, and a beautiful one, very often. He became chatty.

"I suppose you find Westland a rather prosaic place after so many thrilling and charming adventures?" He went on in this vein for some minutes, getting only brief replies. Finally, Amoura, bored, arose.

"I shall have to ask you to pardon me now, Mr. Sherwood. I have an engagement."

He was on his feet now. "Yes, certainly."

She offered her hand. He held it, clingingly, until she deftly extracted the member. When he had gone she smiled to herself.

In only a few minutes, as she was slipping out of her tea-gown to take a nap, Philip Weinrich was announced.

"Tell him I am indisposed," she told Della first. Then, "No, wait." She rearrayed herself, taking her time about it.

"Another admirer?" he smiled, as he took her hand, nodding his head in the direction of the road on which he had passed the departing Sam Sherwood.

"Who knows?" she laughed.

"A pretty gown. Chicago?" To him there was something charming in her nod. He took her hand again and pulled her toward the library. 'Come, I wish to talk to you." His tone was commanding. He closed the door behind them and stood for a moment or two with his back to the portal, regarding her.

"Amoura, dearest, let's put an end to all this nonsense and get married."

His eyes held her irresistibly. Slowly he advanced toward her as she stood tense, unable to move. Without a murmur, without a movement, she surrendered to his arms.

Still in his grasp, she shook her head.

"Why?"

Before answering she pulled him to a great leather lounge before the fireplace. "I'll marry you, Phillip." She gave him a little kiss that was only a peck. "But I don't want the wedding to be some dowdy little thing performed by a justice of the peace. Let's have a church wedding, or be married here."

"Anything you say, my dear," he replied resignedly, kissing her. A great content had settled upon him. He had expected her to be emotional and all that. To him this easy assent of hers was proof of her love.

Half an hour later he left, with the agreement that he would return to be a dinner guest that evening. Then they would break the news.

At eight o'clock, no Phillip. At 8:30, no Philip. J. Reginald was getting impatient about his dinner; the chef was fuming and Amoura was in the act of phoning the Weinrich home when a messenger arrived with a note.

"Dearest Amoura: When I returned home I found this letter, which explains itself. I have been unable to reach you by phone. This is being written at the station. I am taking the 7:36 for New York. Love.—Philip."

Feverishly she opened the letter he enclosed with his own. Her eyes were arrested by the signature, "Always, your Vera."

Crimson Football

If you sit in the top row, as I did once (but didn't this time, thank goodness) it seems to you that, should you let fall a tear, it would splash on top of the hat of the person sitting in relative position in the very bottom row. If you sit in the bottom row you feel rather as though you were supporting all the people above you on your shoulders. But you can see beautifully in any seat, and I know of no stadium that presents a more picturesque appearance at a football game than Princeton's concrete horseshoe. Its sides, rising so abruptly from green velvet gridiron to blue chiffon sky, are vertical blocks of solid color, and the huge curve back of the north goal is a semi-circular wall as brilliant and many-hued as a patchwork quilt.

And Princeton's stadium on Saturday was Princeton's stadium at its best, too, for Saturday was the kind of a day when women wear their gayest hats and men their loudest neckties, and when even the most impecunious sophomore manages to buy a crysanthemum for his girl. I never saw so many flowers outside of a seed catalogue. Big yellow "mums" on the Princeton girls, and white posies with red H's adorning the coats of the fair cohorts of Harvard.

And this conflict of enemy colors was repeated everywhere one looked—in banners tacked across the hoods of automobiles, in bunting draped across the facades of Gothic clubhouses and university buildings, in armbands encircling racoon sleeves, in quills stuck into collegiate hats, in the cheering-sections, in the bands, everywhere. Truly, it was not only up and down the field that orange-and-black fought crimson—and knocked it for a loop.

Princeton uses the huddle system for giving signals, which always amuses me. It makes me think of a bunch of stags in a corner at a dance exchanging naughty stories. One of the few sweet sights of Saturday afternoon was the speed and snap of the Tiger outfit in getting into line after one of these little heart-to-heart talks. One minute you saw them grouped together, and then in the twinkling of an eye they were in position, and their center had passed the ball, and they were off—leaving the Harvard linesmen still gazing pensively at the spot where they had been.

The only redeeming feature of the Harvard team that I could see was their kicking. The large toe on the right foot of a gentleman by the name of Coady deserves the only laurel wreath of the crimson's black day. And to think that all my life I've heard that college called, "Fair Harvard!" They're not even fair they're just terrible.

Laughlins Battle

second period.

The Laughlins, with a wind advantage, continued to hold their own. Brown came within an ace of scoring. A penalty kick was awarded to Shelby, but Beech made a remarkable save and local rooters tendered him a great ovation.

Carnie and Haugh in this half played clever football. The local halves continually thwarted the attempts of the Barr family, who were making Herculean efforts to score. But they could not break through a rock-ribbed defense. Aldridge's shot for goal brought Barr to the ground to save. Time was called with the count still 1-1.

5,245 PUPILS ENROLLED IN CITY SCHOOLS

Record Mark Attained, Supt. C. S. McVay Reports.

ATTENDANCE 96.1

Arrangements Made to Observe "American Education Week."

Enrollment in the local schools at the end of October reached a record mark, Superintendent C. S. McVay announced today.

The report showed an enrollment of 5,245, which is said to be approximately 300 more than the registration last year. In the high school the enrollment is 832, but this includes 87 registered in the part-time schools which are under high school classification. The high school enrollment last year was 709 and deducting those enrolled in the part time schools the increase this year is 36.

Ten rooms reported an attendance of 98 per cent or better. Students reported as having had perfect attendance for the month numbered 3063. The average percent of attendance was 96.1. There were 202 cases of tardiness 108 home visits and 397 visits from patrons while 140 visits were made by the school superintendent.

Arrangements are being made to observe "American Education Week" in the public schools during the week of Nov. 16-22. A program will be given Friday afternoon Nov. 20.

SURRENDER

The Story Of A Girl Who Dared

By Edgar Doe Norris

Chapter 90.

Of course Amoura was thrilled by Vey Ardic's love letter. What young woman—or old, for that matter—wouldn't have been?

She never happened to learn that Vey had copied most of those pulsating sentences from a novel that was a favorite of his because he likened the hero to himself.

If the letter had been written and dispatched two weeks earlier, it probably would have been answered. But now—. How fate bangs on moods and moments!

Invited by telephone, Sam Sherwood, reporter of the Daily News, rode grandly up Indian Hill the following afternoon to sip tea and nibble cakes with Amoura Ainsley. Not since the wedding of Cynthia Ainsley and Robert Copley had a reporter been admitted to Ainsley House.

"After considering the matter, Mr. Sherwood," said Amoura, as Della complied with his specifications for two lumps and cream, "I have decided that perhaps you could be of service to the Community House as a press agent—or public relations director, as they are called I believe."

The reporter nodded. Miss Ainsley's telephone call had meant but one thing to him, and his hopes had risen high as he mounted Indian Hill.

"I really don't know anything about such matters," she confessed.

"I am willing to take charge of this important phase of the community's affairs, if you will give me a free hand."

"Yes, naturally, but I mean— if I were allowed a sufficient amount of money to attend to the publicity end of it properly."

"What amount do you think necessary?"

"He had already decided that. "About ten thousand a year," he replied, eyeing her shrewdly.

"As I say, I don't know anything about such matters. I will not give you a definite answer today, as I wish to confer with my associates regarding the matter."

He felt rather uneasy. If she talked to her father, say, he would very likely tell her that ten thousand dollars a year for a publicity man for so small an enterprise was too much. "When may I expect an answer?"

"In a few days." There was a note of finality in her response, but if it was intended as a hint that the interview was at end, Sam Sherwood ignored it. One wasn't invited to tea by the daughter of a millionaire, and a beautiful one, very often. He became chatty.

"I suppose you find Westland a rather prosaic place after so many thrilling and charming adventures?" He went on in this vein for some minutes, getting only brief replies. Finally, Amoura, bored, arose.

"I shall have to ask you to pardon me now, Mr. Sherwood. I have an engagement."

He was on his feet now. "Yes, certainly."

She offered her hand. He held it, clingingly, until she deftly extracted the member. When he had gone she smiled to herself.

In only a few minutes, as she was slipping out of her tea-gown to take a nap, Philip Weinrich was announced.

"Tell him I am indisposed," she told Della first. Then, "No, wait." She rearrayed herself, taking her time about it.

"Another admirer?" he smiled, as he took her hand, nodding his head in the direction of the road on which he had passed the departing Sam Sherwood.

"Who knows?" she laughed.

"A pretty gown. Chicago?" To him there was something charming in her nod. He took her hand again and pulled her toward the library. 'Come. I wish to talk to you." His tone was commanding. He closed the door behind them and stood for a moment or two with his back to the portal, regarding her.

"Amoura, dearest, let's put an end to all this nonsense and get married."

His eyes held her irresistibly. Slowly he advanced toward her as she stood tense, unable to move. Without a murmur, without a movement, she surrendered to his arms.

Still in his grasp, she shook her head.

"Why?"

Before answering she pulled him to a great leather lounge before the fireplace. "I'll marry you, Phillip." She gave him a little kiss that was only a peck. "But I don't want the wedding to be some dowdy little thing performed by a justice of the peace. Let's have a church wedding, or be married here."

"Anything you say, my dear," he replied resignedly, kissing her. A great content had settled upon him. He had expected her to be emotional and all that. To him this easy assent of hers was proof of her love.

Half an hour later he left, with the agreement that he would return to be a dinner guest that evening. Then they would break the news.

At eight o'clock, no Phillip. At 8:30, no Philip. J. Reginald was getting impatient about his dinner; the chef was fuming and Amoura was in the act of phoning the Weinrich home when a messenger arrived with a note.

"Dearest Amoura: When I returned home I found this letter, which explains itself. I have been unable to reach you by phone. This is being written at the station. I am taking the 7:36 for New York. Love.—Philip."

Feverishly she opened the letter he enclosed with his own. Her eyes were arrested by the signature, "Always, your Vera."

If you sit in the top row, as I did once (but didn't this time, thank goodness) it seems to you that, should you let fall a tear, it would splash on top of the hat of the person sitting in relative position in the very bottom row. If you sit in the bottom row you feel rather as though you were supporting all the people above you on your shoulders. But you can see beautifully in any seat, and I know of no stadium that presents a more picturesque appearance at a football game than Princeton's concrete horseshoe. Its sides, rising so abruptly from green velvet gridiron to blue chiffon sky, are vertical blocks of solid color, and the huge curve back of the north goal is a semi-circular wall as brilliant and many-hued as a patchwork quilt.

And Princeton's stadium on Saturday was Princeton's stadium at its best, too, for Saturday was the kind of a day when women wear their gayest hats and men their loudest neckties, and when even the most impecunious sophomore manages to buy a crysanthemum for his girl. I never saw so many flowers outside of a seed catalogue. Big yellow "mums" on the Princeton girls, and white posies with red H's adorning the coats of the fair cohorts of Harvard.

And this conflict of enemy colors was repeated everywhere one looked—in banners tacked across the hoods of automobiles, in bunting draped across the facades of Gothic clubhouses and university buildings, in armbands encircling racoon sleeves, in quills stuck into collegiate hats, in the cheering-sections, in the bands, everywhere. Truly, it was not only up and down the field that orange-and-black fought crimson—and knocked it for a loop.

Princeton uses the huddle system for giving signals, which always amuses me. It makes me think of a bunch of stags in a corner at a dance exchanging naughty stories. One of the few sweet sights of Saturday afternoon was the speed and snap of the Tiger outfit in getting into line after one of these little heart-to-heart talks. One minute you saw them grouped together, and then in the twinkling of an eye they were in position, and their center had passed the ball, and they were off—leaving the Harvard linesmen still gazing pensively at the spot where they had been.

The only redeeming feature of the Harvard team that I could see was their kicking. The large toe on the right foot of a gentleman by the name of Coady deserves the only laurel wreath of the crimson's black day. And to think that all my life I've heard that college called, "Fair Harvard!" They're not even fair they're just terrible.

Laughlins Battle

second period.

The Laughlins, with a wind advantage, continued to hold their own. Brown came within an ace of scoring. A penalty kick was awarded to Shelby, but Beech made a remarkable save and local rooters tendered him a great ovation.

Carnie and Haugh in this half played clever football. The local halves continually thwarted the attempts of the Barr family, who were making Herculean efforts to score. But they could not break through a rock-ribbed defense. Aldridge's shot for goal brought Barr to the ground to save. Time was called with the count still 1-1.

5,245 PUPILS ENROLLED IN CITY SCHOOLS

Record Mark Attained, Supt. C. S. McVay Reports.

ATTENDANCE 96.1

Arrangements Made to Observe "American Education Week."

Enrollment in the local schools at the end of October reached a record mark, Superintendent C. S. McVay announced today.

The report showed an enrollment of 5,245, which is said to be approximately 300 more than the registration last year. In the high school the enrollment is 832, but this includes 87 registered in the part-time schools which are under high school classification. The high school enrollment last year was 709 and deducting those enrolled in the part time schools the increase this year is 36.

Ten rooms reported an attendance of 98 per cent or better. Students reported as having had perfect attendance for the month numbered 3063. The average percent of attendance was 96.1. There were 202 cases of tardiness 108 home visits and 397 visits from patrons while 140 visits were made by the school superintendent.

Arrangements are being made to observe "American Education Week" in the public schools during the week of Nov. 16-22. A program will be given Friday afternoon Nov. 20.

Where You Pay Less

Home-made, but Ends Coughs In a Hurry

If you have a severe cough or chest cold accompanied with soreness, throat tickle, hoarseness, or difficult breathing etc. If your child wakes up during the night with croup and you want quick help, try this reliable old home-made cough remedy. Any druggist can supply you with 2½ ounces of Pinex. Pour this into a pint bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup. Or you can use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup, if desired. This recipe makes a pint of really remarkable cough remedy. It tastes good, and in spite of its low cost it can be depended upon to give quick and lasting relief.

You can feel this take hold of a cough in a way that means business. It loosens and raises the phlegm, stops throat tickle and soothes and heals the irritated membranes that line the throat and bronchial tubes with such promptness, ease and certainty that it is really astonishing.

Pinex is a special and highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, and is probably the best known means of overcoming severe coughs, throat and chest colds.

There are many worthless imitations of this mixture. To avoid disappointment, ask for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with full directions and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

Are You Making A Success or A Failure

It's a wonderful feeling to be able to tackle your work every day with snap and vigor. Endurance is the true test of a man. You go forward or backward according to your health. Ill health causes more failures than any other one thing.

Get the spirit of youth! Acquire the appearance of success by radiating the magnetism of good health. Gain strength to meet your daily tasks. Build up your nerve vigor. Put iron into your blood. Be a success, not a failure.

If you are run-down, tire easily, lack endurance; if you are weak, thin, anaemic, if you want to put firm, stay-there flesh on your bones, try taking one of BURKE'S COD LIVER OIL and IRON TABLETS three times a day with your meals. For sale by Carnahan's Drug Co., 3 stores, and all good druggists.

ROTARY CLUB SPONSORS BOYS' READING HERE

SUGGEST BOOKS

More Than 200 Titles on Library Shelves.

In an effort to encourage the reading of good books, the Rotary club, through the Boys Work committee has instituted a book reading contest among the boys of both the public and parochial schools.

More than 200 books have been placed on the shelves of the Carnegie Library, most of them furnished by the club, which boys taking part in the contest have been asked to read. A list of 50 books for boys between the ages of 8 and 12, has been arranged; another list is suitable for boys between the ages of 12 and 18 years. In addition, 50 books covering a general selection and 50, suggested by the Ohio Reading Circle, have been provided.

Each boy will be asked to read at least two of the books and then write an essay of not more than 500 words on the subject, "What I liked Best about the books I read." The youth writing the best essay from each room will be known as the "Honor Boy" and will be a guest at some entertainment to be given at the close of the contest by the club.

The club will donate fountain pens as prizes to one boy from each of the eight grades who turns in the best essay. A beautiful American flag also will be furnished the room which has the largest number of entrants in the contest.

The high school boys may compete in this contest by reading any of the books contained in the list of books required in their English courses, submitting an essay dealing with the same subject afterwards.

All books must be read and essays submitted to the teachers in each of the respective rooms not later than March 1, 1926. The winners will be announced as soon as the judges pass upon the essays.

The club has arranged to loan sets of five books where more than one half of the boys enrolled in each room have agreed to read two or more of the books, making them eligible to take part in the contest. The Ohio Reading Circle, a state organization, issues a certificate to boys who read three or more books listed by them in a school year. If this custom is followed for four consecutive years a diploma will be presented at the end of the last year.

This is the second year that the Rotary club has sponsored a book reading contest among the boys in school, but last year no prizes were offered.

Charles R. Boyce is chairman of the Boy's Work committee of the club in charge of the campaign. Literature explaining the proposed contest, has been distributed among the various schoools. Readin will begin immediately. Between $200 and $250 will be required to purchase the necessary books, furnish prizes and meet other costs in connection with the campaign.

The nature of the entertainment to be tendered the winners at the close of the contest has not been determined.

Mail Orders Now. Seat Sale Opens Tuesday, Nov. 10. Prices—Box Seats and Orchestra, $1.50; Balcony 6 rows $1.00. Last 8 rows 75c. Gallery 50c. Plus War Tax. In explanation of the low prices the following statement is made:

This is the same identical company and production in every single respect that played the Cohan Theatre, Chicago, Grand Opera House, Cincinnati, Hartman Theatre, Columbus, Ohio Theater, Cleveland, and is playing Akron, Canton and Youngstown at $2.50. The week following East Liverpool at Buffalo, and the week following that at the Victoria Theatre, Toronto, Canada, at $2.50. As an experiment by the Company Manager our prices will not be over $1.50. If successful, this may revolutionize the prices charged on this type of attraction. Please do not think because of the low prices that this is an inferior show. The Management of the Ceramic Theatre guarantees the truth of the above statement.
